RIVALS PREDICT VICTORY TODAY

NEW TRIAL WON IN SCOTTSBORO CASE AMID RIOT

All Seven Youths Denied Effective Counsel, Decision Holds.

BUTLER DISSENTER, WITH M'REYNOLDS

17 Demonstrators Arrested at Capitol After Clash With Police.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A sharp clash between police and parading Communists, ending in speedy rout of 100 picketers from Capitol plaza, yesterday served as a stormy prologue for a Supreme Court decision granting a new trial to seven colored youths condemned to death in the now famous Scottsboro case.

The decision, from which two Supreme Court justices dissented, was read by Justice Sutherland. It held all seven Negroes were denied effective counsel. Dissenting, Justices Butler and McReynolds argued the youths had able lawyers and a fair trial.

The ineffectual Red demonstration in behalf of the alleged assailants of two white girls occurred just before the nine justices filed into the Supreme Court chamber at noon to hand down opinions. Following the rout, seventeen of the marchers were under arrest on assault, parading and investigation charges.

Bearing placards, "Free the Scottsboro Boys," "Death to the Lynchers" and "Vote the Communist Ticket," about 100 picketers, shouting as they marched, sought to enter the plaza east of the Senate wing.

Student-Policeman Beaten.

First to meet them was Capitol Policeman George Walker, Southeastern University student, who tried, single-handed, to turn them back. Severely beaten in the melee, Walker finally managed to draw his gun. He did not use it.

Night sticks flying, a squad of Metropolitan policemen were upon the demonstrators almost immediately. Placards were torn from their hands and thrown to the ground. When some fought back, tear gas bombs were brought into action and the marchers fled.

For another half hour isolated disorders occurred throughout the Capitol grounds. Two women attacked officers at the East Capitol entrance to the plaza. They were arrested. Detective Sergt. Hugh Robey was thrown to the ground and beaten when he attempted to arrest a woman picketer. Policeman Ellsworth Williams was attacked by another woman. In each cast assailants were arrested.

Decorum Within Chamber.

Of the seventeen taken in custody, four women were sent to the Women's Bureau, one on assault charges; ten men were booked at the First Precinct station, two charged with assault, and three more were at the Ninth Precinct station, one charged with assault. All were taken to detective headquarters last night for the police lineup. They will be brought to trial in Police Court this morning.

The disturbance in front of the Capitol was in marked contrast to the decorum within the Supreme Court chamber. Four or five Communists were in the hall when Justice Sutherland read his opinion. There was no

Mother Indicted In Kidnaping Case

Unmarried Woman Jailed in Los Angeles for Taking Own Child.

Los Angeles, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Miss Ruth Borman, former Mason City, Iowa, resident and unmarried mother of 3-year-old Nancy Ruth Buchanan, foster daughter of a wealthy divorcee, was indicted today by the county grand jury on a charge of child stealing. She was arrested in the hall of justice and placed in jail.

The child disappeared from the home of her foster mother, Mrs. Violet Buchanan, wealthy divorcee, the night of October 26, and several hours later was found by authorities asleep in the arms of Miss Borman in a San Fernando Valley shack.

Arrested with Miss Borman at that time was Milo Warner, an ice man, who told authorities he drove Miss Borman to the Buchanan home, where the child was taken from her crib by Miss Borman. The indictment today did not name Warner.

Sample ballots for Virginia and Maryland voters will be found on Page 10.

Hoover Defies Train Heckler To Meet Him

Carlin, Nev., Nov. 7 (U.P.).—President Hoover made a belligerent answer to silence a heckler here tonight when he appeared on the rear platform of his special train.

"Raspberries," shouted some one in the crowd.

"If that gentleman has an insult to deliver to the President of the United States, and if he will come up here, I will take care of him," Hoover said, clearly.

There was no response. The crowd cheered.

"It is a question of respect for the office, not the man," the President remarked as he went inside.

GARRISON'S SON KILLED IN FIGHT

Kin of Deputy Sheriff Is Slain at Hyattsville in Fight With Jailer.

Thomas Vernon Garrison, son of Deputy Sheriff Thomas J. Garrison, of Prince Georges County, Md., was shot fatally last night at the county jail in Hyattsville.

Witnesses said Garrison was shot by I. C. Watts, deputy sheriff in charge of the Hyattsville jail, when he came to the jail and started an altercation. Bad feeling between the men is said to have existed for some time. Garrison was indicted by the April grand jury in connection with an alleged hijacking. He was out on bond.

The bullet entered Garrison's right side from the front and coursed through his body. He was found lying at the door of the jail and rushed to Casualty Hospital, but he was dead upon arrival.

Watts was arrested by County Policeman Ralph Brown shortly after the shooting. Watts' only statement was that he was justified in shooting Garrison.

Garrison, who was known as "Honey Boy," was 36 years old and served on the Washington Metropolitan police force for twelve years. He is said to have left the force about four years ago.

Garrison's case in connection with the hijacking was continued until the October term of court for jury trial and has not been reached as yet. He was arrested with Newton James, deputy sheriff of the county, on charges of having hijacked twenty cases of alleged liquor.

A scuffle apparently preceded the shooting, physicians at Casualty Hospital declared, because deep powder burns surrounded the wound in his right side. The bullet entered his right chest and passed through his body.

Three Banks Lose $14,500 to Bandits

Robbers Make EscapeAfter Taking Oklahoma and Kentucky Cash.

Henryetta, Okla., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Shortly after the American Exchange Bank here was robbed of nearly $8,000 today, the State National Bank at Marlow, on the other side of the State, lost approximately $5,500 in another noon-hour holdup.

Posses tonight trailed the two robber gangs, which fled by motor cars.

Middlesboro, Ky., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Three masked men who cut their way through the floor and hid in the People's Bank at Cumberland Gap, Tenn., met Cashier Frank Richardson when he arrived this morning and forced him to open the vault. They locked up Richardson and escaped with approximately $1,000.

GOV. ROOSEVELT PLEDGES RELIEF IN FINAL SPEECH

Home County Residents Cheer His Talk at Poughkeepsie.

HUDSON VALLEY TOUR PRECEDES ADDRESS

Avoids Political Issues, but Expresses Confidence Party Will Win.

Columbus Hall, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Speaking to his friends and neighbors of Dutchess County, Franklin D. Roosevelt promised tonight that if he should be elected tomorrow he would in humility seek to "mend the fabric of our common life."

In his final speech of the campaign, delivered less than an hour before the clock intoned the strokes that brought the Democratic candidate into the day that will determine whether he shall be President, Mr. Roosevelt said that if the multitude of his friends "give expression tomorrow to your united confidence in the invigorating tonic of a change, I may in some modest way bring this unity of purpose to practical fulfillment."

"To be the means through which the ideals and hopes of the American people may find a greater realization calls for the best in any man," he added. "I seek to be only the humble emblem of this restoration."

Says People Are Confident.

While the residents of his home county sent cheers ringing about the square walls and flat roof of the rectangular building in which the New York Governor has spoken on election eve for many years, the candidate turned a fleeting glance back toward the scores of cities he has traveled into during the last three months.

"Each of these memories and many others have their individual significance to me," he said. "If I can catch them all together and give them vitality and meaning and life, I shall have fulfilled the purpose of my travels.

"These people, all of them, these neighbors of each and every State, have made one thing clear. They have expressed to me hope in the future, confidence that things will be better.

"Out of this unity that I have seen we may build the strongest strand to lift ourselves out of this depression."

Republicans Booed.

Two hours before his arrival every one of the 1,500 seats in the hall was taken and crowds were jamming about loud-speakers on the streets on either side of the hall. Inside, one speaker after another was urging the election of the Democratic State ticket in New York and bringing re-

Ransom Seen as Motive As Boy, 10, Is Kidnaped

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Ten-year-old Paul Marciante, whose father recently sold his restaurant for a large sum of money, was kidnaped on his way to school today in East Sixty-third street. Police expressed the opinion that the boy was held for ransom.

The boy, who walks with a slight limp, was being taken to school from his home nearby by an aunt when two men suddenly grabbed the woman. A third man tossed the child into an automobile, the three men jumped into the car and drove away.

Trade Benefits . . . .

When you buy foodstuffs in local stores you are contributing to the $10,175,434 paid in salaries and wages to 7,697 fellow citizens who are employed in these stores. . . . When you buy foodstuffs outside of Washington, or the products of out-of-town bakers and confectioners, you are paying a similar proportion toward the welfare of some other community. . . . FREIGHTER SIGNALS DISTRESS IN STORM

Rescue Tug Reaches Liner While Santiago-Bound Vessel Asks Aid.

(Associated Press.)

Help apparently has reached the Blue Funnel Liner Phemius, damaged by a hurricane off the east coast of Nicaragua, but another vessel in the immediate vicinity was in distress last night.

The American freighter San Simeon, bound from Baltimore to Santiago, reported its steering gear disabled and its rudder jammed.

Radio dispatches receive in Boston said a salvage tug from Kingston, Jamaica, had arrived alongside the Phemius. The Navy Department announced yesterday that the airplane tender Swan and the destroyer Overton were dispatched from Colon, Panama, to the assistance of the Phemius.

Both western Cuba and the coast of Yucatan waited in apprehension to see which way the hurricane would strike. The storm was moving at the rate of about 10 miles an hour. Meteorologists encountered considerable difficulty in charting its probable course.

The American schooner Abundance was wrecked off eastern Jamaica, but its crew of six was saved.

A fourth vessel, the American steamer Tachira, east of the Florida coast and far away from the hurricane zone, was disabled and taken in tow by another ship.

The hurricane started early last week in the Virgin Islands region. It caused heavy damage on the north coast of South America, washing out a railroad and bridges in Colombia.

The Weather Bureau here last night issued the following storm warning:

"Advisory 9:30 p. m.—Tropical disturbance has moved very slowly northwestward in the last 24 hours; now central about 16:30 north 81 west. This is a severe storm of wide extent attended by shifting gales and winds of hurricane force. Little movement

CURTIS FREE IN HOAX CASE ON PAYING FINE

Jail Sentence Suspended in Lindbergh Kidnaping in "Interests of Justice."

Flemington, N. J., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk (Va.) boat manufacturer, who was convicted of obstructing justice last July for his part in the fruitless search for the kidnaped baby of Charles A. Lindbergh, went free today.

Judge Adam O. Robins suspended operation of a one-year prison sentence. Curtis then paid a $1,000 fine, shook hands with the judge and walked out free. He had been under bond pending appeal of his conviction.

The action of the court was ostensibly "in the interest of justice," and no other explanation was given in the hearing. A report that Curtis

Shrewdest Swindling Gang In U. S. Believed Broken Up

Five Men Are Arrested in New York on Charge of Fleecing Pittsburgh Man Out of $136,000 in Old Pocketbook Ruse.

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Five men rated by police as the shrewdest and widest operating swindling gang in the country were arrested tonight on the specific charge of bilking J. C. Hazelbacker, of Pittsburgh, out of $136,000 in August, 1928.

The alleged leader of the gang described himself as "George Horton, a respectable and responsible business man." He was identified from fingerprint records, however, as Fred Kohler, 42, of Baltimore.

A Postoffice circular described him as a "wire tapper and bunco 'pay-off' swindler" who used the aliases of J. C. Harris, Joseph Amberg, F. C. Bauer, W. A. Bauer and Frank Graham, with police records in New Orleans, Detroit, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh.

He was arrested on a street corner by Postal Inspector Herbert Graham and Detective John J. Callahan, who recognized him from his picture on the circulars. Four men who were with him were locked up on charges of acting in concert with him.

They identified themselves as William Jarvis, 42, a bank messenger, of Richmond, Va.; James J. Knowles, 42, a retired business man who spends his winters in St. Augustine, Fla., and his summers in the vicinity of Boston; Ralph Sadler, 42, a salesman, of

COOLIDGE APPEALS FOR G.O.P. VICTORY

Hoover's Reelection Required by Common Sense, He Declares.

Northampton, Mass., Nov. 7 (A.P.). In a final declaration for the Republican ticket, Calvin Coolidge tonight said, "All the teachings of common sense require us to reelect President Hoover."

"From what I know of the requirements of the presidential office," said the man who spent six years in that office, "I have no hesitation in saying President Hoover should be retained for the good of our country and the world."

Mr. Coolidge spoke from his home at Northampton. He talked of the "high privilege of self government," of the need to "qualify ourselves to cast an intelligent ballot," of the "training, skill and experience" necessary to the "administration of high public office."

And he talked of his successor in the White House, Herbert Hoover.

"When the times have called for a man," he said, * * * "some one has stood forth. Such is the case now.

"For nearly 20 years our President, Herbert Hoover, has been serving our country and the world. Measured by accomplishments, he holds commanding rank.

"If five Americans were to be selected today to devise remedies for the present condition of the Nation, Herbert Hoover would head the list. The name of no other presidential candidate would be considered.

"If ten international figures were to be selected today to devise remedies for the present condition of the world, Herbert Hoover would be one of them. The name of no other presidential candidate would be considered.

"Can there be any doubt where our interests and our duties lie?"

to attend its election party in front of The Washington Post Building tonight. The party will continue as long as the presidential election is in doubt.

There will be motion pictures, slides, cartoons and announcements through the public address system. Each guest at The Post's party will receive returns as fast as they come in over the wires of the Associated Press and United Press.

For those who can not get downtown for the party, The Post has arranged a signal light to tell the election story. The airway beacon atop the Wardman Park Hotel will carry the message. If the tide favors Hoover, a green light will swing across the sky. If Roosevelt leads, the light will be red. And when the election of one candidate is assured, the light will remain vertical, a beam to record the voting.

At 11 o'clock, when the returns will be widespread enough to warrant predictions on the outcome, The Post will have a street edition. There will be no extras carrying only meager bulletins from scattered precincts. And tomorrow morning The Washington Post will offer a COMPLETE election edition. Since no other morning paper has the Associated Press service, no other paper can present the FULL coverage offered by the unmatched news-gathering service.

Come early to The Post party and stay late. There will be full protection and plenty of room for everyone.

PRESIDENT SAYS FUTURE HINGES ON VOTERS' PICK

Closes Campaign With Radio Address at Elko, Nev.

COOLIDGE AND MILLS JOIN IN BROADCAST

"Dishonesty" in Foes' Drive Previously Attacked at Salt Lake City.

President Hoover's Salt Lake City address in full is on Page 2; the Elko talk on Page 4.

On Board Presidential Special at Elko, Nev., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—With the parlor car of his train as a brilliantly illuminated stage in this dimly lit Nevada valley, President Hoover tonight broadcast Nation-wide his final campaign appeal—a deep conviction that for the welfare of the United States the Republican party should continue to administer the Government.

While miners, sheep herders, cattle ranchers and part of the 3,000 population of this little town clustered about his car, the President told a larger audience of voters over the air: "The choice you make now is more than the choice for another four years."

"There is," he said, "great divergence in philosophy of government between the parties which may affect events over a generation. A mistaken choice may hazard the welfare of our children and our children's children.

Says Drive Based on Facts.

"I have been fighting that the wrong course may not be adopted, not by appeal to destructive emotion but by truth and logic. I have tried to dissolve the mirage of promises by the reality of facts."

Even as his train rolled to a stop the words of other Republican speakers came from a radio set in his car. From New York, Chicago, Shenandoah, Iowa, and Washington the same program carried pleas for the voting of a Republican ticket at tomorrow's polls.

Calvin Coolidge, Secretary Mills, Senator Capper, of Kansas, Chairman Sanders of the Republican national committee, and others spoke in rapid fire succession for an hour and a half, with the Chief Executive climaxing the program.

Cites Employment Gains.

The window shades of the President's improvised broadcasting car were pulled down, and only a small and select audience sat inside while he talked into a row of microphones much the same as those before him on a public platform.

A row of brilliant headlights had been hung by photographers across the roof of the car directly over his head, but by his order they were turned off while he spoke. He posed for pictures after the conclusion of his address.

Near the outset of his address, Mr. Hoover reiterated to his audience that half a million men are returning to work each month, and that the measures adopted by his administra-

CURTIS ENJOYS REST AS HORSE SHOW FAN

Vice President Relaxes From Strenuous Efforts in Election Campaign.

Wichita, Kans., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Vice President Charles Curtis turned to a horse show tonight for relaxation from his arduous campaigning for the Republican ticket.

After a whirlwind round of eleventh-hour stumping, with speeches at Wichita, Augusta and El Dorado, Kans., the sturdy 72-year-old running mate of President Hoover put politics aside to attend the Kansas national horse show here.

As a boy, Curtis rode as a jockey at fair ground races in Kansas, and his love of fine horses never has flagged.

He arranged to leave Wichita at midnight for his home at Topeka. Following his usual custom, the Vice President, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Jerome Colvin, will go to the Polk Schoolhouse to vote at an early hour.

Without waiting to learn the result of the Nation-wide balloting, he will depart for Washington by train early tomorrow night, traveling by way of Kansas City and Chicago.

Curtis, in one of his concluding campaign speeches today, condemned what he termed "spotted protection" offered by the Democratic party in a "tariff for revenue" pronouncement.

"We want men in the Senate and Congress," he said, "who are not spotted protectionists, but who will vote for the American system of protection."

Saying the ending of the World War caught the farmer in a terrible predicament, Curtis added: "It was not until the Republicans came into power that anything was done for agriculture and a tariff was gradually built to bring it up to an equal plane with all other industry."

Harvey Says Four States Favor Him

Liberty Candidate Predicts This Winter Will Be Worst Yet.

Monte Ne, Ark., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—W. H. (Coin) Harvey, 80-year-old Liberty party candidate for President, stated tonight he did not expect to be elected tomorrow and that it "makes no difference which of the two—Hoover or Roosevelt—is elected under the present financial system."

Harvey, veteran free silver advocate, who campaigned for William Jennings Bryan for the Presidency a quarter century ago, said that from information he had, "I will carry Washington, Idaho, Arkansas and Indiana, and if neither Hoover nor Roosevelt has a majority, it will give me the balance of power, which I can use to save free speech and free Government for four years more, and in that time our crusade will sweep the United States."

Reiterating his attack upon the present financial system, upon which his campaign has been based, Harvey said, "Both Hoover and Roosevelt are in favor of this destructive system and we can look for the coming winter to be worse than last winter."

Use of Ballot-Box Lost by Sole Voter

Chicago Man Found as Not Registered Through Stepson's Mistake.

Chicago, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Julius Sheffler's ballot box was for rent tonight. He hasn't any use for it in tomorrow's election. Chief Clerk Daniel A. Carey decided that Sheffler—one-man voting population of Precinct 2 of District 15, Worth Township—had no right to vote.

Previously Sheffler planned to act as judge, clerk and voter at his election booth in his barn. Carey, however, discovered that Sheffler was not registered.

Sheffler married the widow of Julian Dojmoeich, sole property holder and family head in the precinct. Through some mixup, Dojmoeich's name still appears as the only registered voter in the precinct. The mistake, Sheffler said, was caused when election officials appeared in his absence and interrogated an 8-year-old stepson who lived on the farm. The boy gave the name of his dead father.

Election Weather Is Generally Fair

Washington, Oregon and Minnesota Expect Rain or Snow.

(Associated Press.)

The weather today may do some "get-out-the-vote" work of its own. In many thickly populated States, says the forecaster, there will be some rain. But many hours of clear skies will be interspersed.

Except for Washington and Oregon, where rain is predicted, and Minnesota and Wisconsin, which may get some snow, every State west of the Mississippi is marked for clear weather.

A narrow strip along the Atlantic Coast—from North Carolina to lower New England—is expected to escape rain. The remainder of the East and the South, though, are threatened with intermittent precipitation.

Five Bandits Loot Philadelphia Bank

15 in Depository Are Held Prisoners as $7,000 Is Taken.

Philadelphia, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Five men, armed with pistols, today held up the Lehigh National Bank and escaped with loot estimated at $7,000 to $8,000.

Herding fifteen employes and depositors into a rear room, two robbers guarded them while two companions climbed over a 6-foot partition into the tellers' cages and took the money. The fifth man, witnesses said, stood guard at the front door.

Thomas E. Brennan, president, estimated the bank's loss at between $7,000 and $8,000.

Full Text of Address Delivered by President Hoover At Salt Lake City, En Route to His Home in California

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 7 (A.P.). The text of President Hoover's address here:

This is by no means my first appearance in Salt Lake City. I came from the West and one of my first professional engagements was the responsibility of carrying a chain and driving stakes on a ditch line in this State.

It has been a great relief and stimulation in the last two days to come back to the West, where I was born and raised. So I do not come to your State as a stranger.

We are going through an emergency unparalleled in peace time history of our country. The first great stake in this election and one which should give the deepest concern to every city is to save the principles on which this Nation was founded and has grown great. The Republican administration has held that its first obligation as a party "of the people, by the people, and for the people," has been to preserve the fundamentals of the republic. We have refused to adopt any of the evasions and resorts of the scores of other nations who have been precipitated into this crisis as the result of the World War. We have in no way countenanced the curtailment of public or private liberties. Thus we shall find when the emergency is passed, our governmental, social and economic structure is functioning as before. And even at political cost to ourselves we must preserve those precious forces which have builded up this republic over 150 years.

In no community today is there any lessening of ordered liberty, of vitality, of initiative, of individual enterprise, or sense of responsibility of the community or of the responsibilities of the States, upon all of which our republic is based.

The second duty with which we were confronted was to recognize honestly the forces moving against us and to give them battle with all the reserve powers of the Federal Government, to protect our people where they were unable to protect themselves, by strengthening the State, the municipality or the institution.

There is nothing more difficult than to face the facts unflinchingly. Nor could we afford to look at them through eyes colored by political interest. There is noting more difficult in times of emergency than to say "no," to anxious people when "yes" would give momentary satisfaction, and yet would undermine the stability of the Nation which is their fundamental security.

We have provided a series of measures unprecedented in the history of the Republic. In all these measures we have preserved the recognition of the responsibility of the States, local communities, private institutions and individual citizens. These have been tremendous undertakings and instrumentalities, unparalleled in our history. They have carried us through a crisis which, without these actions, would have left the Republic with a generation of chaos. These measures and weapons were created not only for defense in a great battle with invading forces, but they were built also for purposes of counter-attacks. We were delayed in this counterattack for four months by the destructive attitude of the Democratic House of Representatives which proposed day by day measures which pandered to sectional and group interests in preparation for this political campaign. These obstructive actions themselves destroyed public confidence.

Fighting Irresponsible Enemy, He Declares.

We thus were fighting not only on the front preserving the republic but fighting an irresponsible enemy on our flank. It was not until we had defeated the flank attack that we were able to concentrate on the front line of battle and carry the front line trenches. We are moving forward today. A million men have in four months been restored to their normal jobs. Our agencies report that they are being taken back at the rate of 500,000 a month. So great has been the transformation in certain centers that in the great City of St. Louis, where they had secured from the Reconstruction Corporation a large loan to care for the destitute, they are surrendering most of the loans. With a magnificent sense of courage and community spirit and individual responsibility they announce that they now can take care of their own because of the increasing number of men returning to employment. I have just received a telegram showing that employment and business in New England, after deducting all seasonal factors, increased nearly 10 per cent in the last four months.

I regret that agriculture has been lagging behind industry in this march of recovery. The reasons are: First, because its domestic market must be reestablished by the reemployment of men; second, because we have met a new blow by depreciation of currencies in 30 governments which have collapsed under the strain from the aftermath of the great war. Their currencies have depreciated all the way from 10 to 50 per cent and depreciation of currency means reduction of wages and of standards of living. It has further increased their capacity to compete with our farmers. It has created breaches in the protective tariff wall which protected our people. Our first duty now is to repair this breach in order that agriculture might march forward with industry. That we shall do, either through the flexible provisions, or, if necessary, through legislation. We propose to preserve the American market for the American farmer.

The Democratic campaign has been conducted from the start upon the theory that by misrepresenting the origins of this crisis as having been brought about by the Republican administration, they could then successfully play politics with human misery. This phase of the campaign has been exploded. It was based on the assumption that the American people were an ignorant people, without knowledge of history or of current events. It was assumed they had no recollection that just such a crisis followed the Napoleonic wars, just such a crisis followed the Civil War and the wars in Europe which took place a little later. They pretended that the World War had nothing to do with this crisis. They estimated that our people could not grasp the fact that increases in our own public debts due to the World War, together with the effect of the enormous inflation in values which took place during the war, had anything to do with our problems today. This indeed was an avoidance of the fact that these things all occurred under a Democratic administration. They assumed that our people were so ignorant as not to recognize that the overwhelming debts of foreign nations from increasing armaments from their continuing frictions, and finally their frantic attempts to secure their national liquidation, brought about the collapse of a great number of them.

Intelligence of People Misjudged by Party.

They assumed that the knowledge of these events and their effects upon us by their undermining of credit, their reduction of buying power for our goods, were all unknown to the American people. They have had the political foolishness to misjudge that the intelligence of the American people would accept their claim that a boom on the New York Stock Exchange, participated in by Democrats as well as Republicans, was the cause of this world calamity. They attempted to establish this claim in spite of the fact that we have had similar booms fifteen times in the last century, and deplorable as they are, they have never yet jeopardized our republic or brought catastrophe to the world.

They have also relied upon the spread of misinformation to convince the American people that the great final blow which brought the world to disaster was through the passage of the increased tariffs under the Smoot-Hawley act, most of which were for the benefit of our farmers. They attempted this particular foolishness in spite of the fact that it has been demonstrated time and again that this tariff law affected only $10 out of every $1,000 of world trade, and that similar increases many times before in our history, of even larger dimensions, had had no effect on the world. All of this gigantic pose was designed to fool the people.

I have pointed out on many occasions that this refusal to recognize the facts, this attempt to mislead the people, disqualifies them for the Government of the United States. Their object in all of this misleading is to find some way to place on the Republican party the responsibility for this world-wide disaster, and thus to draw members of the Republican party to their banner. Furthermore, their strategy in this campaign was to rely upon the solid South as an impregnable fortress in a political battle. They then would use their political brigades in the great cities. They sought by these misrepresentations, by nebular promises, directed to the unemployed, to the farmers, to the miners, to every industry, to attract from the Republican ranks a sufficient number to carry this election. They have, instead, driven many honest-minded Democrats from their ranks; and their failure to draw thinking Republicans will be their rebuke for intellectual dishonesty.

When we search for their program with which to meet this depression, and their real views on long-view national action, we find ourselves compelled to search a series of acts passed in the last session of the Democratic House, calculated to attract sections, groups and radical elements to them. They expounded here and elsewhere through their candidate a philosophy of Government that would destroy the foundations of the republic. Their party convention, by the nomination of Mr. Garner, ratified these acts. Their candidate for President, having failed to disavow them, has also ratified them.

Long-View Policies Described as Weak.

I ask you to compare my review of their program for meeting this emergency, as outlined by me at St. Paul and elsewhere, with the program which the Republican administration has already in action. Their long-view policies have the same weaknesses and the same evasion in frankly meeting national problems. In my addresses I have presented proof, step by step, of these facts. I have exposed their misstatements and their avoidances and their fallacies and their destructive philosophy of government. On the last point I have the gravest concern. If that philosophy were ever put into action the America we have known in the past will be changed and we will join the decaying nations. Such a program put into action would destroy those principles which have given to us through decades our great accretions of national progress, and which have sustained every man in his personal liberty and the protection of his individual opportunity.

The discussions in this campaign have largely revolved on economic issues and our material welfare, but there are issues in the campaign which far transcend the interest of our pocketbooks. While the immediate issue is to overcome this crisis, far beyond this is the higher duty to maintain faith in and fidelity to our institutions. These are the most necessary part of our problems of government and our problems of life.

In all great crises our decisions have not been based on dollars and cents. When our people look anxiously toward the future they look to the preservation of our liberties and the safety of our institutions. We are a people devoted not to our immediate self interests, but we are concerned with the fate of our children and their children.

In this campaign, knowing the responsibilities of the presidential office as I do, I have felt that I was leading a cause vital to the future of my country. There is no community where the building up of the home amid the handicaps of the desert has called for more sacrifices by men and women and where its hopes have been more nearly attained than right here.

Schedules on Tariff Can Be Rearranged.

I need not explain to you the principles of the protective tariff nor how dependent the intermountain States are on its maintenance. Nor do I need to point out to you that the only occasion upon which the Democratic candidate has expressed himself on any particular schedule of the tariff was in a communication to the Cuban press to express his sympathy for the Cuban ambition to remove the tariff which today is the sole protection for your cattle and sheep industry.

Now I submit that if any man is competent to discuss the protective tariff he must know whether the different schedules are too high or too low. He must know also that through the Tariff Commission these schedules can instantly be subjected to reexamination and if found at fault they can be instantly remedied. I have repeatedly offered to submit any such schedule to the Tariff Commission. As I have stated elsewhere, his reply, when asked why he does not submit these faults in order that they may be remedied, is that he will abolish the Tariff Commission.

I do not need to reiterate that I stand flatly for the protective tariff. I stand for the protective tariff which means always the preservation of the American markets for the American producer. Further, I stand for the speedy repair of the breaches in its walls, which have been made by the depreciation of foreign currencies.

This morning I issued the following statement which explains itself:

"My attention has been called to the misrepresentation by Democratic agencies upon the question of the restriction of Philippine sugar. The Democratic Hawes-Hayes bill provides for a probation for Philippine independence varying from nine to seventeen years during which time the quota of sugar, which can be imported free, is to be increased from the present average of about 600,000 tons to 850,000 tons. At the end of that period a catastrophe will come to the Philippine people through the total break of their duty-free trade relations with us.

"The Republican proposal is for a gradually modified relationship with the Philippines. We say they can not in their own interest attain political independence until they have secured economic independence. That is the interest of both the Philippine and the American farmer.

"The Democratic proposal continues and makes worse the situation of the American farmer for nine to seventeen years, and in the end plunges the Philippines into ruin as the price of their liberty. The Republican proposal gives immediate relief to the beet sugar grower and brings about a safe basis of Philippine independence."

And, I wish to mention here and now, that in securing these additional authorities to the Tariff Commission by which we have taken the tariff out of log rolling and placed it on a sound and effective basis, Senator Smoot, of your State, led not only in this fight, but also in the fight for the protection of your industry in Utah and for the protection of the entire Nation.

This has been a campaign of peculiar misrepresentation from our opponents from failure to properly advise the governor as to facts and the consequent broadcasting time and again of misinformation both as to the origin of events and the actions taken with regard to them and in matters of statistical accuracy which change the arguments.

International Action On Silver Question.

One of these misrepresentations, local to the intermountain States, has been as to my position as to silver. If I had no broader vision than my personal sympathies with every man who works with pick and shovel, every superintendent and every owner of a mine, to which industry I devoted myself over a term of years, I would be anxious that their products could be salable at a price which would maintain their livelihood and the prosperity of these States. Increase in the value of silver would relieve us from strain of cheap production of goods which flow over our borders, it would rehabilitate the buying power of many foreign nations for our goods. We have long since determined that there can be but one standard of monetary value, but yet we should restore silver to greater use for subsidiary coinage and other purposes in those countries which traditionally have used it and to do it without undermining the gold standard. It thus becomes a problem which can not be solved without international action.

For a score of years the Congress has been passing resolutions asking for an international conference for this purpose. I took the proper steps through our diplomatic agents to inquire of the nations, without which such a conference would be impossible, as to whether or not they would be willing to join in such a conference. They stated they were unwilling to do so. Later on when the question arose of a world economic conference to consider steps by which the international phases of this stupendous crisis could be relieved, I stipulated as a condition of American entry into that conference that there should be considered also the methods for the restoration of the use and price of silver as a full part in that conference. That was finally accepted. I have given assurances to the people of the intermountain region that I shall appoint a representative on the American delegation who will carry their point of view to that conference.

I call your attention to the fact that in the history of 30 years this is the only administration which has won for you the consideration of this question by the nations of the world.

I have referred to my early visit to this State. The pursuit of that same profession as an engineer took me into many lands peopled by many races, living under strange and divers philosophies of life and many different forms of government. Later, during the World War in Europe, I saw men of all these origins gathered on their fields of battle waging the deadliest war in human history. I am perhaps the only man who was permitted to move within the battle zone and freely among the people on both sides of the conflict. In my mission I discussed the war with statesmen and generals on all sides of the conflict. Their leaders had summoned them to arms on every one of a dozen different pleas that are made to persuade men to risk their lives upon the issues of war. Some had been called to resist a hateful philosophy of government; some had been called to preserve their national existence; some had been called to guarantee with their blood a theory of their country's economic interest.

Personal Observation Of Horrors of War.

Now I would be the last man in the world to say that war is never justified. Many men of my own family have borne arms. I myself, in the course of the World War, repeatedly stated that I was prepared to serve my country in any capacity from that of laborer to that of soldier in the front line trenches. There are issues which it is right that men, if need be, should sacrifice their lives to defend them.

Nevertheless, I had at that time four years of unique personal observation of the horrors of war, four years of study of its causes, and after the armistice I had another year in endeavor to stem the tide of famine and reestablish economic life in Europe. I then had another eight years of intimate study of its appalling aftermath in dealing with the foreign commerce of our country, and I have grappled daily, in my last three and one-half years as President in the most responsible office of government in the world, with the fearful aftermaths which have overwhelmed the world. All these experiences have impressed on my mind with ineradicable vividness the colossal errors of war as an instrument of national policy. I have learned the futility of war as an instrument of national policy; I have learned the futility of war as solvent of great human problems and I have perceived the fearful toll that war takes of the generations succeeding the one which fought the battles.

Indelibly impressed upon my deepest emotions is the profound conviction that the very first of all problems pressing upon the human race is the problem of prevention of future wars. The greatest safety of the world from these crises we are now passing is to prevent war. I see this not only in its terms of crushing economic burdens, not only in its fearful disorganization and dislocation of economic life for years to come; not only in its crushing burden of taxation for generations innocent of responsibility; I see it far more intensely as a supreme human problem.

I see in wars the loss of the glorious young manhood of the world, who, but for war's slaughter, would lead the bright columns of human hope and human idealism and human progress to levels far above the past. I see wars in terms of women widowed or unwed with fond hopes blasted of homes and of children. I see war's most lamentable casualties in homes wrecked and in homes that never even had their chance of being. I see wars in terms of children, born into lives foredoomed to ignorance and toil that dwarfs both mind and spirit. I see war's fatal poison subtly invading the moral ideals of the people, bringing grossness and cynicism where should grow the fine flower of idealism. The world has seen enough of a postwar peace that is not peace, but rather smolders of racial hatred.

For these reasons it has been a major purpose through all of my administration to guide the foreign policy of this Nation so as to maintain our traditional peace with amity with all nations. But of even more importance, I have sought to do everything in my power to place the full weight of the moral strength of the American people behind every agency, existing or that can be devised, which has for its purpose the upbuilding of the spirit of peace in the world, and the maintenance of peace among the nations. I have made but one reservation and that is we will join no movement that proposes to use military or economic force in its attempt to prevent war, for that is a contradiction of method.

And there has been real accomplishment in this direction by our country in this three and a half years. Through strengthening of the Kellogg pact, beyond even the scope visioned by its great proponent, we have accomplished its acceptance by the entire world as an effective agency through which the moral influence of the world can be, and more than once has been, effectively mobilized for the preservation of peace. Its force is the force of mobilized public opinion of the world. That is the greatest force which the world can command. We have sought and secured a large measure of disarmament. We are today placing our every influence to secure further disarmament.

If time permitted, I could enumerate a score of other measures and policies and individual cases in which the United States Government, representing the passion of our people for world peace, has been able to advance that cause by practical and effective action.

And if it shall be the will of this Nation that for another four years I shall continue to lead in the execution of their purposes, they may be assured, both by the pledge of past endeavor and my solemn pledge for future endeavor, and by the further knowledge of my personal conviction and deep emotion on this subject, that then for yet another four years this Nation shall continue to advance in leadership toward the precious goal of world-wide and enduring peace.

ELECTION 'IN BAG,' SANDERS DECLARES

Congratulations Pouring In and Victory Is in Air, Statement Says.

Chicago, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—The election "is in the bag," Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee, said tonight in a final campaign statement issued by party headquarters.

The statement follows:

"Victory is in the air at Republican headquarters. Congratulations have been pouring in all day from every section of the country. We are going to win—decisively.

"There is no guessing in our estimate of this election. By way of illustration of the tremendous upswing of Republican sentiment aroused by the President's fighting campaign in the last month:

"After our supplies had been completely exhausted and all normally anticipated demands had been cared for, we received an avalanche of requests for every type of campaign material. In the past ten days we could have placed in circulation millions of pieces of literature. There were demands for 25,000,000 more buttons than we had available. The volume of requests for posters of President Hoover broke all records last week.

"Millions of voters are fighting for Hoover. Much of the renewed sentiment has occurred in the past 15 days. It began with the Des Moines speech a month ago. Wires pouring in from over the country today and yesterday, from close observers, are convincing.

"This election is 'in the bag.'"

had given authorities valuable information in the Lindbergh case could not be officially confirmed.

First hint that any action was contemplated came with the arrival of Curtis from Norfolk today. For some time before the hearing he and his attorneys and attorneys for the prosecution were closeted with the judge. All the attorneys emerged later and Curtis was left alone with the judge. The formal hearing followed. It was brief and not more than ten persons were in the court room.

Floyd Fisher, the attorney who defended Curtis at his trial, moved that the court consider a review of the judgment "in the interest of justice."

Assistant Attorney General Lonergan arose and said: "The State concurs in the motion and consents to the review."

"The attorney general and his office have spoken for the prosecution and we also concur," added Anthony Hauck, Hunterdon County prosecutor.

The Court said:

"It is now within the province of the court to suspend the operation of the jail sentence."

This done, Curtis stepped forward and handed the amount of his fine to the clerk. Then he stepped up to the bench and grasped the hand of Judge Robins.

The boat builder left the court with Bruce Carney, hi. friend, with whom he drove from Norfolk in an auto. The two went to the jail next door to call upon Warden and Mrs. Mott Anderson.

After thanking them for courtesies extended to him while he was confined there Curtis presented Mrs. Anderson with a colored mesh handbag from Mrs. George Hughes Curtis, his mother, and a cut-glass water pitcher from himself.

He told the warden he had been "getting along very nicely" in Norfolk. Later he told reporters that he had been selling marine engines. He would not tell his plans for the immediate future nor say whether he intended to return to Norfolk immediately.

Curtis involved himself with the Lindbergh case early last March. Telling of an alleged visit to him by a go-between for the baby's kidnapers he enlisted the aid of two other Norfolk men. Dean Dobson-Peacock and Admiral Burrage. It was some time before the three could obtain an audience with Col. Lindbergh, but when they did they gained his confidence and cooperation.

As chief negotiator, Curtis made air flights to various parts of the country, frequently using a Navy plane and pilot. Later he shifted his search for the alleged go-between to the vicinity of Norfolk. A Navy yacht was placed at his disposal and he cruised about the coast, Lindbergh often going along. The flier was on such a cruise when the baby's body was found although Curtis was ashore at this particular time. Curtis then went to Hopewell, as did Lindbergh. There, after questioning, Curtis was alleged to have confessed that his story was a hoax. Before he was brought to trial he repudiated the confession and prosecutors changed the particulars of the charge so as to allege that he actually had been in contact with the kidnapers and had wilfully aided and protected them.

ROOSEVELT PLEDGES RELIEF IN FINAL TALK

sounding "boos" with references to the different Republican candidates for State offices.

The hall, with its flag-draped balcony at the rear of the hall and its plain flat roof, had a hundred or more persons massed behind the chairs in the rear.

Baskets of huge chrysanthemums had been arrayed on either side of the speaker's stand.

Mr. Roosevelt began by relating that he had done today the same thing he had done for many years. He told of his visit to Castle Point, Wappingers Falls, Beacon, Kingston, Rhinebeck and Newburgh.

Touches on Relief Work.

He told of the status of relief work in the State and said he believed the issuance of bonds would prevent the increase of taxes.

"Just so long as I am the governor of the State I decline to do anything but see that no woman or child shall starve in this State," he said.

"That's more than Hoover'll do, Frank," a man shouted at the back of the hall in the ensuing applause.

"The announcer says that President Hoover is finishing three minutes early so I can go on the air," Mr. Roosevelt said, laughing.

The audience shouted, cheered, stamped and whistled. The din continued until the governor silenced it with his upraised arm.

Gov. Roosevelt's appearance in the hall brought him to the end of a day through which he had followed a path that long-standing Roosevelt customs had laid out for him.

Follows Long Custom.

During the afternoon he had driven almost 100 miles through the familiar farming regions of his own Hudson River Valley, to the square in Beacon, where he made his first political speech in 1910, and along the winding roads to Newburgh, Rhinebeck, Kingston and several other places where he had hunted as a boy and had gone as a speaker during many past campaigns.

The day that rounded out his campaign for the Presidency was one in which his weather luck, which brought him sunny days through most of his long quest for the White House, failed completely, and he rode in the back seat of an open car, top down, while a cold mist and drizzle beat down upon him.

To those to whom he spoke, however, in several places, he said that he was feling fit and that he would not know what to do with himself when he arose Wednesday morning and found that there was no more campaigning to do.

Tomorrow he will go down to the little town hall at Hyde Park to cast his vote in the polling booth there. A little later he will motor to New York to settled down in the headquarters of the Democratic national committee at the Biltmore with a set of charts and record for himself the progress of the election that will determine whether he is to move into the White House on March 4.

Girl Loses 15 Pounds And Films Gain Star

Hollywood, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—A set of scales rendered a judgment today in favor of 18-year-old Patricia Farley, and now she has a motion picture contract. Thirty days ago it was decided Miss Farley had every qualification for important film roles except the lack of about 15 pounds. If she could lose those pounds in 30 days, said her tentative contract, she could have a job that might lead to stardom.

By this means or that she worked off half a pound a day and, exactly to the minute after the 30 days, the scales showed she had lost precisely 15 pounds.

HEAVY VOTE IS DUE BY WORKERS HERE

District and Most of U. S. Bureau Employes to Be Given Leave.

Washington will be well represented at Maryland and Virginia polls in today's balloting, a survey of municipal offices and various Government departments disclosed yesterday.

The District Commissioners yesterday promised two hours off to every municipal worker who wants to vote, adding their sanction to permission previously granted by virtually every department head.

Meantime it was announced at Franklin School that teachers who reside in Maryalnd and Virginia will be given opportunity to vote. Those who live in distant communities may take the whole day off without penalty, it was stated.

Only the Department of Commerce and the Government Printing Office have declined paid time off to employes who want to cast their ballots during working hours.

The problem was solved at the Government Printing Office by substituting Tuesday for the usual Saturday off, in the office's five-day schedule. Commerce Department officials will allow time off to voters, but will take it out of their furlough leave.

Virtually every other Federal agency has promised two hours off with pay. Party officials in near-by Maryland and Virginia requested paid leave for balloting, pointing out that heavy early morning and late afternoon turnouts otherwise would overtax election machinery.

Demurrer in Tax Suit Is Overruled

S. R. Beard Loses Point to U. S. in $119,000 Levy Claim.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 7.—A demurrer to an indictment charging Samuel R. Beard, of Washington, with evading payment of income tax was overruled today by Judge W. Calvin Chesnut, in the United States District Court. Morton P. Fisher, who with William Curran and Barrett Prettyman, of Washington, represents Beard, was given leave by the court to file a plea to quash the first two counts because limitations had expired.

Beard, who, according to Federal officials, is a Washington bookmaker, is charged in the indictment with failing to pay taxes on income derived during 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1930 and failing to make a return on his income. The sum alleged to be owed the Government, including penalty and interests, is in the neighborhood of $119,000, it was said.

Beard was indicted on November 12, 1931, on five income tax counts, and was released the next day on bond of $10,000.

MILLS ASKS VOTERS TO BE THOUGHTFUL

Treasury Secretary Deplores Straw-Vote Attempt to Stampede.

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, in a Republican campaign speech tonight, asked American voters to take into consideration "the dangers incident to a change in politics at a time when the trend seems upward and there is ground for belief that the bottom of the depression has been passed."

He called tomorrow's election "the most important held in this country since 1864."

"I believe," he said, "that our citizens are going into the voting booths thoughtfully and uninfluenced by what others say they are going to do. The outcome is entirely in your hands. Nothing could be more unwise than to allow your judgment to be swayed by what is said to be the direction in which the crowd is moving. If the predictions of so-called experts and informal polls, taken under private auspices, covering but a small section of the electorate, are to have a definite influence on your vote, then a new and dangerous element has come into popular government in this country.

"Never lose sight of the fundamental fact that you, and you alone, are to decide the outcome, and that the whole spirit of our institutions demands that a President of the United States shall be chosen as the result of the calm and deliberate judgment of the individual American voter."

NEW TRIAL GRANTED 7 YOUTHS AS RIOTERS BATTLE POLICE

stir. Before the dissenting opinion was read, some of the spectators arose and filed out of the chamber.

The majority opinion of seven to two, setting aside the death sentence imposed by Alabama courts, assures retrial of the condemned colored youths at the March term of the Jackson County Circuit Court in Alabama. Judge A. F. Hawkins, who presided at the first trial, has predicted a change of venue will be sought.

Holding that the Negroes, in substance, had been denied counsel preceding the original trial, the Sutherland opinion contended their constitutional rights, under the "due process of law" clause, had been violated. Justices Butler and McReynolds, in dissenting, based their opinion on the Alabama Supreme Court's decision holding all the constitutional rights of the defendants safeguarded.

Inadequacy of Counsel.

Justice Sutherland laid stress on the youth and illiteracy of the condemned youths. He pointed to their lack of friends and the excitement in the community at the time of their trial. It was his contention that while the trial judge had assigned the whole bar to defend the men, no lawyer was definitely appointed to represent them until the mornng of the trial.

The diametrically opposite dissenting opinion held the men adequately represented from the time of arraignment by adequate counsel, which discharged its duty. There was no lack of opportunity for preparation for trial, said Justice Butler. Had there been, counsel would have obtained a postponement, he said. It was his opinion that the majority decision entered State fields never before touched upon by the highest court.

The attempt to picket the Capitol followed a vain effort by the International Labor Defense and associated Communist organizations to obtain permission for the demonstration from the Capitol Police Board. The first request was made by Joseph North, a radical leader. He was seen at the Capitol yesterday before the demonstration. Last night he was being sought by police.

Following the clash with police, Capitol policemen scoured the grounds in vain for a colored man alleged to have struck Policeman Walker with a lead pipe during the first encounter.

Later in the day Sergt. C. G. Marvel, of the Capitol Police, who also was beaten, identified David Rambert, 47, colored, of Baltimore, one of the men taken to the First Precinct Station, as his assailant. Rambert was charged with assault.

Sergt. Robey and Policeman Williams were attacked nearly a half hour after the original fracas. Robey was escorting a woman demonstrator to a patrol wagon when three men and a woman set upon him. He was being worsted in the encounter, when Headquarters Detective "Buck" Berry appeared on the scene.

Robey's assailants attempted to flee, but the detective sergeant held on to one of the men. Policman Williams chased another a block, threw him to the ground, and was in turn set upon by one of the women who had attacked Robey. Traffic Policeman L. O. Hite came to his aid and arrested the woman.

Names of Prisoners.

Last night, the following three faced assault charges on these two counts: 18-year-old Ellen Josephine Rodgers, of Baltimore, at the Women's Bureau; Kurt Benewitz, 24, of Baltimore, at the Ninth Precinct, and Abe Simon, 25, of New York, at the First Precinct.

Three other women taken in custody during the plaza demonstration were Mary Beer, 40, Baltimore, charged with investigation; Alice Wilson, 17, who gave a Washington address, and Mary Ruboy, 36, of New York, charged with parading with signs on the Capitol Grounds.

Men charged with parading were Charles Archer, 20, and Fausto Ciarcia, 36, of New York, at the Ninth Precinct, and Oscar Robert, 25, Baltimore; Edward Richardson, colored, 36, who gave a Washington address; Henry Cole, colored, 37, of Baltimore; Sam Gales, 29, colored, of Baltimore; Harry Muritis, 48, of Baltimore; Charles Israel, 30, Pittsburgh, and William Randall, colored, 30, of Charlotte County, Va.

Leo Seltzer, 22, of New York, one of the marchers, had two cameras in his possession. He was held at the First Precinct station for investigation.

Newspaperman Borne Off.

The police guard, which formed early at the Capitol, anticipating the demonstration would begin at 10 a. m., was commanded by Superintendent of Police Brown and Capt. J. Gnash, of the Capitol police. It comprised 84 Metropolitan police, 20 headquarters detectives and 50 Capitol policemen.

Ralph Kelly, a newspaperman, associated with Gladstone Williams, correspondent for the Detroit Times, was carried to the First Precinct station with the first load of demonstrators when he could not produce a press card. He was released immediately on the petition of a delegation from the Senate press gallery.

R.F.C. Lends Lynchburg And 2 Counties $72,432

Richmond, Va., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Gov. Pollard today was notified that the most recent applications for relief funds approved by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation included $39,485 for the City of Lynchburg, $12,770 for Augusta County, and $20,168 for Carroll County. The amounts were for the period beginning November 1, and ending December 31.

The three applications as presented to the corporation totaled $106,000, but they were for a three months period. As approved the total of $72,432, was for a period of two months.

State Forester Hearing By Pollard Is Delayed

Richmond, Va., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Gov. Pollard announced tonight that the executive hearing in the case of Chapin Jones, discharged State forester, had been changed from November 14 to November 17, to suit the convenience of Mr. Jones.

Under the law the governor must approve the dismissal by the chairman of the State Conservation and Development Commission. Mr. Jones requested the hearing through his counsel, Murray McGuire.

NORMAN DAVIS SEES MUSSOLINI IN ROME

Important Decisions Due at Geneva Soon, He Is Said to Have Told Duce.

Rome, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Norman H. Davis, United States delegate to the Geneva disarmament conference, conferred with Premier Mussolini today, and, it was understood on good authority, told the premier that most important decisions might be expected from the Geneva parley within two or three weeks.

The pressure of events is forcing the conference to act, Mr. Davis is reported to have said, and the return of Germany to the conference table presents no insurmountable difficulties.

Signor Mussolini received the American representative in his own office, and showed the greatest cordiality, walking half way across the large room with his hand extended. Then he escorted Mr. Davis to a chair beside his desk.

In the course of their talk the American is understood to have told the premier that because there has been a long delay at Geneva the decisions to be taken there must be more drastic in order to satisfy public opinion than if they had been made earlier.

Mr. Davis would not talk for publication, except to say he had come to Rome with no fixed program but only to talk things over with Signor Mussolini, especially in view of the fact that Italy supported President Hoover's proposals for a general one-third cut in arms.

It was reliably said the American impressed on the premier the desirability of completing a naval agreement between France and Italy, thus putting the finishing touch on the London naval treaty. Signor Mussolini replied that he was most willing, but was waiting for France to make the first move.

Democrats Choose Karch's Successor

Edwin M. Schaefer Put in Congressional Race in Illinois.

East St. Louis, Ill., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Edwin M. Schaefer, Democrat, today was thrust into the congressional race in the Twenty-second Illinois District, only one day before the election.

Schaefer was nominated to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Charles A. Karch, who died yesterday of pneumonia. The Democratic county chairmen in the Twenty-second District, comprised of five counties, nominated Schaefer.

As his nomination came too late to allow revision of the election ballots, stickers bearing his name will be handed to voters, to be pasted on the regular ballot. Schaefer's nomination is for the next congressional term, so the district will not be represented in Congress between now and March 4, unless a special election is called.

EASTERN SEABOARD BALLOTING IN DOUBT

Campaign Closes With Both Sides Claiming Victory in Pivotal Area.

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—With the Eastern States a focal point in the presidential race, the campaign along the North Atlantic Seaboard, further enlivened by several hotly-fought senatorial contests, came to a close tonight, both sides claiming victory.

A vigorous drive for the electoral votes of the New England States, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania was waged by both the Republicans and Democrats, with the latter especially active in the normally Republican stronghold of New England.

The Democratic presidential nominee, Franklin D. Roosevelt, personally led a foray into the New England section, following a speaking tour by his reunited ally, Alfred E. Smith, the party's 1928 presidential candidate.

In the New England States principal interest in the senatorial contests was in that of the veteran George H. Moses, making what he termed his "sunset campaign" for reelection as Republican senator from New Hampshire. Faced with the strongest opposition he has encountered since 1918, he threw all his colorful personality into the fight.

Rival Football Player.

Opposing him was an equally colorful figure, Fred H. Brown, a former professional football player, former governor and present public service commissioner.

In the governorship fight, John G. Winant, Republican incumbent, was opposed by Henri T. Ledoux, whose only political office has been that of postmaster at Nashua. In 1928 New Hampshire went Republican by 34,000 votes.

In normally Republican Massachusetts, Democratic leaders claim victory for Roosevelt and Garner on the strength of Smith's appeal for Roosevelt support, although Republican leaders assert the State is safe for Hoover. Smith carried the State in 1928.

Gov. Joseph B. Ely, Democratic incumbent, who nominated Smith at the Chicago convention but later actively supported Roosevelt, campaigned for reelection with his lieutenant governor, William S. Youngman, Republican, as his opponent.

Rhode Island, which in 1928 also was in the Smith column, found itself chiefly concerned with State issues mostly revolving around the gubernatorial contest between the Republican governor, Norman S. Case, and Theodore F. Green, his Democratic opponent.

Both Sides Claim Maine.

Normally Republican Vermont had as its most interesting contest the senatorial race between Porter H. Dale, Republican incumbent since 1923, and Fred C. Martin, Democrat. In the governorship, Stanley C. Wilson, Republican incumbent, was seeking reelection against James P. Leamy, Democrat.

Maine, battling only for presidential electors, was a point of interest in view of the Democratic successes in the September State elections. Both sides were claiming this normally Republican State in tomorrow's voting.

An intrastate fight among Republicans featured the campaign in Connecticut, with both the Republican and Democratic leaders claiming the State for their presidential candidates. In 1928 the State was carried by Hoover.

Three-Cornered Race.

Three-cornered contests featured the battle for governor and United States senator. Gov. Wilbur L. Cross, elected two years ago as the first Democratic executive in nearly 20 years, had as his opponents John H. Trumbull, his predecessor, drafted by the regular Republican organization, and Albert Levitt, a former Brooklyn law professor, who was nominated by the independent Republican wing.

Likewise in the senatorial race for the seat held by Hiram Bingham, Republican, and the organization's candidate for reelection, there was a three-cornered race, with Representative Augustus Lonergan, the Democratic candidate, and Prof. Milton Conover, of Yale, the nominee of the independent Republican faction.

New York, for the consecutive presidential election, found its governor a Democratic presidential candidate, but with both Republican and Democratic leaders claiming the State's electoral votes.

In addition to the presidential campaign, interest centered in the fight of Senator Robert F. Wagner, Democratic incumbent, against George Z. Medalie, Republican, a United States district attorney, and Lieut. Gov. Herbert L. Lehman, Democratic candidate for governor, against Col. William J. Donovan, Republican.

Pinchot Silent on Presidency.

Pennsylvania, generally conceded to the Republicans in presidential elections, was being claimed this year by Democratic leaders for Roosevelt and Garner. Gov. Gifford Pinchot, a Republican independent, has declined to comment publicly on the presidential situation. Democratic leaders seeing in this some assistance in their campaign.

Rivaling the presidential interest in several sections of the State, however, was the senatorial contest between James J. Davis, Republican incumbent and former Cabinet member, against Lawrence H. Rupp, former head of the Elks, Democrat.

In New Jersey, in which both President Herbert Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt have personally taken the stump, the campaign has waxed hot with both sides laying claim to the State. Added interest was aroused over the contest for the unexpired Senate term of Dwight W. Morrow with W. Warren Barbour, sitting as incumbent, being opposed for the office by the Democratic representative, Percy Stewart.

Involved in the campaign in the East is a total of 140 electoral votes, split as follows: New York, 47; Pennsylvania, 36; Massachusetts, 17; New Jersey, 16; Connecticut, 8; Maine, 5; New Hampshire, 4; Vermont, 3, and Rhode Island, 4.

Hitlerites to Continue Wildcat Rail Walkout

Berlin, Tuesday, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Adolf Hitler's Nazis announced today that the transportation strike would be carried on with renewed vigor after the Communists had decided to quit. The combination of Nazis and Communists called the "wildcat" strike five days ago.

The Nazis appealed to strikers and the laboring class to join them against "perfidious" Socialists and claimed that the Communists, by ordering their men to return to work, showed that they had been making the strike a political issue. Twenty-six persons were arrested yesterday on charges of committing acts of sabotage.

Florida Crops Are Ruined by 21-Inch Rain

West Palm Beach, Fla., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Financial disaster washed over a 20-mile strip of the rich truck-growing district on the Eastern Shore of Lake Okeechobee last night and today as rains ranging up to 21.85 inches inundated thousands of acres.

The first estimate of the damage came in a telegram from J. L. Kerr, president of the Pahokee Chamber of Commerce, to Miami by Glenn B. Skipper, former Republican national committeeman. The message read:

"Worst financial disaster Pahokee ever had. Twenty-one inches of rain, 40 square miles under water. Ten thousand-acre crop loss. We need financial help from Government. Relying on you."

The report of 21.85 inches of rain came from the cane experiment station at Canal Point, where a Government gauge is located.

The rains stopped about 10 o'clock this morning.

Traffic on the main highways generally was uninterrupted, although automobiles were plowing through water up to their running boards at numerous points. Lateral roads for the most part were impassable.

F. R. Harrison, police chief at Pahokee, said one white family there had been driven out of its hime by high waters and the Negro section was virtually inundated.

Southern Sugar Co. officials said they believed huge pumps used to drain various sections around the lake could carry the water into the lake in 48 hours.

"Every Associated Press man will share in the responsibility imposed on us by the general election. Therefore:

"Guard against predictions, hasty conclusions or anonymous expression of opinion.

"But we want all the news. Write what can be substantiated. Do not withhold a story because it is partisan if it is news and may be attributed to a responsible source. Statements election night from political headquarters, for example, are desired if they contain news and are accredited to party spokesmen. These statements must speak for themselves, and their leads should be brief, without inference, deduction or other editorial comment.

"In reporting the election, as at all other times, the Associated Press must be fair, truthful and impartial."

WET CONGRESSIONAL MAJORITY FORECAST

Resubmission Is Assured in Both Houses, Election Survey Shows.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

New York, Nov. 7.—Notable wet gains in the next Congress, virtually assuring a resubmission majority in both houses, were indicated tonight by a United Press poll of congressional and senatorial contests.

Antiprohibitionists enter the national elections tomorrow certain to obtain a bloc of 169 House seats no matter which major party candidates win the 435 congressional contests. In these congressional districts as well as in 11 of the 32 long-term senatorial elections both major candidates favor outright and immediate repeal. In a few instances wet candidates are unopposed. These were placed in the "repeal" classification.

In 44 districts "dry" members of Congress are assured; while in one senatorial contest, that of Mrs. Hattie Caraway, of Arkansas, a prohibition victory is certain. Mrs. Caraway has only nominal opposition for reelection to the seat once held by her husband, the former Senate Democratic leader. In all cases, both congressional and senatorial candidates were classified in the poll according to their campaign statements.

Drys Also Claim Gains.

In addition, eighteen House seats will either go to outright repealists or to candidates standing on their respective party platforms. Seven senatorial contests are in the same classification. Thus, a minimum of 187 members of Congress who have declared either for repeal or resubmission must be elected as well as 18 senators.

Antiprohibitionists are, of course, claiming extensive gains in addition to their certain victories. They confidently predict the defeat of enough prohibitionist candidates to insure at least a substantial resubmission majority.

Of congressional candidates willing definitely to express themselves on the controversial prohibition question, 293 Democrats are running on "wringing wet" platforms. A total of 178 Republican candidates have declared for repeal.

Platform Indorsements.

Twenty-one Republicans have announced themselves as "standing on their platform," while seven Democrats have contented themselves with indorsing their "complete" party declaration.

Ninety-eight Republicans are running for the House as drys and 46 Democrats have repudiated their national platform to indorse the retention of the eighteenth amendment.

In the senatorial elections 10 Republican candidates are running as wets, 10 as drys and 6 on the national platform; 25 Democrats have declared for repeal; 2 are dry and 6 have indorsed the platform.

In Minnesota, where political experts are predicting the election of a minimum of two Farmer-Labor representatives, the expectation is that these will incline toward resubmission and modification. Representative Paul J. Kvale, Farmer-Labor, running for reelection, had a wet voting record in the last session of Congress. Former Senator Magnus Johnson, running for the House, also favors resubmission.

One-Time "Dry" South.

All Socialist candidates are pledged to a platform which provides repeal and Government control of the liquor traffic.

An analysis of State statistics on the prohibition status of congressional candidates revealed that the one-time "dry" South will send a number of repeal members of Congress to the next Congress.

Alabama is certain to elect five representatives pledged to the national platform. Florida will have a minimum of one repealist; Louisiana, three; North Carolina, one; Texas, three, and Virginia, one. In addition, the entire Democratic congressional and senatorial slate in Kentucky is pledged to repeal, while in other Southern elections Democratic wets will in all probability be returned.

New York leads all States in its assured antiprohibitionist House vote with 43. New Jersey will have 13; Ohio, 7; Pennsylvania, 16; Wisconsin, 7; California, 5; Connecticut, 6; Illinois, 17; Indiana, 5 repealists and resubmissionists; Massachusetts, 11; Michigan, 10, and Missouri, 7.

Texas lead, in uncontested dry votes, assured with 14; Mississippi is second with 7.

Precautions Taken To Prevent Frauds

Pennsylvania Voting to Be Observed by House Investigators.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Ragon, of Arkansas, chairman of the House campaign fund investigating committee, yesterday said a number of committee investigators were in Pennsylvania to guard against irregularities in the elections today.

They are under the supervision of Representative Loring Black (Democrat), New York. They were employed in view of complaints reaching Ragon, he said, that an attempt would be made to influence the count of the ballots and the voters. Warren Van Dyke, of Harrisburg, Democratic State chairman, informed the campaign fund investigating committee that he was told attempts would be made "to steal the Pennsylvania election."

Red Kills Rancher And Self in West

Bodies Taken From Ashes of Barn Near Divide in Colorado.

Craig, Colo., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—From the mountain country near Great Divide, 40 miles from here, today came an account of the killing of a rancher, the suicide of his slayer and mysterious burning of the barn in which their bodies were found.

Jack Morgan, rancher, was shot to death as he entered his barn Saturday morning. Coroner I. J. Robacer said Joe Pon, Russian immigrant and rancher, was the slayer. Pon's body was found with Mr. Morgan's. He, too, had been shot to death.

Authorities said Pon had accused Mr. Morgan of reporting to sheriff's officers that he had several stolen articles in his possession.

Text of President's Election Eve Radio Address Made at Elko, Nev.

On Board Presidential Special at Elko, Nev., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Following is the text of President Hoover's election eve radio address from the parlor car of his train here.

I am speaking this last word of the campaign from the train en route to my home to vote.

We have been through an arduous campaign. It has been almost unique as a campaign of education in great domestic and international problems which have arisen out of events of the last fifteen years.

I have endeavored to place these problems before the people as I see them from the facts and experience that have come to me in the past years. I wished the people to realize more intimately the difficulties with which their Government has been confronted, the disasters which have been averted and the forces which have been mobilized for their support and protection.

I hope from these discussions they will realize the great crisis we have successfully passed and the unprecedented measures taken which have been designed solely that we might protect and restore the system of life and government endeared to us over 150 years that we would otherwise have wrecked our homes and our firesides. But more than that, I hope I have given an understanding that these measures have been designed for counterattack upon this crisis. These measures are now demonstrating their strength and effectiveness not only at home but abroad, evidences of which are multiplying throughout the country in the return of more than half a million men to work monthly now that we have again resumed the road toward prosperity.

I wish to emphasize the greatest function of the American citizen, the one which each of us should perform tomorrow. The ballot is the most sacred individual act which preserves the great system of self-government, which we have inherited and should carry forward at any cost. It is a direct opportunity for every citizen to match his views in terms of equality with every other citizen as to the policies and kind of government they wish to carry out in the next four years. And I have a deep feeling that the choice you make now is more than the choice for another four years. There is great divergence in philosophy of government between the parties which may affect events over a generation. A mistaken choice may hazard the welfare of our children and our children's children. I have been fighting that the wrong course may not be adopted not by appeal to destructive emotion, but by truth and logic. I have tried to dissolve the mirage of promises by the reality of facts.

G. O. P. Is Described As Party of Progress.

I am a believer in party Government. It is only through party organization that our people can give coherent expression to their views upon great issues. There is no other way except by revolution, and we in America have ordained that the ballot shall be used for peaceful determination, not violence.

We are a Nation of progressives. We wish to see our Nation march forward. We differ strongly as to the method to progress. I differ with the principles and views advocated by our opponents, but it is not my purpose to review them at this moment. I feel deeply that the Republican party has been the party of progress in our history from the day of Abraham Lincoln. It has built the progress of the Nation upon the foundation of national principles and national ideals.

We are a Nation of homes from which the accomplishment of individuals is nurtured by the maximum freedom in an ordered liberty. The ultimate goal of our progress is to build for security and happiness in these homes where the inspiration of our religious faiths will implant in our children those principles of social order and idealism and where our Government will contribute in safeguarding their future opportunity for them.

The action of our Nation has been modified and benefited by the enfranchisement of our women. They, equally with the men, bear the shocks from economic disaster. With them lies largely the guardianship of the fundamental ideals because, concentrated in their lives and their responsibilities, is a solicitude for the preservation of the home and the inspiration for the future of our children. And in these labors our Government can contribute to strengthen their accomplishments and their influence.

They gave with lavish hands, not only to childhood, but as well to the creation of those conserving customs upon which are builded all the blessings of our ordered government. Thus they give to government a large measure of the true strength of its foundations. It is but just that they receive back, in return, all that government can give them to assure them of security and the enlargement of their equal opportunity to widen the field for the use of their powers of mind and spirit.

Stresses Women's Work For Peace of World.

It is they who are mobilizing new public regard to our obligations to home and children of the future; it is they who are mobilizing public opinion on the maintenance of peace in the world.

The men of our country carry the front line of battle, through their initiative, their enterprise, their hopes, their courage.

The immediate question before our country is, in whose direction should be the measures by which we shall emerge from our present difficulties? In the longer view our problems are the questions that the world should have peace, that the prosperity of the Nation shall be diffused to all, that we shall build more strongly the ideal of equal opportunity for all our people, that we shall secure that obedience to law which is essential to assurance of life in our institutions, that honesty and righteousness in business shall confirm the confidence of our people in their institutions and laws, that our Government shall contribute to leadership in these matters.

It is my deep conviction that for the welfare of the United States, the Republican party should continue to administer the Government. Those men and women who have supported the party over these many years should not be led astray by false gods arrayed in the rainbow colors of promises. They have but to review the performance and the sense of responsibility, the constructive action, the maintenance of national ideals by the Republican party in every national crisis, including the present, in opposition to the destructive forces of sectional and group action of our opponents.

Election day is more than a day set for the casting of our several ballots. There is a solemnity in the feeling of that day, the sense of being in the presence of a great invisible power when the united people of a Nation give their final judgment on great issues. We can not feel that any human power alone can give us such emotions; rather, we must trust that we are sensing the movements of the rule of the universe in whose benificience and favor we have been blessed through all our history.

As a final word, I wish to convey my deep gratitude to the many hundreds of thousands of people who have come to stations and to meetings to welcome and encouage me duirng the past month, and to the many millions who have responded to me over the radio. I wish to express my gratitude to the young men and women who have organized their special movement to my support, for in them lies a special energy, an idealism which deserves and inspires the country; to the veterans' service leagues whose tested patriotism has supported me; to the devoted women who, realizing the results at stake, have worked untiringly for the return of this administration, and to the organizations of men throughout the country who have been unceasing through this campaign in their presentation to the American people of the principles and ideals for which I have stood.

Four years ago I stated that I conceived the Presidency as more than an administrative office. It is a power for leadership, bringing coordination of the forces of business and cultural life in every city, town and countryside. The Presidency is more than executive responsibility. It is the symbol of America's high purpose. The President must represent the Nation's ideals, and he must also represent them to the Nations of the world. After four years of experience, I still regard this as a supreme obligation.

Hoover Gets His 21-Gun Salute—With Dynamite

Elko, Nev., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Local Republican leaders found a way out, although they were unable to locate a single firable cannon in the whole State of Nevada to boom a salute to President Hoover on his stop here tonight.

They hit upon the alternative of setting off 21 blasts of dynamite as the Presidential train entered town. Experienced hard-rock miners were assigned to touch off the explosives.

California Awaiting Hoover With Nonpartisan Reception

Gov. Rolph to Board Special Train and Accompany Party to San Francisco, Where Official Greetings Will Be Extended.

San Francisco, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—The heat of a presidential campaign at its very climax was tempered with local pride here tonight as citizens of varying political leanings arranged a welcome for Herbert Hoover, Stanford graduate, foster son of California and President of the United States, who is coming home to vote.

State, city and college campus figured in the reception plans. Gov. James Rolph, jr., issued a statement welcoming the President. Robert Gros, of Salt Lake City, head of the Democratic students' organization at Stanford University, urged the members to participate in the welcome there tomorrow. Mayor Angelo Rossi asked San Francisco to give Mr. Hoover a nonpartisan welcome.

Gov. Rolph, himself a Republican, announced the reception in Sacramento would be nonpartisan in nature.

He said he would board the presidential special train some time prior to its scheduled arrival in the capital at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow and accompany the Hoover party as far as San Francisco.

Arriving in Oakland at 11:10 a. m., the presidential party will cross the bay to San Francisco on a ferry, accompanied by Mayor Rossi's welcoming committee. The plans called for passage up Market street to the San Francisco City Hall, where the President will receive the official greetings of the city.

From the city hall the presidential party, in fourteen motor cars, will head southward through the peninsula cities to Palo Alto, arriving there at 3:10 p. m. The President will head for Stanford campus, which he has not seen since leaving for Washington after his election in 1928.

After ceremonies there the caravan will move up Santa Ynez road, leading to the Hoover home on the campus.

At the Hoover home Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr., and their three children, and Allan Hoover, the President's second son, will be waiting.

Republicans Denied Court Floor for Election Talks

Considerable furore and hubbub arose at the King George County Courthouse yesterday, when Judge Frederick C. Coleman, of the Circuit Court of Virginia, is said to have refused to allow Republican speakers time during a one-hour recess of the court, granted for political speeches.

It is reported that Frederick L. Flynn, an attorney, of Alexandria, asked the judge for permission to use the courtroom for political speeches following the adjournment of court, which is said to be customary on the eve of an election.

Instead of granting that request, Judge Coleman is said to have announced a recess of one hour would be granted and that O'Connor Goolrich would be recognized to speak during the recess and no other speakers would be recognized. Goolrich urged support of the Democratic ticket in his talk. George Leich objected to that procedure and requested that J. E. Spaulding, of Alexandria, Republican candidate for Congress from the Eighth Virginia District, be allowed to speak.

When Judge Coleman refused to relent Mr. Leich is said to have spoken briefly from the courthouse steps, and later the Republican speakers held a meeting in a building near the courthouse.

Mrs. Roosevelt to Teach On Election Day, as Usual

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—The wife of the Democratic candidate for President left for Hyde Park late this afternoon, about two-thirds of the way through what she described as the first of "just two good active days."

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt taught school as usual today. She is going to teach school tomorrow, too—and the next day.

She finished with her classes at noon, ate lunch in a sandwich shop, did some shopping, called on a sick friend, and wrote some letters before taking the train for Hyde Park.

Tonight she had a seat at the meeting in Poughkeepsie and listened to her husband's final campaign speech.

"I couldn't miss that," she said. "You know, whatever he has been running for, Franklin always has made his last campaign speech the night before election day in Poughkeepsie."

After the speech Mrs. Roosevelt planned to motor back to New York, so that she would be here to meet her classes as usual at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

She will teach until noon tomorrow, motor back to Hyde Park, go to vote with the governor, drive back to New York with him, have an early dinner, and arrive at the Biltmore Hotel about 7 o'clock to get election returns.

At midnight there will be a supper at the Biltmore for the national Democratic headquarters organization and for some of the family's friends.

D. C. Writer, 94, Will Cast Vote for Hoover in Indiana

One vote for Herbert Hoover in Indiana today will be cast by William H. Smith, 94 years old, of 1418 Perry place northwest, believed to the oldest newspaper writer in the United States.

Mr. Smith, who has voted for every President since Abraham Lincoln, and who began his career as a newspaper man in Lincoln's second administration, left Washington Sunday by automobile with a delegation from the Republican State committee. He was due in Indianapolis yesterday afternoon where he was to make a speech supporting President Hoover.

Mr. Smith has written political news for Washington and Indiana newspapers since 1865. He was a member of the corps of Capital correspondents who covered the House and Senate when the group numbered only eight.

Leaders in G. O. P. Subpenaed in Quiz

Philadelphia, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Edward Martin, Republican State chairman, was among those subpenaed late today by a congressional subcommittee investigating alleged election law violations.

S. Davis Wilson, of Philadelphia, special counsel, said Martin would be asked to furnish books showing all contributions to the State Republican political funds. Other subpenaed included W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad; William L. Nevin, president of Wanamaker Stores; Conrad N. Lauer, president of the Philadelphia Gas Works Co.; Jacob Ginsburg, publisher of the Philadelphia Jewish World; James M. Hazlett, chairman of the Republican city committee, and all of the 48 city Republican ward leaders.

Leader Says Labor Will Back Hoover

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—William L. Hutcheson, general president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, in a political address released by Republican national committee headquarters tonight, and labor had but one voting choice—for President Hoover and the Republican party.

American workers, he said, were concerned with three problems—maintenance of wage standards, betterment of working conditions and assurance of continuous employment. The Republican program offered solution of the problems; the Democratic plans did not, Hutcheson said.

He praised the high protective tariff of the Republican administration as guaranteeing American workmen higher wages than those they would receive under the competitive tariff of the Democrats.

MRS. SOUTH URGES 'HOME AND HOOVER'

Wife of Envoy to Portugal Tells Women to Back President's Ideals.

Chicago, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—The slogan, "Home and Hoover," was held out to American women tonight as an election watchword by Mrs. Christine Bradley South, of Frankfort, Ky., in a political address.

Mrs. South, daughter of a former governor of Kentucky and wife of John Glover South, Minister to Portugal, in her address released through Republican national headquarters, said that "in life, in word, in thought and service, Herbert Hoover embodies the social, moral, and spiritual ideals which justify women's participation in politics."

"The women of America know that he created and maintained the 'Better Homes' movement—that out of his heart came the Home Loan Bank, and that his plan today saves every building and loan association, and safeguards the wage-earners' investments that turn rent into ownership of homes. He made, directs and controls our one, mighty and only program to save the Nation—to stabilize its finances, preserve and extend its credit, restore its business, and bring the wage earner back to work.

"Do not by your vote scrap the plan and the planner," she ai'.

Virginia Legion Chiefs To Gather in Richmond

Richmond, Va., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—M. E. Bristow, State commander of the American Legion, announced today that he has summoned all department and post officers of the legion in the State for their annual conference here Saturday, November 26.

Cabinet Majority To Vote at Home

Stimson, Adams and Chapin Take Advantage of Absentee Ballots.

(Associated Press.)

Seven members of President Hoover's Cabinet who for the most part have campaigned throughout the country, today will vote at home. Three departmental heads have availed themselves of absentee voting privileges and will be in Washington.

Secretary Stimson will be in Washington, returning from his Long Island home. He mailed his ballot some time ago.

Secretary Mills, with a last campaign address in Washington last night, planned to leave for his New York City home immediately afterward.

Secretary Hurley of the War Department is at home in Tulsa, Okla; Attorney General Mitchell, at St. Paul, Minn.; Postmaster General Brown, at Toledo; Secretary Wilbur, at Palo Alto, and Secretary Hyde, at Trenton, Mo.

Secretary Adams of the Navy Department, who entrusted the mail to carry his ballot to his Massachusetts home, is in Washington, as is Secretary Chapin of the Commerce Department, who mailed his vote to Detroit.

Secretary Doak of the Labor Department, who is in Washington, will cast his ballot at Livingston Heights, Va.

tion "are now demonstrating their strength and effectiveness."

"We have again resumed the road toward prosperity," he asserted. The President's address was briefer and gave less mention of the Democratic party than those he has delivered elsewhere in traveling more than 10,000 miles during the last month.

President Hoover headed across Utah's mountains toward Elko today after telling a Salt Lake City audience that the Democratic party had resorted to "intellectual dishonesty" by "misrepresenting the origins" of the depression.

As an unscheduled part of his halt today in Salt Lake City, the Chief Executive called upon Heber J. Grant, president of the Latter Day Saints Church, of which Senator Smoot is an apostle.

Mr. Grant recently was operated upon in Chicago, and his physician forbade him to attend the political rally at which the President spoke. He did allow him to come to his offices near the Mormon Temple, however, and Mr. Hoover visited him there. He was accompanied by Mrs. Hoover and by Senator and Mrs. Smoot.

Hits Claims on Slump.

Speaking earlier to a throng that jammed the aisles and overflowed the big Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City, Mr. Hoover reiterated earlier assertions that Democratic leaders had sought to "play politics with human misery" in seeking to show that the depression was "brought about by the Republican administration."

"This phase of the campaign has been exploded," he asserted. "It was based on the assumption that the American people were an ignorant people, without knowledge of history or of current events.

"They have had the political foolishness to misjudge that the intelligence of the American people would accept their claim that boom on the New York Stock E[illegible], participated in by Democra[illegible]ll as Republicans, was the [illegible] of this world calamity. Th[illegible]empted to establish this claim [illegible]pite of the fact that we have had [illegible]illiar booms fifteen times in the last century and, deplorable as they are, they have never yet jeopardized our Republic or brought catastrophe to the world."

Praise for Smoot.

The President directed part of his address to the political supoprt of Senator Smoot, of Utah. After Smoot had introduced him as "the next President of the United States," Mr. Hoover brought the crowd to its feet cheering by his praise of the Utahan.

He said there was no doubt but that Smoot would be returned to the Senate and declared he was without equal in his knowledge of the Government.

A crowd of several thousand persons greeted President Hoover as he made a rear platform appearance at Ogden en route from Salt Lake City to the West.

Harry Byrd Urges Roosevelt Victory

Former Governor Predicts Democratic Landslide in Halifax Speech.

Halifax, Va., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Former Gov. Harry F. Byrd, in an address at the courthouse here today, predicted Gov. Roosevelt would receive the electoral vote of 43 States and would be elected President by the greatest popular vote in history.

Expressing confidence in the integrity and sincerity of President Hoover, Mr. Byrd asked his hearers to vote for Roosevelt rather than against Hoover.

Henry W. Anderson, Richmond Republican, was accused of "telling a half truth" about the financial administration of Virginia, and the speaker said that prosperity can not return until products of the soil, mine and forest afford a living wage to those who produce them.

Commonwealth's Attorney Marshall B. Booker introduced Mr. Byrd, who left for his home near Winchester immediately following his address.

Roosevelt's Closing Speech To New York Neighbors

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 7 (A.P.). The text of Franklin D. Roosevelt's final speech of the campaign in Columbus Hall here tonight follows:

For twenty-two years it has been my custom to end every political campaign with my friends and neighbors of all political parties here in Dutchess County. I began my public service here many years ago.

I have learned much of what I know of human life and of political affairs in country and in city from you, my friends. I have held to the belief—and I still hold it firmly—that you, whom I know so well, represent in a great degree the ideals, the hopes, the standards and the problems of all Americans.

This year I continue my custom, although science and circumstance have widened the circle of my neighbors. In earlier years I talked to you alone, then to the whole State. Now the entire country is within earshot, and my travels and contacts have made many Americans everywhere, I hope, my friends and neighbors.

These many weeks of the campaign have been crowded with action, motion, change. They have been marked by a thousand impressions. The bare facts do not tell the story. I have traveled many miles—it doesn't matter exactly how many. I have visited many States—the number isn't significant. I have spoken many times—my hearers will be kind and not tell me just how many. And I have seen millions and millions of people.

Will Never Forget Receptions During Tours.

Statistics, numbers, percentages, applied to human things like these, take from—they certainly do not add to—their strong vital importance. The impressions count; the vivid flashes tell us of the essential unity of things. Some of them I shall never forget. The great crowd under the lights before the Capitol at Jefferson City, the patient attention of the Kansans under the hot sun at Topeka, the long day through Wyoming with the strong, direct kindness of the people who came, some of them, hundreds of miles, to bid me welcome; the men and women who made a great city in the valley of Salt Lake, the stricken but dauntless miners of Butte, the world consciousness of Seattle, the citizens of Portland, who sustained me with keen understanding through a long technical discussion of public utilities. A thousand such impressions crowd my memory. Farmers again from the California valleys gathered under the sun at Sacramento, the welcome of San Francisco, that magnificent city where the old East meets the new West; Los Angeles, the miracle of a city, built, as history measures time, in a moment.

I shall never forget the sunset at McCook, Nebr., and the strong, progressive farmers. Sioux City and Milwaukee and Chicago and Detroit, Pittsburgh and Indianapolis and Springfield and Louisville. And then my neighbors in my Southern home in Georgia. The children in wheelchairs at Warm Springs—also happy in a great hope—and North to New England at Portland and Boston and Providence and Hartford.

Each of these memories and many others have their individual significance to me. If I can catch them all together and give them vitality and meaning and life, I shall have fulfilled the purpose of my travels. These people, all of them—these neighbors of each and every State—have made one thing clear: They have expressed some hope in the future, confidence that things will be better. I set out to learn, more than to teach. All of you, East and West and North and South, have helped me.

Invigorating Tonic Of a Change Anticipated.

And you have graciously helped me, too. You may not universally have agreed with me, but you have universally been kind and friendly to me. The great understanding and tolerance of America came out to meet me—everywhere. For all this you have my heartfelt gratitude.

Out of this unity that I have seen we may build the strongest strand to lift ourselves out of this depression.

If all of this multitude of my friends and neighbors give expression tomorrow to your united confidence in the invigorating tonic of a change, I may in some modest way bring this unity of purpose to practical fulfillment.

A man comes to wisdom in many years of public life. He knows well that when the light of favor shines upon him it comes not, of necessity, that he himself is important. Favor comes because for a brief moment in the great space of human change and progress some general human purpose finds in him a satisfactory embodiment.

To be the means through which the ideals and hopes of the American people may find a greater realization calls for the best in any man. I seek to be only the humble emblem of this restoration.

If that be your verdict, my friends of America and my next-door neighbors of Dutchess County, and that be the confident purpose behind your verdict, I shall in the humility that suits such a great confidence seek to meet this great expectation of yours. With your help and your patience and your generous good will we can mend the torn fabric of our common life.

On this very eve of the exercise of the greatest right of the American electorate, I bid you good night. And I add to that, God bless you all.

FARLEY SEES SURE NATION-WIDE SWEEP

He Calls Hoover "Drifter" in His Concluding Campaign Address.

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, concluded his final campaign address tonight by declaring that "as surely as the sun rises, the people of America on Tuesday will elect Franklin D. Roosevelt as the next President of the United States."

He reiterated his prediction that the Roosevelt-Garner ticket "will sweep the country."

"There is not a single leading liberal member of the House or Senate," he declared, "who is now supporting President Hoover, and it is perfectly obvious that if he were reelected it would mean the beginning of four more years of turmoil, uncertainty and procrastination at Wasington."

"The issue," he also said, "is whether we shall have a leader or a drifter; the Democrats present a leader; the Republicans present a drifter."

Farley called voting for President Hoover "like writing a blank check."

"To use the language of the baseball field," he said, "Mr. Hoover and his associates have had three strikes, and now they're out."

HEAVY REGISTRATION SHOWS SOUTH READY

500,000 More Dixie Voters Than Were Reported in 1928 Battle.

Atlanta, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Keen interest of the South in the general election tomorrow is indicated by approximately 500,000 more voters qualified to participate in eleven Southern States over the number of 1928.

Exclusive of Texas, the registration for the eleven States this year is 5,027,111, compared with 4,537,340 in 1928. Of the number qualified four years ago in this same territory, 3,600,219 voted.

Kentucky, one of the principal battlegrounds, with approximately 950,000, leads the eleven States. Her increase over four years ago is 100,000. South Carolina likewise shows 100,000 more voters qualified, the number there being 300,000, as compared with 200,000 in 1928.

In Kentucky, where Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democrat, is opposed for reelection by Maurice H. Thatcher, Republican, the counting of ballots will not begin until 10 o'clock on the morning of November 9. A Kentucky law provides that the count is to start at that hour in the county courthouses on the day following the election.

Both Claim Florida.

Democratic and Republican camps both made statements today claiming victories in Florida. Headquarters for W. J. Howey, Republican candidate for governor, said he would get a majority of 65,000 votes. J. P. Newell, Democratic State campaign manager, predicted the State and national tickets would win by 130,000 to 140,000 votes.

Virginia was the scene of a vigorous congressional campaign following the action of the State's highest court in declaring unconstitutional the redistricting act. J. Murray Hooker, Virginia Democratic chairman, predicts not less than a 75,000 majority and says the greatest majority in history for the Democratic ticket would be no surprise. Robert H. Angell, Republican chairman, while making no definite prediction, said he would not concede the State "by any means." Angell said Hooker predicted a 50,000 majority in 1928 and missed it 75,000, adding the Hooker prediction of 75,000 now means a close vote.

Alabama for Roosevelt.

Soliciting of votes, circulation of printed matter, speech making or political advertising is prohibited in Alabama on election day. The Democratic headquarters for North Alabama, in a formal statement today, said "Roosevelt would roll up 100,000 majority in Alabama." The Republicans issued no statement.

The North Carolina Republican headquarters issued a statement, claiming the State's electoral vote for Hoover and saying there is a decided drift to Republican congressional and State tickets. The Democrats countered with predictions of 150,000 majority for their State and national tickets.

The three candidates for governor in Tennessee continued their speech-making tonight and each claimed victory. The candidates are Hill McAlister, Democrat; John E. McCall, Republican, and Lewis C. Pope, who calls himself the candidate of the "staight-out Democrats."

Long Sees Party Sweep.

John E. Jackson, chairman of the Republican State central committee in Louisiana, claims Hoover will get around 100,000 votes in that State. This would be the largest Republican vote for many years. Senator Huey P. Long, State Democratic leader, said Roosevelt "will sweep the State."

Senator John S. Cohen, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, issued a statement predicting the election of Roosevelt, and saying to the people of Georgia:

"Will Georgia let any other State of relative population exceed her Democratic majority? I don't think so. Let every Democrat in Georgia go to the polls on Tuesday and the outcome will bring joy to the heart of Franklin Roosevelt and ring around the Nation."

AS MARINE BAND HONORED SOUSA'S MEMORY

The Marine Band yesterday led musical organizations throughout the country in concerts dedicated to the late John Philip Sousa on the seventy-sixth anniversary of his birth. The band, under the leadership of Capt. Taylor Branson (left), presented a program of Sousa's works. Second Leader Arthur Witcomb is sounding taps in honor of the march king.

CONCERTS OVER U.S. PAY SOUSA HOMAGE

U. S. Marine Band Presents Memorial Program Here; Post March Played.

Honoring the memory of John Philip Sousa, America's great march king, the United States Marine Band, led by Capt. Taylor Branson, yesterday presented a special memorial program at the Marine Barracks.

Musical organizations throughout the country joined in the tribute. Memorial concerts were presented by school and civic orchestras in all parts of the Nation. The High School Band and Orchestra Association and the National Society for the Advancement of Music sponsored programs dedicated to the great maestro.

Included in the program of the Marine Band was the "Washington Post March," written by Sousa for this newspaper years ago. Programs everywhere featured many of his great works.

Sousa was born in Washington November 6, 1856. He first enlisted as an apprentice in the Marine Band in 1868. He was made leader of the band in 1880 and served at its head until 1892.

A recognized musical genius, Sousa died last March while on a musical tour. His death was sudden, coming as he prepared for a concert at Reading, Pa.

Paul-Boncour Applauded.

Paris, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Joseph Paul-Boncour, minister for war, was congratulated by the cabinet today after a report on his presentation of the new French disarmament plan to the world disarmament conference bureau last week. The plan made a favorable impression, he said, and the premier does not expect any further objections from the other powers.

VOTING AND FISHING TO OCCUPY GARNER

Candidate Will Depart for Devil's Lake Before Returns Are In.

Uvalde, Tex., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—After casting his ballot, John N. Garner, vice presidential nominee, will go fishing tomorrow instead of sitting at home here to await the verdict of millions of voters.

He returned early today from a dove-shooting expedition, in which a friend said he bagged the limit; made an inspection trip of his home and ranch; renewed old friendships downtown and then went to the garage of Ross Brumfield, to supervise preparation of an automobile and a canoe for the two-day trip to Devil's Lake, near Del Rio, Tex.

Garner was expected to cast his ballot early tomorrow morning and then start at once with Brumfield and C. B. Morrison, another friend, for one of the best fishing spots in south Texas.

It was believed the vice presidential nominee would not get the returns from the election until he returned to Uvalde sometime late Wednesday afternoon.

Garner slipped quietly into town Saturday night, only a few friends and his family knowing of his arrival. He spent yesterday bagging doves "somewhere on the river," as his son, Tully Garner, described it, and efforts to reach him were unavailing.

The Speaker is a candidate again for Congress as well as his party's choice for Vice President. In the event the Roosevelt-Garner ticket is victorious he will step out as Speaker of the House.

ALLEGED SWINDLERS SEIZED IN NEW YORK

Kansas City, Mo., and Omaha, Nebr., and William Greenhause, 33, a tailor, of New York.

Kohler is alleged to have won Hazelbacker's confidence by the old pocketbook ruse—dropping a wallet containing a $250,000 letter of credit where Hazelbacker was sure to find it.

When Hazelbacker returned it to him he refused a cash reward but Kohler insisted on rewarding him and let him in on "the ground floor" of a stock deal by which he made a $3,000 profit immediately.

He then was entertained lavishly and induced to go to Canada for an "important deal."

At offices in Montreal and Quebec Hazelbacher was introduced to other members of the gang and the deal arranged. At is conclusion Hazelbacker was told the profit was $250,000, but before the pay-off he and Kohler were required to post checks for $165,000 each, "to prove they could have paid off if they had lost."

Returning to the office the next day, Hazelbacker found it dismantled the gang is alleged to have rushed his check to New York by air mail and cashed it before he could stop payment.

School Embezzler Gets Prison Term

Attorney's Plea for Mercy Fails to Save Thomas From San Quentin.

Los Angeles, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—A sentence of one to fourteen years in San Quentin Prison was imposed in superior court today on Elliott B. Thomas, a former Redondo Beach school superintendent, who recently confessed forgery of school warrants, after he had been detected in a kidnaping-murder hoax.

In a plea for leniency, his attorney, George Penney, reminded Judge William T. Aggeler that Thomas had returned voluntarily from Washington State "to take his medicine." Penney also said Thomas had restored $2,600 of the $8,000 school money he took and surrendered the motor car in which he went to Washington as "E. T. Sherwood" to marry a Seattle girl.

Thomas disappeared a month ago. Leaving his school offices in disorder, to give the impression he was the kidnaping and murder victim of safe-crackers surprised at their work.

Social Registerite Dies From Accidental Gas

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Miss Mildred Harbeck, 30, listed in the social register, was found dead in bed today by her sister, Helen, in their four-story brownstone house at 306 Lexington avenue.

Police listed the death as accidental, gas from a disconnected tube from a stove being the cause.

Supreme Court Upholds Maine Car License Law

(Associated Press.)

John P. H. Chandler, of Florida, will have to buy a Maine automobile driver's license if he wants to pilot a car over the State's highways.

Chandler took his challenge to the regulation requiring motorists from other States to get a Maine license, all the way to the Supreme Court. It was dismissed yesterday.

Roosevelt to Get Guard At Once If He Is Chosen

(United Press.)

Crack Secret Service agents are ready to guard Franklin D. Roosevelt and his family at a moment's notice if he is elected President today.

In revealing that the guard already had been selected, W. H. Moran, chief of the Secret Service, said yesterday:

"My men will give Gov. Roosevelt adequate protection from the second we know he has won."

"But, how will you know definitely enough to assign the guard?" he was asked.

"We'll know," Moran smiled. "Just leave that to me."

THE HUNTER HUNTED!

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the famous artist, R. Atkinson Fox ... inspired by the battle between an enraged bull buffalo and the savage Indian hunters whose lances roused the beast to furious charge. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"

THE FATEFUL DAY.

The great American voter now takes charge of the country's destiny. His decision affects the future and will cause speculation hereafter as to "what might have been." What would have followed if Charles E. Hughes had been elected in 1916? A few votes at that time might have set in motion a chain of events entirely different from those which have become history. The weight of opinion on election morning swings the scales in Gov. Roosevelt's favor. His election would not be a surprise. The reelection of Mr. Hoover would be a surprise.

Mr. Hoover's vigorous last-hour campaign has won many votes by informing the public as to what he has done and refused to do. His achievements in combatting a multitude of evils ought to be a matter of pride to all citizens. Gov. Roosevelt generously acknowledged the public debt to Mr. Hoover when he said at Pittsburgh: "No man with a spark of humanity can fail to sympathize with our responsible leaders in hours of crisis. Politics or no politics, I pay my tribute to the devotion of the President. It is not true to say that he has not been unremitting in his efforts."

If the people should decide that another hand shall take the helm it will be incumbent upon all citizens to accept the decision loyally, with a resolve to be helpful to the new President in the discharge of duties which will tax him to the utmost. No one knows better than President Hoover what an appalling task is imposed upon the occupant of the White House. He would be the first to ask that his successor be not hampered by unreasonable criticism or misrepresentation.

The re-election of Mr. Hoover would be the signal for a cessation of sharpshooting at the man chosen to bear the national burden. However deeply many voters may feel that a change is necessary, a verdict denying the change ought to be followed by a resolve to stand by the President in his efforts for the general welfare. Whether Roosevelt or Hoover, the next President will need public confidence and encouragement. The depression is a stubborn public enemy, with a thousand weapons aimed at the President of the United States. As this enemy begins to retreat he digs new entrenchments and sets up fresh barb-wire entanglements which must be swept aside by the united rush of the army of Americans. The President can lead, but the army must do the fighting.

Today's election ought to bring about a more responsible policy in Congress. The interference of minorities can be nullified by more patriotic cooperation by the two great parties for the public good. The temptation to make political capital out of public relief measures will be diminished with the election out of the way. There will be no excuse for delay in enacting relief legislation which is acknowledged to be necessary. Bickering over detail and methods can be and should be abandoned, whether Hoover or Roosevelt be sponsor for necessary new measures.

COMMUNITY CO-OPERATION.

Organization for the Community Chest is proceeding with vigor. The people of Washington are determined to take care of the needs of this community. They will do so through the Community Chest, which has established its efficiency and reliability as agent of the public in relieving distress and maintaining worthy benevolent institutions.

Every citizen should be enrolled this year as a supporter of the organization that works in behalf of all. The volunteers who are about to go forth are giving both time and money, and are setting a splendid example of civic spirit. They are the embodiment of the will of Washington to take care of its unfortunate and needy ones.

The Post is urging residents of Washington to buy at home. The advice is especially pertinent in view of the generosity with which local merchants, industries and producers support the Community Chest. Patronage given to home industry and home merchants is potent in making the National Capital a self-sustaining community. Every home is made more valuable by the increase of wealth resulting from industrial and commercial growth. Thus the residents of Washington help themselves as well as the needy when they buy at home.

THE SCOTTSBORO CASE.

The United States Supreme Court orders a new trial in the case of seven colored men sentenced to death at Scottsboro, Ala. They were convicted of assaulting two white girls.

This has become a celebrated case on account of the attempt of Communists to capitalize it as an example of the "brutality" of the American system of justice. A band of Communists had made a demonstration at the Capitol just before the Supreme Court handed down its decision. Doubtless Communist propaganda will make the false claim that the protests of the reds were effective in obtaining for the convicted men another chance for their lives.

The court holds that the convicted men were substantially denied the right to have counsel from the time of their arraignment until the trial. This right, in the opinion of the majority, is an indispensable safeguard against injustice, and to deny it is to violate the due process clause of the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution. Two justices dissented, holding that the defendants had had the benefit of able counsel and that they were convicted after a fair trial.

Public opinion doubtless will approve of the decision, which seems to solve a reasonable doubt in favor of men in the shadow of death. If they are guilty, another trial should demonstrate the fact; and the second trial may be expected to be conducted with scrupulous regard for their rights.

GERMANY'S ELECTION.

The result of the German election on Sunday to name a new Reichstag was accurately forecast. As predicted, Hitlerism has begun to decline, but changes in the legislative lineup are not sufficient to bring about any dominating combination of parties, so that Chancellor von Papen's chances of remaining in authority appear to be as good as they were before the election. The former Reichstag opposed the government by the unprecedented vote of 513 to 42, and the new one will be almost equally unfriendly, but the chancellor for the present can continue to rule the Reich through the emergency decrees.

The loss of 2,000,000 votes by Hitler's Nazis sees them counting less than one-third of electorate instead of the majority they so confidently claimed last summer. The party loses 35 members, dropping from 230 to 195 members of the Reichstag, or from nearly 38 per cent of that body to only 33 per cent. The Nationalist, or Von Papen government party, increased its membership from 37 to 51, while the Socialists lost 12 members and the Catholic Centrists 5.

Germany attaches special significance to the continued gains of the Communists, who increased their representation in the Reichstag to 100, a gain of 11 members. Radical gains were shown throughout the country, but the most striking feature of their strength was the victory in Berlin, where Communist votes exceeded those of the Nazis two to one. If the Hitler party begins to disintegrate following this demonstration of waning strength, the Communists undoubtedly will gather in a substantial number of its more radical elements.

It is pointed out that the gain of only 14 members by the Nationalists, giving them a total representation of less than 9 per cent of the Reichstag, can not by any reasoning be considered a vote of commendation from the German people. It is an anomalous situation in which the nation is ruled by such a meagre minority, but the Junker elements in control, supported by the emergency powers of President von Hindenburg, apparently have no intention of relinquishing their grip. Hitler again announces his refusal to cooperate and there is little prospect of Von Papen securing a majority combination to support his cabinet. In this situation the chancellor is likely to challenge the Reichstag to sustain his government or face the alternative of immediate dissolution.

SCUTTLING INDEPENDENCE.

After five months of discussion and public hearings, the Philippine legislature has reverted to a demand for immediate independence. Some months ago Filipino leaders accepted the idea that a period of adjustment would be necessary before the islands could be cut adrift. In accordance with this idea the House of Representatives passed an independence bill in 40 minutes. Now the legislature seems to fear that Congress will grant the islands independence. At least it has set up a series of new barriers to the enactment of an independence bill.

Both the Hawes Senate bill and the Hare House bill are repudiated by this action of the Philippine legislature. Likewise much of the work of the Philippine independence commission in Washington is indirectly censured. In a recent communication to The Post Manuel Roxas, spokesman for the commission, said: "We ask for fair and reasonable terms, but in any event we want our independence." In the new instructions that are being sent from Manila to the commission it is told to accept no arrangement that would place a limitation on sugar exports to the United States at less than 1,500,000 tons. This and other demands by the Philippine legislature leave no chance that an independence bill satisfactory to the Filipinos can be adopted in the near future.

American farmers are working for Philippine independence because they hope to be relieved of competition from the islands. But the Filipinos demand expansion of their American market for farm products. The largest sugar crop the islands ever harvested amounted to 934,000 tons. The instructions being forwarded to the independence commission demand a 60 per cent increase in Filipino sugar exports at the expense of American farmers. It is unthinkable that Congress would accept such an arrangement. If this report is correct, it indicates that Philippine politicians intend to shout for "immediate independence" after having made sure that their demands will not be met.

Another interesting phase of the instructions that are being sent to the independence mission is the opposition to a plebiscite. Why does the legislature now oppose the submission of this issue to the people? Previously the politicians have contended that the Filipino people are united in their demands, and that a plebiscite would be equivalent to independence. Even if the people should vote against independence, it was argued, they would then continue under the American flag of their own will and choice, which would be the essence of freedom. In opposing a plebiscite the politicians seem to fear that the Filipinos would place economic well-being above political idealism, if put to an actual test.

DR. SACASA'S VICTORY.

While not complete, election returns from Nicaragua indicate the triumph of the Liberal party by a substantial majority. This will mean the elevation to the presidency of Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, a man well fitted to lead his country toward peace and progress. Dr. Sacasa is favorably known in Washington, having served here as minister from Nicaragua.

The election was held under the supervision of an American commission and with the assistance of Marines and the native constabulary. Sandino, the northern rebel leader, announces by way of his Mexico City representative that he will not accept the result of the election and boasts that he will capture Managua and call a new election. This election has given the people of Nicaragua a fair opportunity to express their choice, and the handful of rebels and bandits operating in the northern mountains have no just cause for complaint.

With the early withdrawal of the American Marine forces stationed in the country Nicaragua will have absolute control of its own affairs, and the new administration is entitled to the patriotic support of all political elements. There is every reason to believe that the opposition Conservative candidates for President and Vice President, Adolfo Diaz and Gen. Emiliano Chamorro, will lend their support to Dr. Sacasa and his running mate, Rodolfo Espinosa. With the substantial political and business elements of the country behind the new administration it should have little difficulty in coping with the chronic revolutionists of the north.

A large portion of the American people are about to be regarded by another large portion of the people as lacking in a fine sense of discrimination.

What if the outcome depends upon Kentucky, with the ballots locked up until tomorrow? Alee!

BUSIEST OF DICTATORS

From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The great Mediterranean dictator seems after all to be Kemal Pasha and not Mussolini.

The dictator at Rome, with the Fascist Society back of him which celebrated an important tenth anniversary the other day, may have slain his thousands of old notions and conventions, but the dictator at Angora has slain his tens of thousands. The Arabic alphabet has always been unsuited to Turkish phonetics; therefore Kemal abolished it and substituted western Europe's alphabet of Roman origin. He also revolutionized all conceptions of government entertained by Turks.

He changed the observances, customs and even theology of one of the most tenaciously held religions in the world, so that it almost seems a new religion. Supreme exhibit of daring, he even dictated to the women as well as men what they should and must wear, and after they were used to it the women seemed to like it. What venturesomeness on Mussolini's part can match it, brave man as he is?

The English language is what it is because, when an expressive or at least useful word was found in any other tongue, there has never been any hesitation at all about appropriating it. Of a different view are Kemal and a commission he has appointed, and an elaborate crusade against all except pure Turkish diction is planned. It is made the duty of a patriotic Turk, when addressed with words included in a proscribed foreign index, to offer rebuke with stony silence. Repeated offending and indifference to the rebuke will be followed by a stay in jail.

Evidently a Kemal is needed in those movements for a synthetic tongue of universal use. The first of them was Volapuk, devised by Bishop Schleyer in Austria in 1880, and at one time spoken by more than 1,000,000 persons. Ro, Ido, the Idiom Neutral, Latinesce and other synthetic languages have had some vogue.

Words and phrases in all modern languages are becoming so worn and hackneyed that forcible striking expression is a matter of increasing difficulty. Single words also acquire with the years so many different meanings as to cloud speech, some words in English, for instance, having already well-nigh as many different meanings as certain Chinese words.

With everything fresh and sharp and undulled, a synthetic speech scientifically framed might seem to have great promise. The trouble is that a new one seems to go only about so far when its impetus slackens and faddists lose interest in it or turn to a still newer one. With a persistent Kemal to impose it on one whole people or one whole district until everybody was either using it exclusively or was in jail, an artificial language would get such a start that it might really spread into universal use. And one of universal use is a modern need.

PEDESTRIANS' PARADISE.

A restless few of the 1,500 inhabitants of Tangier, Va., may tire of their confinement to that island town in Chesapeake Bay, where there are "no automobiles, no horses and no wagons" and where, indeed, there is but a single street, though many canals, which are crossed by bridges with gaps in the middle to permit the passage of fishing boats.

The pace of community intercourse in such a place can not be swift, says the Providence Journal. No ebb and flow of catapulting vehicles, forcing pedestrians to leap out of their skins. No vile contamination of the atmosphere with carbon monoxide and the fumes of burned oil. No rush and roar of insensate mechanisms in the careless custody of every Tom, Dick and Harry. In short, no artificial and dangerous acceleration of the pulse of life.

You Might Feel as Righteous as Those You Envy if As Ready to Be Satisfied

By ROBERT QUILLEN

STRANGE as it seems in a land of theoretical equality, the handicap responsible for the greatest number of failures is a feeling of inferiority.

In some instances this pathological humility is caused by want of education; in others by poverty; but the most frequent cause, in young people much berated for their faults, is the conviction that they are less righteous than others.

If you are one of these, indict yourself no more. If you are innocent of capital crimes, you doubtless are as "good" as your most self-righteous critic.

True, good people would condemn you if they knew your fault; but without exception they are guilty of other sins, trivial in their own sight, which are in truth no less heinous than yours.

They feel guiltless because their self-respect is so great as to make any wrong thing they do seem right, but vanity doesn't alter facts.

If all transgressions were judged by one capable of honest thinking, those who feel most righteous might be astonished to find themselves rated little above the chief of sinners.

Compare the fast driver and the counterfeiter. Neither is guilty of a crime evil in itself. Both are guilty of violating the law. The two offenses are similar in that neither could result in harm if perfectly done. And the law in both cases is designed to protect the public.

Legally, morally and ethically the two offenders are as like as two black-eyed peas.

But are they equally condemned by the good? Certainly not. The good enjoy fast driving and have neither the ability nor the inclination to counterfeit money. Therefore, speeding is blameless and counterfeiting wicked.

Smuggling is now condemned, but there was a time when the best citizens of America encouraged it and shared its profits.

Self-respecting people do no evil in their own sight, but it doesn't follow that they are blameless. Wrong remains wrong, though the very elect indulge in it.

The rigidly righteous brother who loathes and despises the town drunkard may think himself blameless, but in truth few sins are greater than his own malice and uncharitableness.

Hate evil where you see it. But don't blame yourself too much because others blame themselves too little. The only people free of remorse are those who forgive themselves too easily.

A Woman Cabinet Officer?

Christian Science Monitor.

The attitudes of President Hoover and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt toward women in politics are leading some political prognosticators to predict the installation of a woman member into the hitherto male-monopolized President's Cabinet. No matter which candidate gains the driver's seat on the Nation's administrative wagon for the next four years, a woman is headed for the post of Secretary of Labor, according to reports.

The records of women have shown that the country need not "view with alarm" the possibility of such an appointment. From the ranks of the 10,000,000 female workers in the United States several women of the needed executive experience have arisen, capable of filling high positions satisfactorily.

Loans Decrease.

Houston Post.

From the South, as well as from many other sections of the country, applications for loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation continue to decrease. Some of the banks which were granted loans are not calling for all the funds granted them, because they are finding that they do not need them.

The only fair construction to be placed on this development is that business generally is on the upgrade. The harvesting of the crops has been a factor in the improvement in the South. In some of the best agricultural sections of Texas merchants testify that the farmers are taking care of their recent indebtedness in good shape and the situation is much better than it has been in a good while.

Kansas City Star.

In the attacks and counterattacks of a great campaign the strength and weakness of both sides are brought into the open. Naturally in the heat of debate some of the statements are extreme. Often this serves a useful purpose in calling attention in a dramatic way to points that would escape public notice in a judicial argument. Theodore Roosevelt once remarked that in a campaign he was dealing in posters, not in fine-lined zinc etchings.

As a result of this campaign habit the public has the position of both sides painted in bold colors. From the pictures so painted it can form its own judgment.

Bakers and Ice Cream Workers Urge Support of "Buy in Washington" Campaign.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: The members of local union No. 118, representing the bakery and ice cream workers of the District of Columbia, wish to extend to you their sincere thanks and appreciation for the splendid work you are doing, together with Mr. E. J. Murphy and his committee, in connection with the "Buy in Washington" campaign.

We feel that these efforts have been and are successfully combating the trend toward buying merchandise produced outside of Washington, which, to our certain knowledge, has seriously affected production in our line, as we assume it has in others. A number of our stores are now handling a line of cakes made by a firm in Philadelphia, which, of course, affects sales of our own bakeries. We believe that this practice, if continued, will materially increase the burden upon our Community Chest and tend to offset its good work by adding to our city's unemployed.

However, we are confident that the "Buy in Washington" campaign is doing wonderful work along these lines and we feel that it will have a beneficial effect upon the unemployment situation. We should, therefore, like to see all the other papers in Washington follow your lead in the good you are doing for our movement.

Let us assure you that local 118 and local 33, the Bakery Salesmen's Local Union, are doing everything within their power to assist in making this campaign a success and a benefit to the City of Washington.

Voters Must Eat the Pie They Will Make Today.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wonder if many of us fully realize our obligations to ourselves, our neighbors and to our country?

Are we really doing a good deal of earnest, constructive thinking, realizing that what we think and what we do make us what we are, individually and collectively, now and hereafter?

Let us carefully and conscientiously consider the types of men for whom we shall vote.

SAFETY SECONDS.

A recently formed official committee on street and highway safety in Pennsylvania is promulgating the slogan, "Take Time to Play Safe," says the Minnesota Highway News. Capt. Kuch, of the Minnesota highway patrol, says that where motoring is in mind the same thought might be expressed in the two words: "Safety Seconds." The two or three seconds required to make sure of what is the safe thing can mean the difference between an accident and no accident in thousands of cases of passing vehicles on the highways or meeting them at intersections.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

NEIGHBORING.

I remember when a boy that my mother used to say:
"Mind the house a little while, for I won't be long away.
I'm just going 'cross the street for perhaps an hour or two;
Mrs. Smith is very ill and I'll see what I can do."
None of us had money then, so when trouble came about,
Neighbors up and down the street
had to help each other out.
I have watched her many a time stirring custard or a cake
For the dainty bit of food which some invalid could take.
And when sickness came to us so the neighbors rallied 'round;
For the burdens we must bear many a helping hand we found.
But our fortunes rose and rose and we ceased to play the friend,
And we ceased to look for help, having money we could spend.
When whatever people wish they possess the coin to buy
There is very little left for the neighbors to supply.
When for hospital attention there is money in the purse,
Kindly women on the street one another needn't nurse.
Thus with wealth at every hand and with rising bonds and shares
We raced blindly on our way, each about his own affairs.
But we're back to simpler ways, and the mothers more and more
Will go slipping 'cross the street to some troubled neighbor's door,
And they'll help to nurse the sick and they'll stir up custards, too,
In the same unselfish way that our mothers used to do.
Oh, we've had our fling at wealth, now we're back to living plain,
Back to all that friendship means, back to neighboring again.

PROHIBITION LIKELY TO AFFECT BALLOTS

Issue Not Smothered Entirely by Economic Situation, It Is Indicated.

(Associated Press.)

The millions of votes that will be cast today seem certain to have an effect, both immediate and long-lasting, upon national prohibition.

Pending before Congress are proposals for changes in the Volstead law to permit the manufacture and sale of beer and proposed constitutional amendments.

Although the Congress that will meet in December was elected two years ago, many of its members have changed their views, and many more will search the election returns for indications of sentiment on which their future stands will be based.

John N. Garner, Democratic vice presidential nominee, who will continue as Speaker of the House until March 4, regardless of election results, has forecast the legalization of beer early in the coming short session.

Prohibition furnished an issue of mountain-top prominence at the national conventions in June, only to be buried—though hardly forgotten—under volumes of campaign speeches largely devoted to economic subjects.

G. O. P. for Resubmission.

Meeting first, the Republican convention declared itself for resubmission of the prohibition question to the States through the medium of a new constitutional amendment. Two weeks later the Democrats adopted a stand for outright repeal.

"We, therefore, believe," says the Republican platform, "that the people should have an opportunity to pass upon a proposed amendment, the revision of which, while retaining in the Federal Government power to preserve the gains already made in dealing with the evils inherent in the liquor traffic, shall allow the States to deal with the problem as their citizens may determine, but subject always to the power of the Federal Government to protect those States where prohibition may exist and safeguard our citizens everywhere from the return of the saloon and attendant abuses."

The Democratic platform says:

"We advocate the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. To effect such repeal we demand that the Congress immediately propose a Constitutional amendment to truly representative conventions in the States called to act solely on that proposal. We urge the enactment of such measures by the several States as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the return of the saloon and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the States."

In addition the Democrats adopted a declaration for "immediate modification of the Volstead act to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the Constitution."

Roosevelt for Repeal.

Accepting the nomination with an address to the convention, Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee said:

"I congratulate this convention for having had the courage, fearlessly to write into its declaration of principles that an overwhelming majority here assembled really thinks about the eighteenth amendment. This convention wants repeal. Your candidate wants repeal. And I am confident that the United States of America wants repeal."

Accepting the Republican nomination, President Hoover called attention to what he termed the "bitter controversy" over prohibition, cited the party's platform declaration, pledged himself to "enforce the laws as they exist" and said:

"It is my belief that in order to remedy present evils a change is necessary by which we resummon a proper share of initiative and responsibility which the very essence of our Government demands shall rest upon the States and local authorities. That change must avoid the return of the saloon.

"It is my conviction that the nature of this change, and one upon which all reasonable people can find common ground is that each State shall be given the right to deal with the problem as it may determine, but subject to absolute guarantees in the Constitution of the United States to protect each State from interference and invasion by its neighbors, and that in no part of the United States shall there be a return of the saloon system with its inevitable political and social corruption and its organized interference with other States."

His Attitude Unaltered.

Last week the Chief Executive in a telegram to a New Jersey party leader pointed to his acceptance speech and said his views were unchanged.

The pronouncements of candidates and conventions evoked varying expressions from the national prohibition organizations, some supporting President Hoover, others making no commitments and all urging the election of congressmen and senators taking their view of the liquor controversy.

The National Prohibition Board of Strategy without making recommendations cited in detail the records and utterances with regard to prohibition of Roosevelt, Hoover, Garner and Charles Curtis, the Republican vice presidential nominee. It, too, urged its adherents to work for the election of members of House, Senate and State Legislatures favorable to the prohibition laws.

While prohibition has been mostly dormant in the national campaign, it has held its accustomed prominence in numerous contests for these offices. Candidates for the House and Senate for the most part have made their own platforms on prohibition.

MIDWEST POLITICAL DRIVES SURGE HIGH

Republicans, Democrats and Minor Parties Feverishly Active to Last.

Chicago, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—The tidal wave of presidential campaigning, which surged out of the Middle West with President Hoover's departure for Palo Alto, left an aftermath of eddying comment tonight stirring the central States to last-minute reflection for the ballot-marking tomorrow.

Millions of voters in troubled industrial centers and agitated farm sections surveyed the most intensive effort of the major parties to win their support in recent political history and soberly considered the fact that their votes might determine whether President Hoover were re-elected or Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt sent to the White House.

The night before election found both parties hammering steadily away in an attempt to force a corn belt victory link in the chain of votes that will carry a President to Washington.

Both Democratic and Republican organizations struck simultaneously in as many places as possible. Republicans following up the impression made by President Hoover in a half dozen speeches in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Minnesota last week-end.

Many Local Gatherings.

Democratic strategists continued as active, concentrating more on local gatherings to spread the doctrine for Roosevelt. Chieftains of both parties estimated that as many as 75 to 100 locally arranged meetings were held today and tonight in several States.

Congressional, senatorial and gubernatorial struggles in the Midwest States have added a spicy factor of interest to the presidential campaign, and the currents of political feeling unloosed by these contests have made it more difficult for observers to chart the possible trend of voting.

Prohibition, the tariff, prosperity, and party regularity have been issues in the congressional and senatorial contests, in which the future of many veterans in Capitol halls was at stake.

The campaign for Ohio's junior senatorship has centered around prohibition. Senator Robert J. Bulkley, of Cleveland, Democrat, elected two years ago to the unexpired term of the late Theodore Burton, has been a consistent foe of the eighteenth amendment. Gilbert Bettman, of Cincinnati, attorney general of Ohio, Republican candidate, has maintained that "relief" may be provided only through another constitutional amendment dealing with the liquor question.

In South Dakota, the senatorial chair occupied now by Republican Peter Norbeck, investigator of Wall street, was the center of a spirited campaign by four other candidates. U. S. G. Cherry, the Democratic candidate, has made two unsuccessful campaigns for the office. There were also a Liberty party candidate, Howard Platt, and two independent candidates, L. J. Manbeck and Oscar Luttio.

Wisconsin has seen a whirlwind campaign for the senatorship, conducted by John B. Chapple, Republican, Ashland editor, who eliminated Senator John J. Blaine in the primary, and F. Ryan Duffy, Democrat. Duffy is an attorney and has been prominent in American Legion affairs.

Hot Indiana Campaign.

Indiana's veteran senator, James E. Watson, Republican, conducted a campaign that was less spectacular than had been anticipated. He stumped many parts of the State, however, as did his Democratic opponent, Frederick Van Nuys, Indianapolis attorney.

Michigan Democrats drove relentlessly to jar the State out of the Republican column, with the presidential and gubernatorial campaigns attracting almost equal attention. The State has never given a Democratic presidential candidate a majority since the birth of the Republican party. This year Democratic leaders claimed the tide had turned.

An intensive campaign for reelection has been waged by Gov. Wilber M. Brucker, stanch Hoover supporter and personal dry. His Democratic opponent, William A. Comstock, has tried, three times before and has declared "never before have I thought that I would win." Comstock favored repeal and modification of the Volstead act.

Into the sharply etched picture of Midwest politics, the minority parties bulked larger than ever before. Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, has made many Middle Western appearances and will wind up his campaign in Milwaukee.

South Dakota has its Liberty party; in Ohio, Independent Farmer Labor candidates were on the ballot, and those of the Independent Progressive party as well. Nebraska has two candidates running by petition without party label, and Minnesota has a block of Farmer-Labor aspirants.

When Returns Are Due.

(Associated Press.)

Except for a few isolated reports before dark, the result of today's balloting will begin to take shape only after 7 or 8 p. m., Eastern standard time.

Polls close at hours ranging from 3 p. m., in New Hampshire and Rhode Island rural districts, to 11 p. m. (8 o'clock, Pacific standard time), in California, Oregon and Washington, when the judges go to work.

The decision of New York State, where voting ends at 6, should be known around 10 or 11 p. m. (Eastern standard time), unless the contest is very close. Totals thereafter likely will flow from the West in geographic order.

But Kentucky will be missing. A law there says the votes can't be totaled until after 10 a. m. tomorrow.

MOUNTAIN STATES' DECISION DOUBTFUL

Republicans and Democrats Both Claim Colorado by About 75,000.

Denver, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Claims of Democratic leaders of a landslide for their candidates in Colorado and other States of the Rocky Mountain region were countered by equally emphatic predictions by the Republicans that their ticket would be elected by large majorities tomorrow. The weather man joined in the general spirit of optimism and forecast fair weather for the entire region.

James A. Marsh, Democratic State chairman of Colorado, said:

"Roosevelt and Garner will carry Colorado by from 50,000 to 75,000. The entire State ticket will be swept into office by one of the greatest landslides in Colorado political history."

Jesse F. McDonald, Republican State chairman, predicted Colorado would go Republican by 60,000 to 75,000. He added: "We must make a decision between the tried and sound Republican program now in operation and making an unsafe experiment."

In Colorado the principal fight of the campaign, that for United States Senate, long and short terms, has been wrapped up in an administration support on the Republican side and equally strong opposition by the Democratic senatorial candidates.

In New Mexico a determined fight against President Hoover and in favor of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt has been waged by United States Senator Bronson M. Cutting Progressive Republican, who led his followers in a break to the Democratic ticket, national and State. The Progressives set up an entirely separate State ticket, but later withdrew this and turned their support to the Democratic ticket, headed by Gov. Arthur Seligman. Former Gov. R. C. Dillon is Seligman's Republican opponent.

The Colorado senatorship fight, in which Karl C. Schuyler is the Republican candidate for long and short terms, and Alva B. Adams, the Democratic candidate for the long term and Walter Walker candidate for the short term, has developed sharp debate on the protection of the beet sugar industry and the effect upon it of proposed Philippine independence. President Hoover on his visit to Denver en route to Palo Alto took a hand in this issue in a statement setting forth that the beet growers could expect greater benefits from the Republican policy than that of the Democrats.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Bureau of Home Recipes.)

Here's a good pudding for a cold day. The recipe comes from the Bureau of Home Economics

½ pound dried apricots
1½ cups sifted soft-wheat flour
¼ cup butter or other fat
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk

Wash the apricots, chop fine and mix with two tablespoons of the flour. Sift the remaining flour with the baking powder and salt. Cream the fat, add the sugar and well-beaten eggs and add alternately with the milk to the sifted dry ingredients. Stir in the apricots. Pour into a greased mold, cover and steam for two hours. Serve hot with hard sauce.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

DON'T misjudge me. I'm not given over to singing the praises of the era of depression. But, necessity, they tell us, is the mother of invention. And this depression has made it necessary for women to be cosmetic wise and economical. Women are cosmetic conscious. There's no gainsaying that. The great majority of women use their powder, rouge, lip stick and even eye make-up regularly. They have learned the value of using creams and lotions wisely and well to preserve the skin's youthful smoothness, clarity and glow. We women have come to regard cosmetics as a necessity, which indeed they are. An irate male ventured recently that depression has not depressed the cosmetic industry any because women would rather go without food than without the ubiquitous lip stick. Poor lip stick. How many slurs of scorn have been thrust upon it. Yet it continues to march forth triumphant, enlivening many a face, to say nothing of the spirit that goes with it.

Buys Essentials.

For many years beauty authorities have been preaching to women, "Study your own needs and select preparations suited you." But, women went their merry way, purchasing a cream because Aunt Agatha liked it, a lotion because Miss America used it and so on. Not so now. Pressed to it, by a slenderized purse, women have awakened to the wisdom of the lesson mentioned above. They buy the cosmetics they themselves require.

Furthermore, they buy the essentials only. Two or three years ago you may have had eight or ten preparations on your dressing table. Today you have probably weeded out the unnecessaries. Perhaps you have but three or four containers. But, we'll wager that these three or four are right and represent the utmost in aids to loveliness for you. It may have flattered the vanity of women of leisure to slap on now one cream, now another, now a lotion, now an emulsion, a pore paste, a what not for hours on end. Today, more beauty is achieved more efficiently in less time and with less preparations.

Proper Application Important.

Another lesson depression has taught: that proper application is important. Not how much you use of a cream, but how well you use it is what counts. Apply a little cleansing cream and add as you need it. Don't scoop up an extravagant amount to find one quarter left. That's unnecessary waste. Utilize the wee bit that may be left by rubbing it over hands and arms. Ditto with your skin tonic. And, by the way, wring a pad of cotton out of cold water before you dip in the tonic. Less tonic used that way. Your cream rouge—apply a tiny dab and smooth it over cheeks. Add if you need to. It's not only more economical, it's easier to use that way. And more effective, too. Much harder to take off when too much has been applied than to add when there's not enough. Pat just a bit of powder on. Add. Then smooth away. Don't scoop up pounds on your puff. Don't waste. Body powder can be sprayed on. Brilliantine, too. And perfume, of course. Save your cosmetic pennies that way and it won't be necessary to run the risk of experimenting at home making up your own beauty aids with odds for success stacked against you.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

POOR APPETITE IN CHILDREN.

DR. JOSEPH BRENNEMANN says that poor appetite in children is much the most prevalent present-day disorder. Somewhere about 80 per cent of the children have it. This has not always been so, and there is significance both in its fairly recent origin and in its wide prevalence. The reasons for it are several fold.

Among them are: Too few children associates, particularly at the table; too much coaxing, coercion, knowledge of feeding, choice of foods, excitement, attention from mothers, and a lack of consideration of the child's way of thinking.

Dr. Brennemann says no child should ever be forced or coaxed to eat. Put his food before him and leave the child do the rest. If he has not eaten after a short while begin removing the foods from the table, one article at a time. Pay no attention to the child and when he thinks you are quite indifferent he may start eating; or he may even ask you to leave some dish. If he does not, remove all food and consider the matter closed.

In some of the wards of the Children's Hospital the food is wheeled into the middle of a large ward and the children are allowed to take what they want. They are not compelled coaxed or even advised to take anything or to avoid anything. The possibility of eating as they please has entirely eliminated the anorexia, or absence of appetite, 80 per cent prevalent among children in their own homes.

Nor has it done compensating harm. It is their experience that a child who eats too much meat for one meal or several will switch from meat to vegetables and will stay on a vegetarian diet voluntarily until he reestablishes his balance. Dr. Brennemann does not get excited when a child eats five bananas or seven helpings of potato or ten eggs at a meal, as he has seen happen. He knows that the pendulum will swing and that nutrition will be kept in balance. If perchance, there is an attack of indigestion, it passes in a few hours or yields to a laxative. Such an accident would not compare in importance with the anorexia and undernutrition which is the alternative.

Before accepting this demonstration and drawing deductions from it, two facts must be considered. One is that the hospital dieticians put on that movable cafeteria counter only wholesome foods. Certain articles are not there, and the child, therefore, has no chance to pick them. The other is the well-known fact that the best cure for the poor appetite child is to put him in a children's hospital, home or asylum. When a child finds himself eating with other children and with no special attention from nurse, parent, adult or any one, he is almost certain to have a desire to eat.

HAIR ON FACE.

Mrs. A. R. T. writes: My grandmother had a beard and had to shave. My mother had just a little mustache. She did not have to shave. I have no hair on my face. Will my daughters inherit the tendency in hairiness?

REPLY.

Little is known about inheritance of facial hair. The characteristic is considerably linked with abnormalities of the ductless glands. There is a possibility that there may be inherited characteristics, but again, we know little. The facts cited indicate a strong tendency to inherit hair in the female members of the family. However, these girls have years to wait and, meanwhile, we may learn how to prevent and cure facial hair in women.

MAY NEED OPERATION.

S. H. writes:

1. I am troubled with a fistula. Can it be cured without operation?
2. What causes it?

REPLY.

1. Probably not.
2. It is due to a local infection. In some cases the infecting microbe is the tubercle bacillus.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

SOMETHING new in winter comfort and style has struck Dame Fashion's fancy, for which Miladi is grateful. 'Tis the warm and comfortable out-of-the-house wear, and the light and summery and comfortable in-the-house wear.

'Tis this way. Yesteryear one wore a heavier weight dress in the winter than in the summer, needing it for warmth in most cases, but subconsciously if not actually feeling too warm in it in the steam-heated salon or room or office. Then one wore a coat of chic and style. But unless it were a fur coat, it was negligible in warmth producing qualities. Together this dress and coat more or less protected one in the winter cold.

But this season there is a new idea. And it is that the coat should be expressly warmth-giving and comfortable, and none the less stylish, of course; and that the dress should be lighter weight and more suitable to the central heating of the average store, home, salon or office.

For this reason, this winter coats are warm and comfortable, in material, lining, interlining and especially in fur trimming. And as though this weren't enough, the fur trimming itself is adjustable and removable, whereby Miladi can adjust her comfort to the requirements of the weather! Dresses are lighter weight and often short of sleeves, as one would indeed expect only in summer frocks—but they are full-fledged winter wear, new in color and style and idea.

As to the new trimming details on the above mentioned, one Paris house has had an astonishing success with an embroidered and cut-out sleeve which is very elegant and becoming—on frocks only, of course. The way both coats and dresses close is decidedly of this season, too, in the triangular closings, and the round and high necked ones. One does not fail to mention the composition buttons, and indeed buttons of all types, as trimming for winter wear.

Many a little shoe would have a thirty-dollar look—if it had a buckle or two to give it one! But alas, buckles do cost so much, don't they? That is, they did cost so much until your Dah-ray found out how to make some of beads that look exactly like cut steel or bronze buckles—and made you a leaflet telling you how to go about making them for yourself! And how would that fill the need for a simple Christmas present for some one who would appreciate shoe buckles as much as you yourself? I would like some for some of my shoes—for a gift. Think now, once you make some for yourself, you can make as many as you wish from then on, in many different shapes and all, for your own shoe needs or that of your friends. Better send the stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post that will bring you the illustrated instructions for making shoe buckles of beads!

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF November 8 is the date of your birth, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 8:45 p. m. The danger hours are, from 11:30 a. m. to 12:45 p. m. and from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m.

If you have been anticipating word of some sort from a distant point in regard to either a business or personal matter, you may probably have it on this November 8. At first blush, the news received may not seem to be favorable, but do not let that tend to discourage you. The outcome will, no doubt, be satisfactory. Difficulties arising on this day should be quickly overcome. Not auspicious for travel or romance.

The child born on this November 8 will be possessed of a facile mind. Its interest in books will be great and genuine, preference being shown for books of the highly imaginative and fantastic type rather than for tales of adventure. The child will seem to prefer indoor activities, but should be greatly encouraged to indulge in outdoor play. The child will do exceptionally well in school.

Born on November 8, you are a person thoroughly on the alert and in tune with the times. You are far-seeing, always on the lookout for a "break" and quick to seize and take advantage of opportunities that many would pass by. You will make money; at times you will make it too easily. You love games of chance; gambling is exhilarating to you. It gives you a sense of freedom and of independence that you can not get any other way. You will invariably play the long shot in your business deals, and your daring will usually help you to win. You will gamble in the making of your money; take care that you do not gamble it all away.

Whether you are a man or a woman, your home is a show place. Your sense of the artistic is not all that it should be. You like to entertain; you do it lavishly and not always wisely. You fancy yourself a person with many friends, but really most of them are attracted by the extravagances you commit. You are inclined to be lax in meeting obligations, both business and social. A little serious thought about life and its problems would, beyond a doubt, bring more content into your life than you have at present. Family ties are sacred to you. You derive great pleasure from your husband or wife and from your children. You are a splendid parent, always striving to bring out the best in your children.

Successful people born on November 8:

George B. Loring, agriculturist.
Annie C. Ketchum, poet.
William Henry Watson, physician.
Oliver O. Howard, major general.
Charles O. Day, Congregational clergyman.

PLANNING THE PLAY.

LESLIE WHITMER, of Sioux City, Iowa, sent me the hand below, which presents a problem of rather enthusiastic bidding—the bidding of three Grand Slams; one of them a defensive measure, and the final passing of the opportunity to defeat the contract by an Opening lead, only to see the Declarer fail to realize the possibilities of his cards, and instead of making his contract, be defeated 2 tricks for a penalty of 1,200 points. Certainly, the hand presents plenty of drama, the bidding being manifestly too strong, but the playing situation being very interesting.

West—Dealer.

The Bidding.

Pass

1—Too strong a bid in response to West's Opening Force. A better bid is three hearts.

2—Carried away by the possession of all the Aces and his partner's double Raise, West bids for a Grand Slam.

3—North also is misled. He believes that the Grand Slam can be made and, with his freak hand hopes that a save in spades will not be too expensive.

4—Still under the influence of his partner's double Raise for his Opening Forcing bid.

5—An ambitious Double.

North, it must be confessed, did not have an easy choice of an Opening lead. As a matter of fact, as the cards lay, there was only one suit that he should not have chosen and that was the one which he did choose—namely, diamonds. This lead gave West the opportnity to make his contract, but he unfortunately muffed it in the play—perhaps misled by South's somewhat ambitious Double. Instead of reading the diamond 7, the card actually chosen by North, as a fourth-best lead and thus assuring himself of 3 tricks in diamonds, he played the King, then took the heart finesse, ran down six rounds of hearts, two rounds of clubs, and then the Ace of diamonds, following with a low diamond, which North won and cashed another diamond. Evidently, West had not counted the cards very carefully, because North, in the process of discarding, had blanked the King of spades.

This is the actual story, but consider it from the standpoint of what could have happened had West played accurately after the diamond lead. The 7 of diamonds would have been won with the Ten in Dummy, the heart finesse taken at once, and when this won, all the hearts would have been run down, the Ace and King of clubs and the Ace of diamonds cashed. West would then have held the Ace-Queen of spades and the diamond 4. North could have held but three cards in spades and diamonds. The Dummy—the East hand—would have contained two diamonds and one spade. Whether the Declarer had made 4 diamond tircks and only 1 spade trick would have depended entirely upon the three cards which North had elected to retain. To the eleventh trick, the 4 of diamonds would have been led, and it is of course apparent that North would have been helpless.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

East—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

CONTRACT SCORE CARDS.

The new values for suits, tricks over book, undertrick penalties and overtrick values, when vulnerable or not vulnerable, are all contained upon a handy-sized card now being distributed by The Washington Post. . . . SLAVE AND LIQUOR RULINGS REVERSED

Jack McGurn, Gangster, and Wife Are Freed by Supreme Court.

(United Press.)

Federal law enforcement agencies met with two sharp reversals yesterday as the Supreme Court set aside important convictions under the Mann white slave law and the prohibition act.

The first decision freed Jack Gebardi, the "Jack McGurn," who was questioned in the Chicago St. Valentine's Day massacre, from a two years' jail sentence, imposed for taking Louise Rolph, his present wife, on a tour of the Southern States before their marriage.

Miss Rolph furnished testimony which served largely to obtain his release. Soon afterward the pair was indicted, charged with conspiring to violate the Mann act. They were convicted, and Miss Rolph, as coconspirator, was sentenced to serve six months in Cook County Jail.

Gebardi was later divorced from his former wife and married Miss Rolph. The indictment of the woman on a conspiracy charge when she was the presumed "victim" created a novel situation under the Mann act.

Stone Frees Woman.

In an opinion which went exhaustively into the delicate question, Justice Harlan Fiske Stone held that in order to "aid and assist" another to procure interstate transportation for herself it must be shown to have gone further than "mere agreement on her part to the transportation and its immoral purpose."

Except in unusual cases a woman could not violate the Mann act and therefore could not conspire to violate it, the court ruled. With Miss Rolph thereby eliminated from the case, Stone found, there was no one with whom Gebardi was shown to have conspired. His conviction was set aside for this reason.

In a prohibition law decision involving the seizure of a still and equipment in a private residence the court reiterated its firm stand against search and seizure in homes where there is no evidence of a sale.

The ruling saved William Grau, Newport, Ky., a five-year jail sentence. His home had been raided by prohibition agents, who saw trucks leaving the premises and smelled the fumes of mash.

Rum Case Remanded.

In making out affidavits to search the Grau dwelling, however, the agents failed to charge they had knowledge of any purchase of liquor there. The Supreme Court held this sufficent to set the conviction aside.

Without formal opinion the court upheld the right of New Jersey State troopers to arrest truck drivers transporting liquor over the State highways, even though there was no evidence of a violation of any State law. Several truckmen convicted of transporting liquor in the New Jersey Federal courts, held they should have been tried under the State enforcement act, if at all.

In another opinion the court approved the acquisition by the New York Central Railroad Co. of the "Big Four" and Michigan Central Lines, which was attacked by the New York Central Securities Co., a minority stockholder. The Southern District of New York Federal Court had dismissed the security company's attack on the acquisition.

The court acted on more than three score cases during a brief session and wrote formal opinions in fifteen of them.

V.F.W. Accept Bid To Parade Friday

Delegation Also to Honor Unknown Soldier at Ceremonies.

The District Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars last night adopted a resolution accepting the invitation of the American Legion to participate in the Armistice Day ceremonies.

However, the department decided that it would not take part in the parade which will precede the exercises at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. A delegation will attend the exercises.

The reason advanced for the nonparticipation in the parade was that the invitation had been received too late for the assembling of posts and other preparations. A delegation of the organization will attend the services at the tomb of President Wilson, in Bethlehem Chapel, at Washington Cathedral.

During the meeting a talk was given by Bert Lewis, vice president of the Commercial Credit Co., of New York.

Marines to Quit Nicaragua On Inauguration of Sacasa

General Evacuation Will Begin Immediately After January 1; Wives and Children to Board Destroyer Soon; President-Elect Will Visit Here.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The election of Dr. Juan B. Sacasa as president of Nicaragua means the end of American military intervention in the Central American republic, as promised by Secretary Stimson. Latest returns from Managua indicate that Dr. Sacasa, the Liberal candidate for the presidency, who was for a long time Nicaraguan Minister to the United States, will have a majority of about 20,000 votes.

The new president will take office on January 1, and the immediate evacuation of the 1,400-odd American marines now on duty there will begin soon after. Already the destroyer Henderson has arrived off Corinto, and will take the first group of American wives and children. The evacuation of the total number of Americans can be made in one or two days. The order for removal of all American military from Nicaragua is sweeping and includes even those American officers who were attached to the Guardia Nacional.

Telegrams of congratulation were pouring in upon Senora Sacasa, the wife of the president-elect, and upon the Nicaraguan charge d'affaires, Dr. Luis M. Debayle.

Dr. Debayle declared yesterday:

"Dr. Sacasa's election means the continuation of that policy of cordiality between the United States and Nicaragua that has meant so much to our national existence. The impressive majority that Dr. Sacasa has won indicates that his election is preeminently a popular choice, supported by the majority of the people."

There were strong rumors last night that the president-elect will make a trip to Washington in the interim between his election and his inauguration. The Nicaraguan constitution provides for the installation of the new president on January 1 and Dr. Sacasa may very well decide to come here before that date. However, it is believed that Dr. Sacasa may decide to wait until the result of the American elections today before making any decision in this regard. In the event that there is a change in the administration, he may prefer to wait until after March 4.

The Navy Department indicated that they consider the Nicaraguan government sufficiently able to take care of any threat of reprisals from the rebel Gen. Augusto Sandino. In any event the special service squadron will be kept as usual in Central American waters under command of Rear Admiral St. Clair Smith. This squadron consists of one light cruiser and two destroyers and can easily reach any point on the Pacific or Atlantic coasts in the vicinity of the Panama Canal in a short time.

Visits on the part of newly elected South and Central American presidents have often been made here and on account of his great personal popularity Dr. Sacasa may decide to make a trip to Washington before he formally enters upon his new office.

Dr. Sacasa resigned the post of minister here and returned to Managua to campaign for the presidency. In his absence, however, his nephew, Dr. Luis M. Debayle was appointed Charge d'Affaires of the Legation. Yesterday Dr. Debayle called at the State Department and held a long conference with Undersecretary of State William R. Castle, jr. Dr. Debayle, like his uncle, is a famous surgeon and has practiced at the Mayo Clinic and at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School. In medical circles Dr. Debayle is regarded as a skilled surgeon, and may be appointed here as minister unless President Moncada decides to come here.

Secretary Stimson in several of his addresses has promised the evacuation of the marines from Nicaraguan territory and fixed January 1 as the date for the beginning of the exodus. In the last few years the presence of American officers in the Guardia has enabled the Nicaraguan government to form the nucleus of a strong native police force to repel the rebel forces of Gen. Sandino.

It is expected that one of the first measures of the President after January 1 will be to assure the maintenance of order and peace throughout the country under the command of an all-Nicaraguan police force.

Managua, Nicaragua, Nov. 7 (A.P.). The election of Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, the liberal candidate, as President of Nicaragua in yesterday's election was conceded today by President Jose Marie Moncada, who supported the Conservative candidate, Adolfo Diaz.

Sacasa had a lead of 19,000 votes when half of the returns had been counted and the president believed the majority was too large for the Conservatives to overcome.

The vote was 58,777 for Dr. Sacasa, against 39,773 for Diaz. This represented 63 per cent of the registration.

The election was held under the supervision of an electoral mission headed by Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward, of the United States. United States marines assisted the national guard in patrol duty and there was little disorder.

Mexico City, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—The Mexico City representative of Gen. Augusto Sandino, Nicaraguan insurgent, announced today that the general would not recognize the winner in yesterday's election. Sandino plans to seize Managua and call a new election, the representative said.

FINIELLO WITNESS SLAIN BY GANGMEN

Newark Fireman's Killers Flee in Stolen Auto; Guard Wounded.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Gangland rudely brushed aside the protecting shield of the law today and "rubbed out" August Gobel, 47, a fireman who two years ago saw Agent John G. Finiello shot and killed in a gun battle between dry raiders and underworld guards at the Rising Sun Brewery in Elizabeth.

Regarded the most important witness in the Finiello case, for whose death eight men are under indictment, Gobel was slain at the Christian Feigenspan Corporation plant, where he was employed as a fireman. Patrolman Adolph Weigand, assigned to guard him, was wounded by four men who escaped in a stolen car.

A few days ago, three unidentified men went to the plant to see Gobel, saying they had a summons for him. Gobel told the story to a relative, who urged him to report to police. Gobel objected, fearing loss of his job, and the relative, to protect him, yesterday asked police to place a guard at the Feigenspan plant, where Gobel and one other man worked at night.

Almost Got Wrong Man.

The gunmen almost got the wrong man. They held up the other employe and on learning he was not the fireman, bound and gagged him while they sought Gobel. The fireman was talking with Weigand in the boiler-room. He was nervous, Weigand said, and walked into an adjoining dark room.

"They've got me," Weigand heard Gobel yell and then shots were fired. Weigand drew his revolver and ran to his aid. He himself became a target, as a bullet shattered his gun arm and another plowed into his back.

An unnamed witness said he saw four men drive away in a dark sedan bearing New Jersey plates. An abandoned car was later found, which police believe was the slayers' car.

Two Now on Trial.

Two men indicted in Finiello's slaying are now on trial in St. Paul, Minn., for the death of two men there last July. The prisoners are August Silverberg and John Newman.

Gobel was free in heavy bail as a material witness in the Finiello slaying. He was in the engine room at the time of the battle between agents and gangsters at the brewery. Prosecutor Abe J. David said he had recognized photos of three of the eight men indicted in the shooting.

Among those sought are Nick Belmore, Berkely Heights roadhouse proprietor, and William Weissman. A William Weissman was reported slain recently in Kansas City. Philip Grosso, also indicted, was slain in Philadelphia several weeks ago in what police called a reprisal for the slaying of Mickey Duffy, North Jersey racketeer, in his Atlantic City hotel suite.

Boy's Ankle Fractured When Struck by Auto

Philip Lewis, 1, No. 9 H street northwest, suffered a fractured ankle and bruises on the left leg late yesterday, when he was struck by the car of Harry B. McClain, 765 Q street northwest.

The accident occurred on North Capitol between H and I streets northwest. The boy was treated at Sibley Hospital.

PermitHolder Held Liable in Injuries

District to Assess Damages in Excavations to Licensed Builder.

An order making permit holders responsible for any dangerous conditions brought about by excavations in public spaces was adopted yesterday by the District Commissioners and will be inserted hereafter in all permits issued by the Engineering Department.

Not only does the permit holder have to keep a trench or excavation in a safe condition until it is repaired or resurfaced by the District government, but he also must indemnify the District for any "injury, loss, cost or damage occasioned by reason of failure to keep such trench or excavation in a safe condition."

The order provides further that the District shall make any necessary repairs for safety during a period of one year after an excavation and assess the cost to the permit holder.

Man Loses $52 in Theater.

William A. DuPuy, of 1869 Mintwood place northwest, reported to police yesterday that his purse containing $52, papers and an official card of the Department of the Interior, was stolen Sunday while he was in a downtown theater. He said he believed it was taken by a pickpocket.

Hoover's Campaign Near Record for Presidents

Fiery Drive Rivals Heated Three-Cornered Contest Between Taft, Wilson and Roosevelt in 1912; "Fighting" Speeches Boost Party Hopes.

(Associated Press.)

Herbert Hoover, possessing probably as pronounced a distaste for electioneering as any Chief Executive of the Nation, last night concluded the most strenuous campaign for reelection undertaken by a President in recent decades.

And last night Republican leaders based their claims and pinned their hopes for victory almost solely on his extraordinary efforts in behalf of a continuance of his administration.

Covering more than 10,000 miles, delivering about ten major speeches and scores of smaller addresses from Coast to Coast, the President in his drive of the last five weeks has made the campaign, to ardent partisans at least, the most exciting since the Bryan-Roosevelt era of political lambasting.

The Hoover of 1932 has been a strikingly different campaigner than the Hoover of 1928. From the outset four years ago he rode complacently to overwhelming victory with a highly confident party through a period of comparative national prosperity and tranquillity with evidences of strong Republican preference among the electorate.

He made then an unhurried tour, setting forth dispassionately his theories of government in a few speeches at strategic points. He scarcely took cognizance of his opponent, Alfred E. Smith, who was doing most of the "heavy firing." Chief cannoneers in the G. O. P. counterattack were Charles Evans Hughes and Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho.

In 1924 Calvin Coolidge with the political tide running strong in his favor was reelected practically without making any campaign at all.

Although Woodrow Wilson delivered some speeches in behalf of his reelection in 1916, he did not make an intensive wind-up drive and the burden of the campaign was carried by his chief supporters with the plea "he kept us out of war."

Oldtimers say this year's battle is probably the most furiously fought since the three-cornered contest between Taft, Wilson and Roosevelt in 1912, and it was the rough-riding Teddy then, rather than the incumbent Taft, who provided the fireworks.

Four years before, Roosevelt, then campaigning for Taft's election, broke Bryan's record for arduous electioneering by making 673 speeches, traveling 21,209 miles in 24 States and visiting 567 cities and towns. Bryan had hung up the high mark of 569 speeches in his 1896 "free silver" campaign.

7-Foot Romeo's Women Folk Battling Over His Estate

Peiping, China, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—Details of the private life of Marshal Chang Tsung-Chang, who stood 7 feet high and once boasted 200 wives in his harem, were made public here today in litigation over his estate.

"Big Chang," as he was known, was assassinated at Tsinanfu some time ago. His mother, wife, numerous children and sixteen concubines are quarreling over a division of his wealth.

Figures have been published to show that "Big Chang," even in his retirement, had more than 1,000 persons dependent upon him. Each day, at least, 100 ate at his home. Since his death many of his followers have been destitute.

Relatives of "Big Chang" have decided that the sixteen concubines either may remain in the family home or accept $3,000 each. The concubines decided to stay.

It was then proposed that the concubines should be given a sum of money according to the number of children they had borne. Women without children vetoed this plan.

A Japanese girl, acquired by Marshal Chang when he was in exile at Beppu, Japan, is leading the group which insists the estate should be divided equally.

The women in the late marshal's harem range in age from 18 to 30. Since his death they have discovered that in the last ten months of his life he spent more than $480,000. Therefore they will not agree to being paid a mere $3,000 each.

All attempts to negotiate a settlement with them have failed.

Constable, 90, to Seek Reelection Next Year

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 7 (A.P.). Only 90 years of age, Woodson Norvell, Charlottesville high constable, says he is still too young to retire, and is consequently planning a determined fight for reelection when his term expires next year.

Born May 28, 1842, Mr. Norvell was a student at the Medical College of Virginia when the Civil War was started. He enlisted, and lost his right leg from wounds received in the battle of Seven Pines.

In every election since he first ran for high constable in 1907, Mr. Norvell has been victorious over opponents less than half his age.

VICTIMS IDENTIFY 3 IN BLACK SHIRT GANG

Three Other Suspects Held in Southern Maryland Robbery Series.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

La Plata, Md., Nov. 7.—Identification of three men, held in the Charles County Jail here, as members of the southern Maryland "Black Shirt" gang brought renewed confidence to residents of this little community today when authorities announced that three victims of recent holdups picked the men as their assailants.

Three brothers, Sherman, Griffin and Preston Swann, arrested several days ago, were identified as participants in a number of highway robberies.

Sherman was identified by Miss Merel Raley, who, with Jennings Birch, was held up and robbed on October 7. The couple was parked in an automobile near Chopticoe, Md., when another machine, bearing several men, drew alongside.

It is alleged that after being robbed of money and jewelry, Miss Raley and Birch were fired upon by several members of the bandit gang.

Griffin was picked by Harry Martin, of Gallant Green, as a member of a gang who robbed him on the highway near Morganza.

Raymond Musgrove, an insurance agent, of Leonardtown, identified Preston as one of a gang of men who blocked his automobile on a narrow bridge near here and robbed him of more than $200.

Three other men are also being held by Maryland authorities in connection with recent robberies in this vicinity.

RECORD VOTE TOTAL DUE IN MONTGOMERY

Ninety Per Cent of 25,828 Registered Are Expected to Cast Ballots.

Montgomery County, Md., expects to march 90 per cent of its registered vote of 25,828 to the polls today. Democratic leaders predict that they will give Roosevelt and Garner a healthy majority, larger than ever before given a Democratic candidate in the national election in the history of the county. Republican leaders agree that the largest vote in the history of the county will be polled, but refuse to make any comment on the possibilities.

Political leaders say they have been astonished by the interest that is being taken in this election, even more than in the Hoover-Smith election of 1928, when President Hoover carried the normally Democratic County with a vote of 8,897 to 6,332 for Smith.

Final preparations have been made for the election. All voting paraphernalia has been issued and is in readiness. Today is a State holiday in Maryland and all banks, schools and most public offices will be closed in order that the workers can vote.

Polls will open at 6 a. m. and will remain open until 7 p. m. There are 87 voting places in the county.

It is estimated that the election will cost approximately $30,000. The ballot will be canvassed Thursday by the board of election supervisors.

Party leaders expect that the amendment which will change the State constitution so that judges who have reached the age of 70 years can not be continued in office by act of the Legislature as at present will be adopted with little trouble, although very little attention has been given to this in the campaign.

Insurance Suit Moved To Montgomery County

Suit of Harry F. Ward against the Prudential Insurance Co. has been moved from the Circuit Court of St. Mary's County, Md., to the Montgomery County Circuit Court on plea of the plaintiff, who alleges he could not receive a fair trial in St. Mary's.

The case, which claims disability benefits as due him under a policy issued by the company, which he claims were discontinued without cause, was docketed for the November term of court which begins next Monday.

ence of state police can guarantee a peaceful and honest election."

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown today requested Gov. George White to order National Guardsmen into Pike County, to preserve order during the election.

The governor, out in the State concluding his campaign for reelection, could not be reached, but Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson announced he had communicated with Pike County authorities and been assured "no help is needed."

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—National Guardsmen have been mobilized to patrol voting places of two New Mexico counties tomorrow.

Adjt. Gen. Osborne C. Wood announced tonight the action was taken in response to petitions sent to Gov. Arthur Seligman from the two counties, San Miguel and Sandoval.

Gov. Seligman said Saturday he had received requests from "several" counties for troops to guard the polling places, but declined to amplify the statement. Soon afterward, Federal officials revealed Department of Justice agents had been sent to this State to prevent violations of Federal election laws.

Gen. Wood said a small detachment from the 111th Cavalry Troop at Clovis, N. Mex., had entrained for Las Vegas to watch voting in San Miguel County, and eight men were being sent from the Santa Fe Troop of the 111th Cavalry to Bernalillo, the county seat of Sandoval County.

Chicago, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—City and county authorities tonight promised adequate protection tomorrow to guard against disorders at the polls. About 5,000 police and special officers will be on hand.

The assurances came as State's Attorney John A. Swanson, Republican nominee for reelection, appealed to Gov. Emmerson to send National Guardsmen. Swanson said he expected attempts would be made to steal votes.

The governor, advices from Springfield said, told Swanson the militia was used only for emergencies in the nature of riots.

Only Four Cross Marks Are Required Of Maryland Voters at Polls Today

Four cross-marks will be sufficient to vote the ballot which will face Maryland citizens when they enter the voting booth today, although more will be necessary if they wish to divide their presidential vote among electors from more than one party.

The ballots contain the names of the five candidates for President, and under each national ticket are the names of eight electors. A single mark opposite the names of the presidential and vice presidential nominees will be sufficient, however, to denote the voter's choice. However, he may also mark a total of eight electors. But to mark a presidential candidate and then divide the electors among two or more parties will invalidate the ballot.

Aside from the presidential choice, the voter has an easy time. He has a choice of five candidates for United States senator, from the Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Communist, or Labor parties. There are, however, only two candidates from the major parties for the seats in the United States House of Representatives.

The fourth mark is necessary to approve or disapprove of an amendment to the State constitution which will prevent the Legisalture from extending the term of any judge after he has reached the age of 70 years. A vote for the amendment is a vote against any more extensions.

Railway Loses Appeal Against I.C.C. Decision

(Associated Press.)

The Norfolk & Western Railroad failed in the Supreme Court yesterday in an effort to have the Interstate Commerce Commission allow it to include the value of the coal mines it owns as part of its railroad property in rate making and recapture proceedings.

The Federal District Court for Western Virginia sustained the commission and was upheld by the highest court yesterday.

CARS TO FIGHT RAIN IN PRINCE GEORGES

Leaders of Both Parties Are Prepared to Get Out Maximum Ballot.

Prince Georges County politicians marshaled their last shreds of energy today as the presidential race swung into the home stretch and were ready to "get out the vote."

Ballots and ballot boxes were dealt out yesterday to election officials by Samuel A. Wyville, clerk to the board of election supervisors, and the party leaders also have rented headquarters near the polling places in several districts. Autos, which promise to be much in demand if the rain continues, will be dispatched from these points to bring voters to the polls.

Out of the 27,000 voters in the country, at least 20,000 are expected to go to the polls. These will probable have been well instructed, as the Republicans have distributed 10,000 sample ballots and the Democrats 7,500. The ballots also have been printed in the county papers. Mr. Wyville has estimated the cost of today's election at $12,000, near twice the cost of the spring primary.

While there will be many small gatherings for the receipt of election news in the county, the most elaborate plans have been made by the Chillum District Democratic Club. Reports received over a special wire will be flashed on a screen outside the club's headquarters on Rhode Island avenue in Mount Rainier. In addition, radio reports will be broadcast to the waiting crowds over outdoor loud speakers.

With Mrs. Johnstone he spent three and a half months abroad last summer, and they were in Geneva during the discussions of and adoption of the Benes resolution. They also had close contacts all through central Europe, and when in Scotland, Mrs. Johnstone attended the International Association of University Women.

Mrs. E. E. Danley, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Y. W. C. A., will preside at the meeting and luncheon with the assistance of members of her committee.

Costello Offers Rides to Voters

Democratic Leader Lays All Plans to Guarantee Maximum Ballot.

Voters living in the District, with voting residences in nearby States, will be carried to and from their polling places from Democratic central committee headquarters, 1320 G street northwest, today beginning at 8:30 a. m., John F. Costello, Democratic national committeeman, announced last night.

Arrangements have been made for unrestricted parking in front of the headquarters so that those with cars, who are driving to their voting places, are urged to assist in "getting the vote out" by stopping by headquarters and taking other voters in their districts to the polls.

In addition, about 50 cars have been promised, and will assist all day in this work. In the meantime preparations have been made to get all returns at headquarters, and everybody is invited to come in at all hours for election information.

Text of Coolidge Address Urging Hoover Reelection

From his home in Northampton, Mass., last night over a country-wide radio broadcast, Calvin Coolidge spoke as follows:

My fellow citizens: The campaign for the election of all the members of the House and one-third of the members of the Senate, exclusive of vacancies, of the National Congress, and of the President of the United States, is drawing to a close. For months now you have listened to the appeals of the various candidates and their supporters, you have read campaign literature and newspaper articles setting forth the claims and expounding the platforms of the political parties asking for your votes. Such a nation-wide campaign requires the expenditure of a great deal of effort and money, which the importance of the event fully justifies. It is a course of education which we all need to take to qualify ourselves to cast an intelligent ballot. We not only need such a public review of the record of our office holders and their conduct of our Government once in four years, but it is highly desirable that we give careful consideration to the proposals that are made by all candidates for the preservation of our liberties, the promotion of our general welfare and the conscientious discharge of our individual duties as citizens of this great republic.

Our institutions are founded upon the deepest faith in the common sense and integrity of the great body of our citizens. We have been given the high privilege of self-government not only that we might protect ourselves, but that we might support and protect our country, and do justice to our fellow citizens. Persons with ballots in their hands are endowed with arbitrary and unlimited power. Unless that power is exercised wisely and intelligently it will result not only in their own destruction, but in the destruction of their fellow countrymen, and in a country so vast and important as the United States the evil effects would be world-wide.

First Important Duty Is Study of Problems.

Since the franchise confers upon us all the responsibility of a public trusteeship for the promotion of the general welfare of all the people, it is evident that we have before us two duties to perform. Our first important duty is to determine by investigation and self-education what the public welfare requires. That process has been going on for many weeks. It needs careful thought and study. The business of the United States Government is very intricate and involved. It can not be brought within the comprehension of a single address or begin to be understood without long contemplation. Very few could claim to understand it in its entirety and many of us have time only to consider its broader outlines. We have to entrust ourselves somewhat to expert leaders. It is the same common sense process that we employ in our every day lives. If we want something done which we have neither the time nor the skill to do ourselves we pick out the best informed persons that we can find in that particular line and employ them to do it for us. It is because of this method which characterizes an advanced civilization that we have professional men and women who by their studies and experience have qualified themselves to solve certain problems for us, whether they involve our health, our business or our legal rights. We may know little about medicine or banking or law, but fortunately all of us have a highly accurate judgment concerning the ability and character of our fellow citizens. We know whom we can trust to serve us faithfully in meeting any difficulty in which we are involved. That is why representative government can be a success.

Now the administration of high public office is just as much a profession, needing just as much training, skill and experience as any of the learned professions of law, medicine or theology. The public can not be deceived for long in its estimate of candidates. It can tell very quickly who are candid, sincere and conscientious in the discharge of public office and in the appeal which they make to the voters for support.

But all the effort and expense involved in a campaign of education and all the thought and study of the voter would be of little avail unless it is put into practical operation by casting a ballot on election day. That is the second great duty of citizens. They can be sure that every person with a selfish interest and every person filled with prejudice or misconceived resentment will not fail to vote, but if self-government is to be a success it will be solely because the people of judgment and discretion, who put the welfare of their country first, who want to see it well conducted, register their mature second thought at the polls. In no other way is it possible to secure the benefit of the sound common sense of the Nation. Without the support of the people of that type there would be no such thing as public integrity.

Prosperity Is Not Most Important of Things.

In this campaign we have heard a great deal of discussion about our material welfare. That is natural and proper because the prosperity of the people is always important, but there are other things which are even more important. Those who signed the Declaration of Independence pledged their fortunes, their lives and their sacred honor to the defense of certain principles of human relationship. Those who saved our Federal Union from destruction did so because they believed that freedom and justice were of more value than money. Those who offered all our man power and wealth on the altar of our country for the preservation and advancement of world liberty were seeking for something higher than material gains. No great question has ever been decided by the people of this Nation on the sole basis of dollars and cents. When the American people make a major decision like the election of a President they do not offer themselves to the highest bidder, but seek to determine conscientiously what justice and true patriotism require them to do. In all our history we have never deserted our President because we were not making money. We have always stood by him in a crisis with little regard for party preferences.

It seems to be time for us to apply those simple sense principles of every day life so easily understood which after all are adequate to show us our duties, protect our liberties, and provide us with sound government. Most of us believe thoroughly in our long-established and unusually successful American institutions. We want them preserved and we want to do what is best for our country. We must choose some one to lead us and stand at the head of our national government. The world has been going through the greatest economic crisis in all history. We may be somewhat confused by the discussion of the tariff, reconstruction, farm relief, care of the unemployed, deflation, and gold standard, and many other issues that have come into the campaign. Who is the man we can most safely trust to solve those problems for us? Our situation is too serious for us to consider employing a personal favorite or any one because he smiles at us and entertains us. We must have some one who can work for us, some one who knows how. We know we cannot have perfection in this world but we want the best we can get. Promise and good intention are not enough. We cannot afford rash experiments.

When the times have called for a man some one has stood forth. Such is the case now.

Has Served Nation For Nearly 20 Years.

For nearly twenty years our President, Herbert Hoover, has been serving our country and the world. Measured by accomplishments he holds commanding rank. If five Americans were to be selected today to devise remedies for the present condition of the Nation, Herbert Hoover would head the list. The name of no other presidential candidate would be considered. If ten international figures were to be selected to devise remedies for the present condition of the world, Herbert Hoover would be one of them. The name of no other presidential candidate would be considered. Can there be any doubt where our interests and our duties lie? We need to continue President Hoover in office because at all times he will safeguard our institutions. No other candidate proposes to do that. We need President Hoover because he has demonstrated by his acts and public statements that he has a clear understanding of present economic conditions and has put into operation a program and made explicit proposals for relief which are already in successful operation. No other candidate has done that. We need President Hoover because, as the great exponent of public integrity, he has the faith and courage to meet every question squarely without evasion. No other candidate does that.

All the teachings of common sense require us to reelect President Hoover.

It was natural at the outset of this campaign for some people who had not studied the situation to hope that some critic of President Hoover might show them a short and easy way out of the present world difficulties. They now know that no one has and no one can show any such way. We shall recover by the long, slow process of working, saving and paying our debts. Meantime, we shall do what we can to relieve want, protect public and private credit, encourage industry and agriculture and cooperate in the reestablishment of the normal flow of trade. That is the policy of President Hoover. As the campaign has progressed people have become more and more convinced that he is right. The vagueness and weakness of the proposals and claims of the opposition have become more and more apparent as the strength and soundness of what President Hoover has done and proposed have been revealed. The more we have learned of his record in office, the more we have realized his grasp of affairs, the stronger has become our determination to support him for reelection.

I have taken this opportunity to speak because I want my countrymen to know what I think ought to be done. From what I know of the requirements of the presidential office, I have no hesitation in saying President Hoover should be retained for the good of our country and the world. It is not the spirit of the American people when the captain of their ship has guided them through a storm and is approaching a safe harbor to discharge him and then claim that he created the storm. Nor are they accustomed to disregard their duties and repudiate their obligations. Their courage is too great, their moral fiber is too strong to follow those who seek to tempt them with any such suggestions. From my knowledge of President Hoover, after sitting at the Cabinet table with him for eight years, after considering the difficulties he has encountered and the policies he has proposed, I believe that he is the best man for us to entrust with the Presidency in this great emergency.

I. C. C. Passes Cut Wood Pulp Rates

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday approved reduced rates on wood pulp in carloads from Norfolk and other North Atlantic seaports to destinations in central territory. The wood pulp is carried in intercoastal traffic, much of it moving by water through the Panama Canal. The rates were published to meet water and truck competition.

The schedules were filed to become effective August 15 and to expire March 31, 1933, unless sooner canceled. The Mississippi Valley Barge Line Co., the Mississippi Valley Association and transcontinental railroads operating from north Pacific Coast territory protested and the rates were suspended pending investigation.

Engineer Badly Injured In Pennsylvania Wreck

Monmouth Junction, N. J., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—The four-track main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad between New York and Philadelphia was blocked by wreckage this afternoon following a collision between a freight train and a work train.

The engineer of the freight train, William Frank, 48, Newark, was seriously injured.

Roosevelt Braves Weather To Meet Chauffeur's Family

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt rode for more than a mile through the cold and damp tonight to sit in an open car while his chauffeur presented the members of his family.

Monteford Snyder, the governor's driver, brought to the car, one by one, his father and mother, Mr and Mrs James Snyder; his sister, Mrs Robert Williams; her son, Bobby, and his own daughter, Joan.

"My wife is sick, governor," he said, after he had presented them. "She is in the window watching. Won't you wave to her?" And looking toward the window of the frame house from which a light twinkled, Mr. Roosevelt waved his hat and shouted to the figure looking out.

Little Bobby shook the governor's hand heartily.

"How old are you?" asked Mr Roosevelt.

"Four, almost five," he replied promptly.

Joan shook hands with him and smiled, but had nothing to say.

"You know," Mr. Roosevelt told the father and mother, "Monte has avoided running over thousands and thousands of people in the crowds that we have been in. Some of the jams we have been in have been perfectly terrible."

BALLOT TASK FACED BY VIRGINIA VOTERS

Must Draw Lines Through at Least 25 of 90 Names on List.

Virginia voters must draw lines through at least 25 of the 90 names which will face them on their ballot today if their vote is to be counted, and the straight voters' task will be made more difficult by the fact that no party designation appears to mark the names.

To vote for the presidential choice, lines must be drawn through the names of all presidential and vice presidential candidates except those favored by the voter. There are six aspiring Presidents named on the ballot and six would-be Vice Presidents. This means that lines must be drawn through ten of the twelve names in the national race—if the ballot is to be valid.

In the race for the U. S. House of Representatives there are 24 names and all but 9 of these must have lines drawn through them. The Democratic forces, however, through their control of the election machinery, have arranged for their candidates to head the list of names. Democratic voters, then, will leave untouched the first nine names and mark off the rest. It is not necessary to draw lines through the names of any of the presidential electors.

POLITICAL SITUATION TENSE IN FAR WEST

President Will Find G. O. P. Lead Cut in California; Area Has 49 Votes.

San Francisco, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Swirling political cross-currents held the Far Western electorate in a tight grip tonight as the 1932 campaign swept toward the election vortex.

A maddening whirl of issues, State and national, encompassed the 5,000,000 voters of seven Western States. It looked like a wet election in Oregon and Washington, speaking of the weather, but fair in the rest of the territory.

Entry of President Hoover to the Far West at Salt Lake City and his dash to California to vote drew the attention of all partisans as they speculated on the effect his presence would have in Western States that have piled up a big Democratic registration as compared with 1928. Forty-nine electoral votes are the prize in the West.

Democrats Cut Lead.

The President will find a different situation when he crosses the high Sierra early tomorrow into his home State than when he left nearly four years ago to assume his duties in the White House. Then his party held a voting strength in California almost a million greater than the Democratic opposition, but this lead has been reduced to 400,000 by a record Democratic registration.

Mr. Hoover also will find an opposition created by the bolt from the Republican ranks of Senator Hiram Johnson, who came out flat-footed for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and campaigned for him. Then there is the three-sided race for U. S. Senator, with the Republican incumbent, Samuel M. Shortridge, missing because of a primary defeat last August.

Candidates in California's most puzzling senatorial conflict in many a year are Tallant Tubbs, Republican; William G. McAdoo, Democrat, and the Rev. Robert P. Shuler, prohibitionist.

More than Statewide attention was attracted by the campaign in Idaho where Senator William E. Borah stumped the State for reelection of his colleague, John Thomas, who was confined to his home by illness. Borah discussed national issues but refrained from indorsing either Hoover or Roosevelt.

Utah's electorate centered attention on the fight for reelection of Reed Smoot, Republican senator for 30 years, who is opposed by Dr. Elbert D. Thomas, Democrat.

Washington Power Fight.

The power issue was paramount in Washington, with the veteran Republican senator, Wesley L. Jones, hard pressed by his Democratic opponent, Homer T. Bone.

The tariff, prohibition and the record of the Republican incumbent, Frederick Steiwer, were at issue in the Oregon race, with Walter B. Gleason, Democrat, seeking to unseat Steiwer.

A banking holiday in Nevada, resulting from the temporary closing of a chain of banks controlled by the interests of George Wingfield, Republican national committeeman, has thrown an unknown factor into the senatorial contest in that State. Senator Tasker L. Oddie, Republican, was opposed by R. A. McCarran, Democrat.

Senator Carl Hayden, Democrat, and an old-time political foe, Ralph Cameron, former Republican senator, whom he defeated in 1926, contended for the Arizona senatorial seat.

TELLS ENTRANT ABOUT SHOW

Stanley W. Jacobson, master of ceremonies at the baby contest which will feature the District Grocery Stores food show at the auditorium, explaining the show to Miss Helen S. Panitz, of 1504 Varnum street northwest, one of the entrants. The food show opens tomorrow night and there will be a separate baby show every afternoon after Thursday, the winners being selected by the applause from the audience.

The Post Introduces New Sport to Youth of Capital

Rick-Rack Is Described as a Fascinating Amusement Requiring Considerable Skill; Tennis Player and Noted Dancer Become Fans.

It always looks so simple when Babe Ruth steps up to the home plate and gives the ball a ride over the fence, and so it is with Rick-Rack, the new sport that is being introduced to Washington youngsters by The Washington Post.

"Nothing to it" is your first thought when you see some clever boy or girl nonchalantly keeping a tiny ball in the air; batting it 15 or 20 feet and cleverly hitting it out once more as a long elastic cord snaps it back in the direction of the player, or possibly juggling two balls up and down with two paddles, crossing the hands back and forth and showing other evidence of the technique that a little practice will develop.

Easy? But try it! First attempts invariably result in futile entanglement with the elastic cord or in wild swings that miss the elusive ball by feet. Even experienced ping-pong and tennis players discover that their hands and eyes are hardly quick enough to master the Rick-Rack without intensive practice, but there is a fascination to the game that keeps them trying until they do master the art.

"Bob" Considine, well-known sports writer and tennis player, was one of those observed in clandestine practice with the Rick-Rack, while Ann Pennington, now appearing at Loew's Fox Theater, resigned from competition with Charles Judels when her famous knees quickly became "wrapped-up" in the game.

In short, Rick-Rack is a game that appeals to those of every age. Grown-ups get as much amusement from it as the younger generation and soon find that it is not the simple pastime that it appears, but a real sport and art that requires the finest coordination of eye and hand and that it is capable of interesting variations and competition.

Rick-Rack has risen to great popularity throughout the Southern States and more particularly in Georgia where it originated. Because of its comprehensive appeal The Washington Post has sponsored the game in Washington and has made complete Rick-Rack outfits available at the business offices of The Post for the nominal charge of 10c, plus the coupon that appears elsewhere in this paper today.

FOOD SHOW OPENS TOMORROW NIGHT

Afternoon Baby Contests to Be Among Features of Auditorium Event.

More than 400 entries have been received for the series of baby contests which will mark the ten-day food show of the District Grocery Stores at the Auditorium, which opens at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow.

A separate baby show will be held every afternoon, the winners being selected by the applause of the audience. No previous entry is required, any child older than 1 year and less than 4, being eligible at any time. Stanley Jacobson, himself only 6 years old, will act as master of ceremonies for the contests.

Approximately 50 manufacturers of household goods and food products have arranged exhibits for the show, which will be open from 2 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 7:30 p. m. to 10 p. m. every day. In addition to the baby shows, other contests and the awarding of valuable prizes will mark the food exhibit.

At 9:30 p. m. tomorrow an old-fashioned costume contest for girls will be the chief feature, while a 28-piece rock crystal set will also be given away. Thursday the first session of the baby show will be held in the afternoon, while a pie-eating contest for girls will feature the night show. Another valuable prize will be awarded at both the afternoon and night shows.

In addition to the prizes of household furnishings, awards of food products will be made every hour from the stage, and a large fancy cake will be given away each night.

Seventy-eight policemen are to be transferred from other precincts to First Precinct and all captains are ordered to be on duty in command of their precincts during the night.

POLLS IN ARLINGTON OPEN AT 6:42 A. M.

All Banks Will Be Closed; Competitive Drill to Be Armistice Feature.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With one of the most spirited campaigns closed, and both parties claiming the county, citizens at sunrise today will march to the polls, and it is predicted that the vote will exceed 9,000.

County Republican Chairman L. C. MacPherson stated last night that every precinct is well organized. Provisions have been made for automobiles to take voters to the polls.

The polls will open at 6:42 a. m., and close at 5:01 p. m. All banks will be closed.

A competitive drill by the Washington-Lee High School Cadet Corps, a county-wide parade and outdoor dancing will feature the Armistice Day celebration in the county, sponsored by Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, and the business men of Clarendon.

Present plans contemplate the drill at 1:30 o'clock at the Clarendon square to be followed by the parade at 2 o'clock, starting from the courthouse.

The parade, of which Leon Arnold will be grand marshal, will be headed by the Cadet Corps Band, the Bugle and Drum Corps of the local post, followed by a number of floats. At the high school there will be a reviewing stand. The high school contingent will drop out at this point to attend a football game between the Washington-Lee High School and Alexandria High School.

Catholic Alumni Hosts at Dinner

Rev. James H. Ryan, Aid and Bergman Are Honor Guests.

The Washington Chapter of the Catholic University Alumni Association held a dinner meeting last night in the main dining hall of the university, with the Right Rev. James H. Ryan, rector; the Rev. Maurice S. Sheehy, assistant to the rector, and Arthur J. Bergman, director of athletics, as honor guests. Daniel J. Ryan, '19, president of the local chapter, acted as toastmaster.

A musical program was provided by Miss Mary O'Donohue, well-known Washington entertainer, and by John J. McManus and William Hannan, soloist of the University Glee Club. The meeting was the largest gathering of C. U. A. alumni in several years.

Edmund J. Cammack, '16, chairman of the homecoming committee, announced plans for the annual gathering of alumni for the C. U.-Duquesne game on November 18.

Play
RICK-RACK
The Fascinating New Game

A great new pastime, that has swept its way to popularity throughout the South, now makes its debut in Washington through The Washington Post. It is a blend of Ping-Pong and Yo-Yo; played with a paddle and ball, but with the ball attached to the paddle by means of an elastic cord. All sorts of tricks can be done with the Rick-Rack—with practice—but it is equally fascinating to the inexperienced.

PAYING THE GRIDIRON HEROES.

UNDERGRADUATES at Columbia University are advocating paid football teams. In the college organ they hold that while it may be all right for a football hero to do and die for dear old Alma Mater, he should at least make expenses.

* * * *

The boys would have the players paid on a basis of workmanship, thus combining good clean sport with general business training and making it perfectly ethical for any student to work his way through college by playing on the varsity.

* * * *

Whether they favor a bonus system, affording extra pay for touchdowns and field goals, is not stated, but if the idea goes through there may be no incentive in college football more overpowering than a full back's desire to make an extra five dollars.

* * * *

It is even possible that the most important position on a college eleven will be the bookkeeper and that the big fight at the end of the season will not be so much over the election of next year's captain as the choice of a good 180-pound line plunging cashier.

* * * *

Running Account of the Game.

Paretti, a $25 a week Columbia man, was given the ball on the first play and was thrown for a 10-yard loss. This demonstrated the folly of cheap help.

* * * *

On the next play Gadski took the ball around right end for 15 yards. Gladski gets $35 a week, which goes to show how far an extra ten dollars will go these days.

* * * *

The opposing team went into an immediate huddle, and on a promise of a $5 raise for every man on the team the line then tightened and held the enemy without further gains.

The ball then went to the Ardsley eleven and on a delayed pass Capt. Benzoate made 20 yards. He followed this up with a plunge through center for 15 more. On the next play he went around left end for 35 yards. This made 70 yards in three plays. It developed that Benzoate is being paid by space.

* * * *

At this point Columbia took out one of its $10 a game men and sent in two fives.

* * * *

The strategy proved poor business and Spewack, of Ardsley, then went over for a touchdown. He was immediately voted a raise of $12.50 a game with traveling expenses.

* * * *

Old grads of Columbia, humiliated by their team's poor showing, immediately signed a petition asking for a new wage scale for the team.

Developing an Idea.

THE Chinese of New York named John P. O'Brien, Tammany candidate for mayor, "Scent of Chrysanthemum." Why not in future campaigns name the candidates similarly? It would soften the spirit of the battle to read that "Breath of the Lotus Flower" was appealing to all true voters ("Brains of the Daffydill") to support him in his campaign against Joseph P. "Pollen of the Trailing Arbutus."

Football Season Dialogues.

First Motorist—How far is it from here to the stadium?

Second Enthusiast—You can make it on another pint.

Apropos of Mr. Hoover's preelection prediction that tampering with the tariff would make the grass grow in a thousand towns, Elmer Twitchell says that he wishes something would be done about making it grow on public golf links.

Radio Dial Flashes

HOOVER?

Roosevelt?

The Postilion over WMAL at 10 o'clock tonight, followed by the 11 o'clock street edition of The Washington Post, the only morning Associated Press paper, may answer this question.

If not they will show definite indications of the drift of the avalanche of votes to be cast today.

It will be a memorable night over the radio, with everything anticipated, even to the setting up of microphones at Palo Alto and Hyde Park, in the hope of securing a few words from the winner when the result is known.

EUROPE'S noted Wiener Saengerknaben, the boy's choir which sang in Washington last Tuesday afternoon, will be heard over the radio this afternoon (WRC, 4:45 o'clock). The famous Viennese group, which counts Schubert, Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven among its alumni, will sing for a half hour. Arrangements have been made for Edgar L. G. Prochnik, Austrian Minister to Washington, to introduce the Viennese singers to the American radio audience. The concert will be rebroadcast in Europe, if weather conditions permit.

The Metropolitan Opera Co. performance will be back on the air, beginning Thanksgiving Day, when the N. B. C. resumes its broadcasts from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City.

Lily Pons and Giovanni Martinelli will have the leading roles in "Lakme," which will open the broadcast series.

ALLEGING that other stations are being discriminated against in favor of newspaper-owned radio stations by the American Society of Composers, Senator Dill, of Washington, predicts legislation of Congress regulating the amount of copyright fees paid to composers. Warning the newspaper stations against this, Senator Dill writes to Broadcasting Magazine in part as follows:

"There is already a growing sentiment in the country that newspapers should not be permitted to own radio stations. I have never believed that Congress should legislate to that extent, but if the newspaper-owned stations are to be special favorites of this monopolistic music organization, then there will be new reason for legislation that will prohibit the newspapers from owning and operating broadcasting stations.

"I am more and more convinced that Congress must at an early date pass legislation to compel fair treatment by any organization controlling any considerable amount of copyrighted music, to the extent of compelling them to charge no unreasonable fees, make no unjust requirements and, above all, make no discriminatory agreements."

THE rakish funnels on the motor ships in ocean commerce, incorporated in the design usually as an acknowledgement to conventional appearance and not for utility, may become useful features if the plan of a British firm is accepted by other merchant marine interests.

The British firm, the White Star Line, has installed its wireless equipment in the dummy funnel of the Georgic, a new liner. The funnel is large enough to hold the entire equipment usually found in the radio rooms, including long and short wave transmitters in addition to the apparatus required under the regulations for the safety of life at sea.

ERNEST SCHELLING, concert pianist, composer and conductor, will open the third season of broadcasts of the concerts for children and young people by the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra over WJSV, beginning Saturday, November 12, from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m.

There will be twelve broadcasts in all, divided into two series of six each. The first and more elementary series, which begins on November 12, will be devoted to illustration and explanation of the various instruments of the symphony orchestra, while the second and more advanced group, starting November 19, will deal primarily with the development of the concerto, one of the most fundamental of musical forms.

The MacDowell Festival, which is being celebrated this year in memory of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the great American composer's death, will be commemorated in both series through the inclusion of MacDowell compositions.

THOMAS ENDS DRIVE BY RAP AT PARTIES

Avers Neither Republicans Nor Democrats Have Good Program.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, closed his campaign tonight, with the assertion that "neither of the old parties has any program for bringing us out of our misery and fear" and a plea to farmers and workers—employed and unemployed—to give his party "the power we seek by your votes."

"Every vote will count," said the Socialist standard-bearer in the prepared copy for his speech here. "It will be only the size of the Socialist vote and the strength of the Socialist organization which will enable us to force on whatever party is elected a program which next winter will avert starvation punctuated by riots in cities and in country districts."

The candidate declared that for his party "tomorrow is not the end of a campaign, but the beginning of a new and greater crusade," and said he welcomed to the permanent organization it was building those resolved not "to waste their votes by futile choices between tweedledum and tweedledee."

Both the Democratic and Republican candidates and their supporters were accused by Thomas of having conducted campaigns "marked, as usual, by economic and political coercion" and of having "insulted our conscience and intelligence" in campaign statements.

Roosevelt's Quick Succession Asked

U. S. Civil Legion Advises Hoover to Resign in Case of Defeat.

Chicago, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—John P. Tansey, secretary of the United States Civil Legion, today made public a telegram addressed to President Hoover by the legion's legal adviser asking the President to guarantee quick succession to office for Gov. Roosevelt in the event the Democrats were successful at the polls tomorrow. The telegram, addressed to the President at Elko, Nev., where he was expected to speak tonight, said, in part:

"It would be an evidence of true patriotism and good sportsmanship if you would announce to the world tonight that if the majority of American voters approve of the Democratic platform and insure election of Gov. Roosevelt, you will immediately secure the resignation of your Secretary of State, will appoint Gov. Roosevelt to that position, and then will tender the resignation of yourself and the Vice President so as to enable Gov. Roosevelt to assume charge of the Government at once and save the people the four months' delay which your retention in office would entail. This suggestion is made with all due deference to your high office and its responsibilities."

The United States Civil Legion is composed of various wartime Government employes.

Kansas Senator Says Defeat Would Delay Return to Prosperity.

Shenandoah, Iowa, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—United States Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, pleaded tonight in an election-eve address for the reelection of President Hoover, asserting Democratic success would delay economic recovery at least one year.

"It is my solemn belief that the reelection of Hoover and Curtis will mean a steady march on the road to recovery from depression," the Kansan said, in the prepared copy of his address released by party headquarters.

"It is also my solemn belief," he added, "that the election of Roosevelt and Garner will mean at least a year of delay in starting that march toward recovery."

"Agriculture's tariff protection must be held at all costs," Senator Capper said. "But tariff protection for agriculture will be destroyed if the Democratic party, with its competitive tariff program, is put in power."

Roosevelt Wishes McAdoo Success

Garner Also Wires Hopes for His Victory in Senate Race.

Los Angeles, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Receipt of telegrams from Gov. Roosevelt and Speaker Garner to William G. McAdoo, conveying good wishes for his election to the United States Senate from California in Tuesday's election, was announced today at Democratic headquarters.

The presidential nominee wired, "I am confident of your and our success Tuesday."

His Democratic running mate said: "May I not, through you, urge my friends in California to do all in their power to elect you senator Tuesday? It is so very, very important that Gov. Roosevelt have a good working majority in both Senate and House to carry out Democratic policies so necessary to the country's relief."

Last-Minute Pleas Barred in Alabama

Act of 1915 Forbids Vote Solicitation on Day of Election.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—No candidates will tug at a voter's sleeve in Alabama tomorrow, and the electorate will be without benefit of editorial advice regarding last minute political appeals. The corrupt practices act of 1915, specifically says "electioneering or soliciting voter" is forbidden on election day.

This has been interpreted to prohibit newspapers from printing speeches or reviving issues of the campaign either in news stories or editorials.

"The safe thing for newspapers to do," said the attorney general's office at Montgomery today, "is not to print such matter on this date." So last minute appeals of candidates will not appear in Alabama newspapers tomorrow.

Address Delivered on Eve Of Election by Thomas

Milwaukee, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—The text of the election eve address by Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, tonight follows:

In the midst of the worst depression America has known a characteristic national political campaign has been waged. On the part of both old parties, divided only by lust for office, it has been a campaign of superficiality, invective and ballyhoo. It has been a campaign marred, as usual, by economic and political coercion.

In the Democratic States of Louisiana, Florida and Oklahoma the Socialists and other minority groups have been kept off the ballot by outrageous laws or interpretations of laws against which Gov. Roosevelt, in whose behalf these betrayals of representative government have been engineered, has refused to protest. (I think, however, that he and his party will learn that Socialists and lovers of justice in Oklahoma will have found some way to mark their ballots for the cause in which they believe.)

In some States and cities the attempted coercion of voters has been primarily economic, mostly in behalf of the Republican party. But despite all this, despite the unjust racial discrimination which is worst in Democratic States, despite the barriers of poll taxes and outrageous discrimination against the unemployed which will bar thousands of workers from the polls, millions of you tomorrow will go to your voting places where, alone with his conscience, each may vote as king. Gone for the moment will be the tumult and the shouting, gone will be any effective control over men who dare to be free. In this invisible presence of the great cloud of witnesses whose sacrifices won for you the right of the ballot you will exercise your choice. How will you do it?

Advises Against Throwing Votes Away.

If you belong to the comfortable owning class you may perhaps with some logic vote for one or another of the old parties which by their skill in cajoling and coercing the masses may protect for a little while longer your favored economic position and social prestige. Even so, you who have eyes for the future and love in your hearts for a civilization of security and peace will rise above class interest and cast your vote tomorrow for socialism.

Most surely if you are a farmer, serf to the landlord, the mortgage-holder, the market speculator and the middleman, you will no longer throw away your vote on either of the two old parties, both financed by Wall street, which between them have let our dying capitalism drift to such a pitch of ruin for you that in some places you can get more for a load of sawdust than a load of wheat.

If you are a worker or professional man who must find your reward and whatever security you hope to have in the fruits of honest work, you will want this year to renounce the insanity of voting for a party which seeks to perpetuate the glorified racketeering which capitalism has become—a racket in which all the rich material prizes go to manipulators and speculators.

We live in a world where the right use of our natural resources and the splendid machinery we have had the wit to invent makes it for the first time possible to conquer poverty and the reign of scarcity on which capitalism has flourished and to base our civilization on an abundance of the good things of life, an abundance as equitably distributed as water in a well-supplied city. It is our shame that we have invented a new form of misery, the misery of those who are cold and hungry in the midst of plenty and who are rendered ever more insecure by every new triumph of man's inventive genius. I do not intend to dwell on misery so profound that the best President Hoover can do is to insist that it might be worse. There are upward of 13,000,000 unemployed in America, to say nothing of those partially unemployed.

Two hundred thousand boys in this richest country in the world are vagabonds cruelly deprived of their homes by that capitalism which falsely accuses us Socialists of being enemies of the home. Perhaps the jokes of America are more significant than the statistics. All over the country men grimly laugh at a jest, the only point of which is that a man got a job by pushing another man in the river, or at those other jests—all too true—which tell how farmers have to pay the tobacco merchants, the cotton brokers and the great dairy trusts for taking their products off their hands.

Both Major Parties Lack Relief Program.

The really significant thing is that neither of the old parties has any program for bringing us out of this our misery and fear. Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt have insulted our conscience and intelligence, the one by his amazing statement, "We have made arrangements and given assurances that none among us shall suffer cold or hunger," and the other by alleging that he had "a complete program of unemployment relief," a year before Washington acted—this in a State where he did not lift his finger to help us pass the antiseven-day-week bill, and where, having agreed to the Socialist argument for the necessity of a special session of the Legislature to make adequate provision for the unemployed, he later refused to call such a session although in the last three months in New York City alone 47,000 families, the less hungry of the hungry, have been put off our relief lists when, instead, thousands should have been added.

What both old parties hope is that we shall drift out of this depression as we have done in former crises. It is cold comfort, for the record of the last century shows that we never have had true prosperity and security but are always either going up in a gamblers' boom or coming down into cruel depression. If we ever come partially out of this depression it will be only as a man might recover from smallpox in time to get the cholera. None of the fundamental causes of depression has been or can be met by this capitalism which Hoover extols and Roosevelt seeks to sugar-coat with promises impossible of fulfillment.

There is no chance that automatically, as in the last century, the demands of an increased population will tend to catch up with the increase of productive power of machinery, even under the misrule of capitalism. The population tends to become stationary and the productive power of machinery steadily to increase. The purchasing power of the farmers, so far as capitalism is concerned, is permanently depressed. The workers have suffered wage cuts under various systems, from which they shall not and will not soon recover, even if employment slightly picks up. The engineers of the technocracy group have assured us that a restoration of the productive level of 1929 will only reemploy about 50 per cent of those now unemployed.

In all this long campaign no responsible person has dared to meet the challenge I have thrown out at almost every meeting: "Show me how will you keep our present capitalism and still prevent the unemployment that is inherent within it." We drift. I solemnly warn you, on this last night before the election not even to such unsatisfactory harbors of temporary security as we knew before the World War. Under the present situation, economic and political, we who worship at the twin altars of the golden calf and the Moloch of absolute jingoistic nationalism, drift either to the catastrophe of a new world war or to that last stage of capitalism, fascism, which may, at great price to liberty, temporarily avert catastrophe, only to make it more deadly when it comes. Against the preachers of fascism and the communist prophets of inevitable violence who by their prophecies promote fascism, I repeat my warning: In this land of lynching, the third degree, organized gangsterism and multitudinous hates, deliberately to unleash wholesale violence is the way to the dark ages.

Socialism Is Declared Alternative of Voter.

What, then, is the alternative? First of all, it is new purpose, new loyalty, new philosophy. Deliberately I put purpose above plan. The philosophy of the Declaration of Independence had to stir men's hearts in order to make possible the practical planning of a new Nation. We are sick for lack of an adequate loyalty. Machinery itself requires for its efficient use the ideal of solidarity and fraternity.

First, then, we Socialists proclaim the possibility and practicability of a federation of cooperative Commonwealths in which land, natural resources, public utilities, the banking system, and great aggregations of machinery are socially owned and managed for use, not profit. This system, and only this system will guarantee to individuals food, clothing, homes and comforts they can call their own. It means a society where no able-bodied adult can live without work and none shall seek work in vain nor be crushed by a weight of intolerable toil. The condition of that society is a flaming loyalty to a brotherhood of workers with hand and brain which shall cross racial, religious and national lines.

Inspired by this great purpose and this loyalty, we offer you practical plans, which by the written and spoken word we have claimed up and down this country.

To farmers we have said that security for the working farmer is his own home, requires an end of private landlordism, drastic revision of taxes, an immense lightening of the burden to debt, and a socialization of marketing agencies, which deal with what the farmer buys and what he sells.

To unemployed workers we have insisted that although the complete repeal of unemployment requires the achievement of socialism, now we can declare a holy war on poverty as once we declared an unholy and unnecessary war on Germany and financed that war, which means construction and not destruction. We can provide a maintenance wage for unemployed workers until we help them to find work. The immediate payment of the bonus, not by any means to all veterans, but to unemployed veterans, might help in this task. We can provide work by our great program of housing under public authority, electrifying rural areas, reforesting devastated hillsides, and bringing idle factories and idle men together.

To you all, employed and unemployed, we proclaim the practicability of planned socialization of natural resources, public utilities, and banking. We have described the way in which we would use taxation, and especially the capital levy, to further our social end. We, and we alone, have proclaimed a practical program for preventing war while we seek to change the system which is the breeder of war. That program includes the recognition of Russia, the end of imperialism and the use of the Marine Corps to maintain in Managua an order lacking in Chicago, a refusal to provision with loans and munitions belligerent nations at war, and a genuine plan for disarmament and internationalism which our platform plainly sets forth in detail that I have not time to duplicate.

Warns of Starvation And Riots This Winter.

But all this is vain unless you tomorrow give us the power we seek by your votes. We can win if and when enough of you believe we can win and act in that belief. Every vote will count. It will only be the size of the Socialist vote and the strength of Socialist organization which will enable us to force on whatever party is elected a program which next winter will avert starvation punctuated by riots in cities and in country districts. Only Socialism can aver new legalized repressions and tyranny.

For us Socialists, tomorrow is not the end of a campaign, but the beginning of a new and greater crusade. We are building a permanent organization. To that we welcome the company of those resolved no longer to waste their votes by futile choices between Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

So I come to my farewell. To my comrades and fellow workers, the unknown soldiers of this war for peace, in farms and mining camps and great cities, my affectionate thanks, my greetings and my hopes for the victories that yet we shall win. To my friends, known and unknown, who have honored me and my fellow workers with attentive hearing and possibly some measure of support, my thanks. I can offer you no other reward than invitation to cast in your lot with us not only at the polls tomorrow, but in the struggle which lies ahead. To voters I can wish nothing more than that you shall as free men and women vote your hopes and not your fears.

To watchers at the polls for us tomorrow I commend vigilance in the protection of a free ballot. And to all I say: In this hour of crisis the vote we roll up tomorrow and the organization we build through the weeks and months that lie ahead will determine the fate of our children and our children's children. It will give us new hope, new courage and new power to make in orderly and in peaceful fashion the inevitable transition from a dying capitalism, from the outworn acquisitive society which has given us this jungle to the cooperative society from which shall be forever banished poverty, economic insecurity, tyranny and the menace of war.

SOUTHWEST RESULT HANGING IN BALANCE

Hebert Surrenders Oklahoma, but Fergusons Handicap Texas Democrats.

Kansas City, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Claims and counterclaims of political leaders showed an unsettled condition in Southwestern States tonight on the eve of the 1932 general election.

As the voters took the reins from the hands of candidates and campaigners, one of the four States which stretch from the Missouri Valley to the Rio Grande had been conceded to the Democrats by the Republican high command. Senator Felix Hebert, Eastern campaign manager for the Republican party, made the concession of Oklahoma, although Republicans there expressed belief there remains much of the sentiment which gave Hoover a 175,000 majority in 1928.

In that State of Oklahoma, the fiery and picturesque Gov. W. H. ("Alfalfa Bill") Murray was campaigning not only for the Democratic national and State tickets, but for a stringent income-tax measure. On the latter he was opposed by the Citizens League, but no claims were voiced that this would affect the presidential voting. Former Gov. W. J. Holloway, an active campaigner, predicted Gov. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, would "sweep every county in the State."

Brinkley Confident.

Dr. John R. Brinkley, whose independent candidacy for Governor of Kansas had muddied political waters in the home State of Vice President Charles Curtis, President Hoover's running mate, was said by Ernest A. Dewey, his publicity director, to have 371,325 votes in sight. The figure, based "on polls taken every week in every county," involved nearly half the expected Kansas poll, and, if based on fact, threatened straight-ticket voting in the Sunflower State, making the presidential result uncertain.

On the other hand, Guy T. Helvering, Democratic State chairman, credited "a careful survey and study of the reports" with an indication Gov. Harry H. Woodring's Democratic plurality would be 30,000 to 35,000 and Gov. Roosevelt would "sweep the State with a 50,000 plurality."

Frank Carlson, Republican State chairman, asserted Kansas is Republican by a margin of 150,000 votes. He said: "The party is united. We will carry Kansas for the entire Republican ticket. The gains made by Hoover in Kansas since the Des Moines speech are little short of miraculous. Alfred M. Landon will lead his nearest rival for the governorship by at least a plurality of 65,000."

Both Claim Missouri.

Missouri was claimed by both major parties. The Missouri Democratic campaign had been marred in midswing by the death of the party's elected gubernatorial nominee, Francis M. Wilson. The substitute of the State central committee, Judge Guy B. Park, became the target of a Republican anti-bossism campaign. It was waged bitterly by Lieut. Gov. Edward H. Winter, Republican nominee, and his aids, who appealed openly for Democratic support against boss rule, alleging Park was controlled by a Kansas City ring. In spite of this Rubey M. Hulen, Democratic State chairman, predicted Gov. Roosevelt would carry Missouri by 800,000 votes and "the entire Democratic State ticket would be elected by large majorities."

The Republican counterclaim was voiced by Arthur M. Curtis, Republican chairman, in a St. Louis statement. He said President Hoover would carry Missouri "as a result of a turnover in sentiment the last two weeks," and added Winter would be elected governor "by a substantial majority."

"Ma" Handicaps Roosevelt.

Republicans had not given up Texas, despite its history of Democratic regularity, which the Hoover landslide four years ago upset. Although Senator Hebert's concession of the "Solid South" to Roosevelt may have included Texas, they counted not only upon a carry-over of Hoover sentiment, but upon a State battle which threatened to elect a Republican governor. For the second time in less than ten years, many Texas Democrats had joined with Republicans in an effort to defeat a woman candidate for governor. She is Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, former governor and wife of James E. Ferguson, impeached in 1917 and removed from the same high office. Orville Bullington, Republican of Wichita Falls, was to get the benefit of the anti-Ferguson campaign, waged by Democratic Gov. R. S. Sterling, nosed out of his party's nomination by Mrs. Ferguson. Thomas A. Love, who led the antiSmith revolt four years ago, and Cato Sells, both Democratic leaders of national prominence, were advocating Bullington's election and former Gov. Dan Moody had announced he would oppose the woman he defeated for a second term in 1926.

Speaker John Nance Garner, Roosevelt's running mate, unworried about the effect of the governorship squabble upon the national Democratic ticket, had gone hunting and fishing today, showing confidence paralleling that of Vice President Curtis in Kansas who, a former jockey and a lover of horseflesh, attended a horseshow at Wichita. "Everything is fine," Curtis said.

MacDonald Fears Delay of Parley

British Premier Raps Talk of Postponing World Economic Meeting.

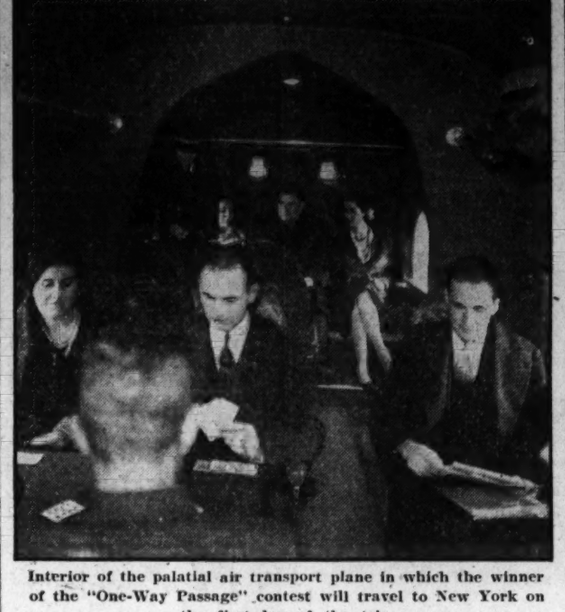
London, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Painting a gloomy picture of the European economic situation, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald told the House of Commons today that the world economic conference should start its sessions before Christmas.

"Anybody who understands the issues at stake and talks about spring or early summer as a date for that conference deserves the strongest censure," the prime minister said.

Every nation in the world is depending on the success of the parley, he continued, and Great Britain will not be a party to postponement.

"Agreements must be secured for the interchange of goods, with all its ramifications and complexities," Mr. MacDonald told the House. "Otherwise there is very little hope for a return of really healthy international trade or for the return of real prosperity to any European country."

AMONG WINNER'S LUXURIES



Interior of the palatial air transport plane in which the winner of the "One-Way Passage" contest will travel to New York on the first leg of the trip.

Score of Words to Score Two Way Passage to Paree

Luxurious Trip Awaits Contest Winner and Escort.

You don't need scissors and paste! You don't need pen and ink! You don't need crayon or brush!

All that is needed to enter The Washington Post-Earle Theater "One Way Passage" contest is a pen or pencil, a piece of paper and twenty words.

The story of "One Way Passage," the Warner Bros. starring vehicle for Kay Francis and William Powell now being shown on the screen at Warner Bros. Earle Theater, is that of a man and woman deeply enamored of each other. The ending is very unusual and very dramatic and may be interpreted in many ways.

For the most logical twenty-word version of the unusual ending, The Washington Post, cooperating with Warner Bros. Earle Theater, the French Line, the Eastern Air Transport System and the Edison Hotel, will award a round trip to France with all expenses paid. The winner also can take an escort.

Here's the itinerary of the winner's trip:

From Washington to New York on one of those huge, finely equipped twenty-passenger airliners of the Eastern Air Transport, pleasant stay in New York at the luxurious Hotel Edison and then a trip across the Atlantic on the S. S. Paris, the French Line's "aristocrat of the seas."

Twenty words, no more, no less! No further effort is required and there is positively no obligation entailed. You need not even see the picture, as a synopsis of the story is published in this issue of The Post. Employes of The Post, Warner Bros. Theaters, the Edison Hotel, the French Line and the Eastern Air Transport System, and relatives of any of the employes of these firms, are barred from competition.

Send your entry to the "One Way Passage" Editor, The Washington Post, before midnight November 17.

SYNOPSIS

Dan Hardesty and Joan Ames meet in Hongkong's most famous international bar and fall in love at first sight. They are passengers on the same liner bound for San Francisco, but each hides from the other the sentence of death that hangs over them. Joan has in incurable heart ailment. Dan faces a death penalty at San Quentin.

Eluding officers, Dan has one glorious day with Joan at Honolulu. He plans to escape on a tramp steamer bound for Mexico. On the way to boat, he tells Joan of his trip. The shock brings another heart attack and Dan forfeits his chance for freedom in order to get the woman he loves safely back to the steamer. En route to the American coast she proposes that they meet New Year's Eve in Agua Caliente and Dan, hiding his grief, accepts with a cheerful smile. Later she learns from a steward what awaits him when he arrives. When he says good-by, they both repeat their pledges to meet below the Mexican border. At that supreme moment neither can say "good-by."

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THERE is probably no player before the public so saturated with the traditions of the theater, or so imbued with a passionate devotion to the profession of acting, as Paul Muni, imminent at the Metropolitan in what is described as one of the most engrossing film plays of the season, "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang."

PAUL MUNI

Yet Mr. Muni is a diffident young man who abhors notoriety and the usual publicity fanfares in which the ordinary thespian revels.

Whenever opportunity for a brief respite from the demands of the footlights or the Kliegs presents itself, he likes to slip away with Mrs. Muni to some small hotel at some obscure resort and call himself a musician.

After "Scarface" was completed, they went to the mountains for a vacation. The actor took his violin with him and registered under his right name of Muni Weisenfreund.

For a week or so, the Munis lived quietly, forming only such casual acquaintanceships as they chose. Then one day Mrs. Muni went walking with a woman she had just met.

"You needn't think you and your husband are fooling us," remarked the new companion of the mountain trails, after a variety of impersonal topics had been exhausted. "We know your husband is not a musician."

Mrs. Muni said nothing, but had visions of a ruined vacation and a probable hurried departure for another resort where lion-worship might for a time, at least, be evaded.

"We know he's a prize fighter," the woman continued. "But don't worry, we'll keep your little secret!"

And Mrs. Muni let her keep it!

It is not being kept a secret, however, that a special election night dance will be held at the Arabian Nights Ballroom tonight. As the election returns come in, they will be announced from the orchestra stand. Dancing will be from 9 to 12, with Meyer Davis' Washingtonians supplying the syncopation. The location of the ballroom, under the Earle Theater, makes it a convenient downtown spot in which to keep abreast of the voting.

And that reminds me. Since Mme. Schumann-Heink, appearing for the first time in a local motion picture theater as star of the current vaudeville bill at the Earle, has seen fit to recall to mind that there is such a thing as a pipe organ, it is interesting to know who was chosen to play her accompaniments from the console of the Earle's triple-manual instrument.

Habitual patrons of the Earle long since must have recognized the organist, who shares the duties of accompanist with Miss Katherine Pike Speeden, pianist, as Nell Paxton, long one of the ace organists of the former Crandall theaters, who served in similar capacity for the Warner Brothers until the pipe organ was eliminated from all Washington picture houses as a superfluous luxury.

Mrs. Paxton is one of Washington's most accomplished and most popular artists at the console and her reappearance, even briefly at the Earle, where she so long shared honors with Milton Davis, revives a flood of pleasant recollections of a day in our theaters when music was music.

Odds and ends of theater gossip gathered by Carter Barron, city manager of the Loew interests in Washington, and Eddy Gilmore, publicity director, while time-outing in New York City over the week-end:

It seems certain, at the moment, that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer soon will remake "The Merry Widow." ...Loew's Fox here is soon to get the concentrated, picture-house edition of "Desert Song," boiled down like "Rio Rita" and "Girl Crazy."...Also a pretentious production in the form of a big minstrel show, a form of entertainment the Capital has not seen since goodness knows when, or maybe even longer ago than that... "Red Dust," with Jean Harlow and Clark Gable, already previewed here, is the biggest box-office wow Broadway has seen since the opening of "Grand Hotel."...The Capitol Theater, where it is playing, can't get the customers inside, they come in such mighty droves...The theater front so impressed the good Doctor Barron that he plans to duplicate it at the Palace when "Red Dust" plays here following Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in "Prosperity."...Fred Stone and Eddie Cantor—not as a team, however—may come to Washington to play for Loew's...Will Osborne and his orchestra are definitely booked...Also Bing Crosby and perhaps the Boswell Sisters, Guy Lombardo and a repeat engagement of Arthur Tracy, "The Street Singer." ...The final moments of the University of Georgia-N. Y. University football game would not make such a hot picture (for that eminent Georgia Technician, Mr. Barron, to watch!)...New York is a big and wicked city!

Everything seems to be all set all over town for the special election night performances tonight.

At the last minute, the Earle Theater announces that because of the tremendous interest in an election that may be closer than many seem to think, the vaudeville bill will be presented at 9:30 o'clock, so that patrons may come in later than usual and still see the complete program. The election results will be announced at all performances beginning at 8 o'clock.

Over at RKO-Keith's, as I believe we have already intimated nine or ten times, Mr. Meakin has added an Ed Wynn revival to his regular program and will keep the home fires burning until it is definitely known who is going to be President of these United States for the next four years, if it takes all winter. It won't, because Mr. Meakin is getting the complete news service furnished by the up-to-the-minute facilities of The Washington Post!

And you might care to know that Lucille Page, startling those down front at the "Vanities," at the National, in her dinosaur dance—when the prehistoric monster plops her almost in the audience's lap—and Maxine Doyle, nearing the end of her second year as mistress of ceremonies at the Earle, started in show business together under the skillful tutelage of Fanchon & Marco, particularly Fanchon! Lucy was a backstage caller on Maxie Sunday afternoon and Maxie on Lucy Sunday night. Not that it matters.

Speaking of the "Vanities," Al Trahan and Yukona Cameron have broken in a new comedian for their act. Perkie, the wire-haired fox terrier, now does a bit in one of their sketches. They'll be giving the Packard a part next!

A little nice clean carbon monoxide poison gas would be a refreshing relief after the fumes of some of the "Vanities'" comedy skits, at that!

VON PAPEN EXPECTS REICHSTAG HARMONY

Says Opposition Majority Will Not Interfere With Recovery Work.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Berlin, Nov. 7.—President Paul von Hindenburg and Chancellor Franz von Papen will spare no effort to enable those sections of the new Reichstag which really desire to cooperate in the reconstruction of the Fatherland to translate that desire into action, the chancellor said in an exclusive interview today.

At the same time he expressed the conviction that the period of quiet following the German and American elections will have a salutary effect on the world's economy.

Herr von Papen, who was in excellent spirits and who greeted his interviewer with a cheerful, buoyant smile, responded to a remark on the fact that both Germany and the United States were voting at about the same time, in this fashion:

"No matter how the votes go in the United States tomorrow you will have four years of stability ahead. I fervently hope that with us, too, this election will be the last one in many a year.

Says World Needs Quiet.

"For, what the world, what business, what industry and what labor need above all is tranquillity, quiet, relief from political excitement.

"I cherish the confident expectation that when the Reichstag assembles it will develop a working majority capable of constructive work."

The new legislature was elected yesterday. One of the outstanding results of the voting was that Adolf Hitler's strength dropped from 37.7 per cent of the total ballots to 33 per cent, and his National Socialist party delegation in the Reichstag was cut from 230 to 195. The Communist Reichstag membership jumped from 89 to 100, the Centrists decreased their delegation from 75 to 70, the Nationalists returned 51 members against 37 in the old Reichstag, and the Socialists dropped from 133 to 121.

Chancellor von Papen admitted that on the face of arithmetical calculations the new Reichstag could pass a vote of nonconfidence.

Confers With Hindenburg.

"But when the members make clear to themselves that this majority is purely negative, I trust they will heed President von Hindenburg's appeal to their patriotism," he said.

The chancellor revealed that in the course of the day he talked at length with the venerable president who, he asserted, "will do everything humanly possible to give the Reichstag majority an opportunity to cooperate actively."

The result of the election, he said, met his anticipations exactly. "All we could expect was a gradual strengthening of those elements which are willing to lend a hand—and this obviously took place."

Germany's foreign policy, the chancellor continued, was no issue in the campaign, as there is a united front of all Germany on foreign political aims. Nor did he think the increase in the Communist vote should cause alarm in foreign countries.

Discounts Red Menace.

"Communism, of course, is a grave problem everywhere," he said, "but in Germany it merely means that the more radical Socialists went over to the Communists, just as they did in earlier periods of great economic distress, such as 1923. With better times they will be likely to leave the Communist banner again."

Concerning the government's next move the chancellor preferred to remain indefinite, with the obvious intention of not showing his hand prematurely. He gave the distinct impression of a man who regards it as well within the range of possibility to come to terms with his Nazi Centrist adversaries of yesterday but who prefers to have the other fellow in the political chess game make the next move.

"The least we can hope for is that when Parliament reassembles nothing will be done to disturb our program for creating work, which already is well under way. That is our fundamental problem."

END OF CAPITALISM NEAR, MOSCOW TOLD

Red War Head Says Trade Ills Point to Change; Addresses 50,000.

Moscow, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Climaxing a two-day celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the Soviet regime, K. E. Voroshiloff, commissar for war of the Soviet Union, told 50,000 troops of the Moscow garrison assembled in Red square today that the world depression signalizes the end of capitalism.

His address followed a parade of about 1,000,000 soldiers, sailors, workers and peasants, representing all the far-flung Socialist Republics of the Soviet Union.

Standing beside the war commissar, who was the only speaker, were Joseph Stalin, secretary of the Communist party and actual head of the Soviet Union; M. Molotoff, president of the council of people's commissars; Michael Kalinin, president of the central executive committee of the government, and other leaders.

These leaders earlier in the day had stood atop the Lenin mausoleum and smiled and waved their caps to the marchers.

"Our increasing successes in Socialist construction will continue until socialism comes to the whole world," declared Voroshiloff.

"Fifteen years ago we won the right to construct a Socialist society at the cost of much sacrifice of blood. We now are building only the first stories, but our immense successes so far, at a time when the rest of the world is unable to cope with the depression, show what can be done in the future."

Reiterating that Soviet Russia desires peace with the world, Mr. Voroshiloff added "we do not want to fight but our frontiers are sacred and we will never let any one cross them. The Red army is not strong alone because of its arms, but because it is the flesh and blood of the proletariat."

The speaker hailed Stalin as the "Bolshevist of Bolsheviks" and called for continued strides under his banner.

All downtown traffic was suspended and only essential industries operated. The celebration began yesterday, and tomorrow is set aside as an official "day of rest." Banners waving over the streets carried new slogans for the second five-year plan beginning January 1 and satirized the hated capitalists.

Niece of Ogden Mills Breaks With Marquis

London, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Lady Moira Forbes, a niece of Ogden Mills, the United States Secretary of the Treasury, has broken her engagement with the Marquis de Brissac. The announcement was made by her father, the Earl of Granard. Lady Moira is 22 years old and one of the richest girls in England, her mother being the daughter of the late Ogden Mills, who left a fortune of $10,000,000.

The Marquis de Brissac, eldest son of the Duc de Brissac and one of the best horsemen in France, became engaged to Lady Moira a year ago.

G. W. WARNED OF TRICKY WILLIAM-MARY ATTACK

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

COMPETITION is the life of business, so the best minds tell us, and although college football does not fall entirely within the category of business, competition among the District institutions for the patronage of Washington fandom is having a wholesome effect on the type of football entertainment here.

George Washington is now showing the way to the other local colleges in the matter of enticing the customers through the turnstiles by scheduling attractive games, but it is hardly likely that Catholic University, Georgetown and Maryland propose to permit the Colonials to appropriate all the big gates.

Catholic University is already making gestures toward obtaining the use of Griffith Stadium for home games, a site that G. W. and G. U. have found to be most popular. Athletic Director Dutch Bergman, of the Brookland school, is beginning to doubt that the spacious C. U. bowl holds out as great an attraction for District fans as the near-by ball park.

C. U. to List Three "Big" Games.

Bergman, too, is intent on scheduling at least three outstanding games for home consumption next season. It is known that C. U. had its choice of scheduling either Wake Forest or Alabama Poly this season, and chose the former, only to realize its mistake when Alabama Poly, which had a poor season in 1931, began to knock off Duke, Georgia Tech, Tulane and Mississippi, and is now unbeaten and a leading contender for the Southern Conference title.

But George Washington and Georgetown will not give up Griffith Stadium to Catholic U. without a struggle. For years when the Hilltoppers were bringing the only real football attractions to the Capital, they were the only team to use the ball park as a home field, and there may be a disposition on the part of the ball park officials to favor G. U. in case of conflicting dates.

But Griffith Stadium officials can not be blamed for awarding the use of the park to the college which brings the most attractive games to Washington, and that mere fact will provide an incentive to the local institutions to schedule outstanding teams.

G. W. Crowds Increase 200 Per Cent.

Thus far George Washington has proved conclusively that attractive games are profitable, the attendance at the Colonials' home contests having jumped approximately 200 per cent with such teams as Alabama, Iowa and North Dakota on the schedule here. The reduction in admission prices, too, has proven its popularity in record turnouts.

George Washington's success this season has determined Athletic Director Pixlee's future course in no uncertain manner. Hereafter the Colonials will operate as high in the big leagues of football as possible. The crowds that have responded to the games this year will permit G. W. to offer attractive guarantees to outstanding colleges and, with the depression taking its toll severly in other sections, many of the teams which in prosperous years would not deign to play in the Capital are led to consider worth-while offers.

Georgetown Provides Employment.

Georgetown's athletic department has been contributing all season to the relief of unemployment in a rather round-about manner.

Before every Georgetown game at the ball park the stadium crew is given orders to remove the large banners posted inside and outside the park advertising George Washington's coming games. Just as consistently as Georgetown removes the banners, George Washington orders them posted again.

MOTOR FIVE TO DRILL.

The recently organized Lustine-Nicholson basket ball team will practice tonight at 8 o'clock. All players are urged to report promptly.

100 Entered For Capital Golf Open

Shute and Manero Are Latest Stars Listed for Kenwood Play.

Local Pros Also Post Entries for Tourney on Saturday.

By DAVE HERMAN.

TWENTY-THREE additional entries, including the names of crack pros and amateurs, were received yesterday by the committee for the second National Capital open golf championship scheduled at the sporty Kenwood course Saturday and Sunday.

This boosts the list of entries to date to close to 100, with the next few days expected to see the field soar to well over the 150 mark. Outstanding in the latest list are Tony Manero, big shot from the Elmsford, N. Y., Club, always a potent contestant in the money battles; Al Heron, of Reading, Pa., sterling Pennsylvani open champion; Denny Shute, of Cleveland, Ryder Cup star, and Erie Ball, of Atlanta, Ga.

Many D. C. Entries Received.

A number of local pros and amateurs added their names to the list of entrants. They are Frank and Walter Cunningham, Burning Tree; J. Munro Hunter, local distance artist from Army and Navy; Mel Shorey, of East Potomac; T. J. Bibraski, unattached; J. W. Harvey, jr., and Dr. Larry Otell, Indian Spring; Volney G. Burnett and John Downey, unattached; James A. Maloney, Congressional; Dick Lunn, Burning Tree, and Howard Nordlinger, Woodmont.

Denny Shute, expected in town by Thursday with a flock of other golf notables, including the defending champion, Willie MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., recently won the Glenn Falls open, and is considered a good bet to finish in the money.

Despite the soggy course yesterday, a number of pros worked on their shots at Kenwood. Mel Shorey, the diminutive East Potomac pro, reported the best score, a 68—two below par. With a couple of birdies on his card, Shorty reeled off a brace of 34s, exhibiting power with his drives and iron shots. Eddie Williams, of the Westwood Club, Cleveland, reported a 73, while Reds Cunningham, Burning Tree, went around in 75.

Tommy Armour, former holder of four famous titles, continued his sub par playing at Congressional Country Club, indicating that he means "business" in the National Capital open. Scheduled to play in a foursome at Kenwood, Armour elected to wait until this afternoon.

Armour Showing Great Practice Form.

Yesterday, he shot the first nine of his former course in 36, and blazed home in 33 for a 69, three below par. He had a 69 on Saturday and a smashing 66 on Sunday. Despite the rain, Armour found the greens rather fast, although the fairways were heavy. He played with his brother Sandy, pro, who shot a 72; Billy Jones, who had 75, and long-hitting Parker Nolan, with 76. Armour and Jones won the match 2 up.

Walter Hagen, premier Detroit pro, returned from Glen Head, Long Island, yesterday, where he teamed Sunday with Gene Sarazen, British and American open champion, against Francis Ouimet, former American amateur king and Jess Sweetser, former British and United States amateur champion, in an 18-hole exhibition match for charity at the Women's National Golf and Tennis Club. Ouimet and Sweetser won, 1 up, when Sarazen three-putted the home green. Hagen, rallying on the last nine, wound up with 76. Sarazen had a 72. The Haig expects to take to the Kenwood course today.

Pitt's Battered Gridmen Are Given Day of Rest

Pittsburgh, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Bruised and battered after the bitter fight with Penn, the Pitt Panthers were given a rest today as Jock Sutherland charted an attack for the clash with the Nebraska Cornhuskers at Lincoln Saturday.

Some of the regulars are nursing hurts that may keep them on the sidelines, notably Ted Bailey, star end, and Izzy Weinstock, full back. Harvey Rooker and Heinie Weisenbaugh, both from Tarentum, Pa., would replace the two.

Scout Ray Montgomery reports Coach Dana Bible has sacrified weight for speed in his 1932 eleven. He says the Cornhuskers have an "even chance" against Pitt. The Panthers will leave Wednesday night, working out in Chicago and Omaha. Three teams will make the trip.

$10,000 SUIT AGAINST CUBS

Chicago, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—The precipe of a $10,000 suit against the Chicago National League Baseball Club was filed in circuit court here today on behalf of Dr. William H. McOwen, Boston physician. Dr. McOwen's attorney said the suit was a result of a fall by the doctor in the club's park here two years ago in which he suffered spine and hip injuries.

Midshipmen Seeking to Correct Weakness in Punting.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 7.—Navy Varsity football players who participated in the bruising game with Columbia on Saturday today enjoyed the customary lay-off from strenuous activities. Instead, Head Coach Rip Miller gathered his mainstays about him in the gymnasium for a lecture that usually follows a big game, in which he outlined the merits and demerits of their play.

The improved showing of the Tars as a whole was gratifying to the staff of mentors. The greater polish in offensive work was particularly noteworthy. But there were errors of commission, as well as omission, in Saturday's battle that will need correction before the players are sent into action against University of Maryland at Baltimore on the coming Saturday.

Navy Slow Getting Off Punts.

The most outstanding flaw perhaps was the slowness in getting off punts, as a result of which Columbia forwards surged through and blocked two kicks, one of which paved the way for Columbia's only touchdown, and ultimate victory.

While the varsity players were absorbing instructions from Coach Miller, second and third string teams engaged in a lively scrimmage session during a drizzling rain and on a soggy terrain, as a result of a heavy rainfall last night. Ben Walkup, regular right half back, who was given a complete rest last week, as a result of muscle injuries sustained in the Pennsylvania game, was on the field in togs, but engaged in only light work. He will be available for service against Maryland, however. Waybright, another back, and fastest man in the Academy, is about ready to go again. Otherwise the casual list is cleared.

Though Miller has made comparatively few changes in the make-up of his team since the season opened over a month ago, it looks now as though there will be a merry fight for the quarter back post, owing to the fine showing made by Slack, who played through a large part of the Columbia game. Larry Becht has been at the post regularly, and is a sturdy player. Slack, however, showed capable judgment in directing the team, and handled and ran back punts in good shape. Becht, however, holds an edge in blocking and general interference.

Navy scouts who have watched Maryland in recent games assert the Terps are an up-and-coming team. They have been up against a situation not unlike that of Navy—building a team largely of sophomore talent—and their work against Vanderbilt Saturday demonstrated they are coming fast, it was pointed out. Moreover, Curly Byrd's charges are given credit for a tricky offensive, and must not be underrated. Saturday's game will be the third and "rubber" battle of a series in as many years. In 1930, Navy won, 6 to 0. "Bullet Lou" Kirn running 65 yards to a touchdown on the second play of the game. Last year Maryland turned the trick by a like score, by virtue of a forward pass, Chalmers to Pease, the latter running 20 yards to score.

Kid Chocolate to Fight Labarba for Title Dec. 16

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Kid Chocolate, Cuban Negro, today signed to defend his newly won recognition in this State as world's featherweight champion against Fidel Labarba, December 16, at Madison Square Garden, in a fifteen-round match.

Labarba, Californian who formerly held the flyweight title, defeated Chocolate on points two years ago.

Phils' President Quits; Nugent Made Successor

Philadelphia, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Announcement was made today that L. C. Ruch had resigned as president of the Philadelphia National League Club, and that G. P. Nugent, business manager, has been elected as his successor.

Ruch, who is 71, resigned because of ill health, it was announced. He had been president since the death two years ago of William F. Baker.

Nugent, who is 40, has been business manager of the Phillies since 1925.

FOOTBALL BRIEFS

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 7 (U.P.).—Jimmy de Angelis and Al Converse, lightweight guards, and Andy Callan, who understudied Crowley at right half, were restored to their posts today as the Yale varsity began its drill for the Princeton game Saturday. The three men, who played well against Dartmouth, probably will be in the line-up against the Tigers.

Princeton, N. J. (U.P.).—Stan Purnell, veteran Princeton half back, who was kept out of the Lehigh game by injuries, returned to the squad today as the Tigers opened intensive drill for their fifty-sixth meeting with Yale here Saturday.

West Point, N. Y. (U.P.).—Army's football squad went through only a limbering-up drill today. Keen competition will develop for the left end job, made vacant by Dick King's injury in the Harvard game, as Army begins preparations tomorrow for Saturday's game with North Dakota State.

Evanston, Ill. (A.P.).—Coach Dick Hanley excused the Northwestern varsity from practice today and devoted the time to preparing the freshmen on Notre Dame formations. He indicated Roy Auguston would again start at quarter, and that Al Kawal, quarter during the early games, would be shifted to guard against the Irish Saturday.

Champaign, Ill. (A.P.).—The Illinois regulars were let off with a light signal drill, most of them having taken considerable punishment in the Wisconsin game. Coach Bob Zuppke tried Jack Benyon at quarter, shifting Capt. Gil Berry at half back.

Chicago (A.P.).—Lamenting lost scoring opportunities in the Illinois and Purdue games, Coach A. A. Stagg put the Chicago varsity to work on scoring zone plays. Pete Zimmer returned to work and will start at half back against Michigan, and Hugh Mendenhall's injury proved slight enough to permit him to work with the regulars. Walter Manelkis, regular guard, probably will not be available for duty against the Wolverines due to a knee injury.

Madison, Wis. (A.P.).—Wisconsin's reserves were given a stiff workout as the Badgers laid plans for the Minnesota contest Saturday. Minnesota plays were given to the freshmen, who went through their paces to permit the formation of a defense program.

Iowa City (A.P.).—Coach Solem gave his University of Iowa football squad a rest. Herman Schneidman, removed from the Nebraska game with a bruised shoulder, is the only varsity man expected to be out of the line-up for the first few practices. The team begins preparation in earnest Tuesday for the Purdue game Saturday.

Minneapolis (A.P.).—An injury to Jack Manders, a main weapon of the Gophers' attack, made things look doleful for Minnesota's football team Monday. Manders twisted an ankle in dummy scrimmage against Wisconsin plays. He was taken to the training room for immediate treatment and later to the students' health service for an indefinite stay.

Gonzaga Grid Shifts For St. John's Game

Smarting under the sting of two successive defeats, Gonzaga's football team started hard work yesterday in preparation for Friday's game with its ancient foe, St. John's. The teams will clash at the Eastern High School Stadium at 3:30 o'clock.

Disappointed by the defensive work of his team in its last two games, which the Purple lost, Coach Mitchell has decided on a shake-up in an effort to bolster the line. Bill Mills, husky center, has been moved over to tackle, and Charley Merkle assigned a regular berth at end.

Tom Dunnington and Jack Boyle are fighting for the vacated center position. Dunnington, who played gguard in the last two games, has been replaced by Pat Deenihan. One other change finds Frankie Mann at full back.

Gonzaga came through the Swavely game in fine style and will have its full strength available for the important game. Ed Hurley's injured shoulder is responding to treatment and he should be ready for action Friday.

The Irish will scrimmage with Teddy Hughes' Gallaudet eleven this afternoon at Kendall Green.

TEAM TO SCRIMMAGE.

The Congress Heights 135-pound eleven will scrimmage tonight at 7:30 o'clock on its field at Eleventh and Savannah streets southeast. Coach Kemp requests all players to be on hand.

TENNESSEE AND VANDY BATTLE

Game Features South Program; Seek Conference Crown.

By BEN COTHRAN.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 7 (U.P.).—Two of the South's finest football teams will be swinging at each other in Nashville Saturday as Tennessee and Vanderbilt play a game that will have a great deal to do with deciding this year's conference champion.

Both teams have been pointing from the start of the season for this battle of the giants. Neither team has extended itself more than was necessary, saving all possible for this affair that will likely take rank with the games that the football people will always remember.

Vanderbilt hasn't beaten Tennessee since 1926. By all indications, Vanderbilt isn't supposed to win this year. Vanderbilt has a stout, heavy line and a set of hard-running, versatile backs. Tennessee's line isn't extra heavy, but it has a way of swarming over its opposition and breaking through on defense; blocking splendidly on offense, preparing the way for young gentlemen who are very good at running with the football.

Gracey, Leyendecker, Vandy Stars.

Dan McGugin has coached Vanderbilt for 29 years and his teams have never been lower than sixth in the final standing. This year he has in his line blond, clean-cut Pete Gracey, being talked about as an All-American center and playing like one. He has rangy Tex Leyendecker, a very good tackler; one of his ends is weak.

In the back field he has Dixie Roberts, just about as good as Auburn's Jimmy Hitchcock or Tulane's Don Zimmerman. Roberts does everything with the football and has been the margin of victory several times this season. Fortune, the full back, is a powerful runner. Tommy Henderson provides the extra speed and elusiveness.

Tennessee's prima donna is a slim youngster named Beattie Feathers, very hard to catch. He is the best punter and runner in an offensive outfit that has Breezy Winn, a heavy full back, who has usually been good for 5 yards at every clip this year; Deke Brackett, good in a broken field, and Leo Petruzze, elusive and a good pass receiver.

The line includes Frank and Capt. Aitken at tackles; Ellis, guard; Maples, center, and Van Rayburn at end. There are no outstanding stars in the wall, but practically every man in it is above the average and plays the smart football that Coach Neyland teaches.

A glance at that material shows that it is versatile. Neither team employs any particular style of attack, but depends on several good plays and blocking to get its hard-running backs in the clear.

Commodores' New Shift Puzzler.

Vanderbilt has used a brand new shift this year that tends to draw the other team off balance. It has puzzled most Vanderbilt opponents and is worked by bringing out the two guards on the shift and massing them behind the right or left tackle, adding power to open a hole.

The report is out that Tennessee has been working all season on a new shift to spring on Vanderbilt Saturday, but it can not be confirmed.

If one gets to looking for an advantage held by one team it likely lies in Tennessee's kicking. Feathers is one of the South's best punters. Vanderbilt has none. When Vandy gets down on its goal line there's no one to kick the ball a long way down the field. It's usually a short one and the opponent is presented another chance to ram home a score.

Outside of that there's little difference. Tennessee is unbeaten and Vanderbilt is unbeaten, but tied by Tulane. If Vanderbilt knocks off Tennessee, and Georgia, Florida or South Carolina manage to trip Auburn, the other leader, Vanderbilt can beat Alabama on Thanksgiving Day and be on top. It will be a very fine football game.

BRENTWOOD TO PRACTICE.

Brentwood Hawks gridders will work out tonight at 8 o'clock at Seventeenth street and Constitution avenue northwest. All members of the squad are urged to attend.

Reed Stopped By Firpo in 6th Round

Right Hook to Solar Plexus Ends Fight at Alexandria.

Winner in Lead From Outset; Semifinal Won by Simpson.

By DAVE HERMAN.

YOUNG JOE FIRPO, bull-necked, barrel-chested 199-pounder from Philadelphia, in build a miniature edition of Jim Londos, came out of his corner scowlingly and with blood in his eyes in the sixth round of his feature bout with Jimmy Reed last night at Portner's Arena in Alexandria.

In two previous rounds the slugging Firpo, with the wallop of a cannon shot, had fired two lethal blows that bounced the Erie, Pa., fighter to the canvas for counts, but this time he was determined to put over the finishing punch.

Crash! The Philadelphia powerhouse had whipped out a right hook to the pit of his foe's solar plexus, and the lanky Reed, pop-eyed, doubled up, and sank to the mat, falling flat on his face, writhing with agony as Referee Charlie Short tolled the fatal count.

Firpo Smiles Only After Victory.

Some 1,300 spectators rose from their seats, and in those few fleeting moments, watched Firpo cross his hands and gaze from his corner at the limp form of the vanquished battler. "What-a-man" Reed was groaning. He was out.

When Firpo's hand was raised in victory, the Philadelphia boy smiled for the first time since he left the dressing room, jumped for joy, dashed over to Reed, and hoisted him to his chair.

Some of Reed's friends claimed the blow was foul and exhibited a slightly dented cup.

Experts at the ringside were unanimous in the opinion that Firpo's blows were legitimate. After recuperating from the savage punch in the sixth, Reed later admitted the knock-out blow was solid and not low. However, Reed stoutly maintained he was hit low in the fifth.

From the very outset, Firpo was the aggressor and master. A foot shorter than Reed, he bowed in at Reed and pounded him with a right to the jaw that staggered Jimmy, and followed with five rousing body punches. Reed became clownish in the second, invited Firpo to fight, and the junior welterweight dwarf belted him aplenty.

Reed Floored for Six Count.

The crowd started clapping in the third (indicating the razz), but Firpo answered with a left hook to the jaw that sent Reed for a count of six, just as the bell rang. Reed hung on the ropes, apparently in pain. Reed improved in the fourth, although Firpo kept hammering away with body blows. The fifth saw Reed complain of a foul. Firpo kept plodding away, hitting hard with both hands. In an exchange Reed managed to get in a couple of swats that didn't phase the rugged bulldog from Philadelphia.

Firpo's real name is Joe Barclay. He is 23, one of twins, and has twin babies. Late this month he will fight for the junior welterweight championship of the world, his trainer stated.

In the semiwindup of six rounds, Jackie Simpson, of Jacksonville, Fla., was awarded the decision over Doug Swetnam, 125-pounder, of the District. The verdict was unanimous, although received with a chorus of boos. Swetnam flashed his best form in the third and sixth, although Referee Short saw Simpson the victor in every round except the last.

Another Jacksonville entry, Sammy Lucas, went down before Billy Esslinger, charging Washington lightweight,

RHYTHM NOW IS GOAL OF HAGERTY

G. U. Coach Seeking Better Timing for Wesleyan Game.

COACH JACK HAGERTY is seeking the same thing former Coach Tommy Mills sought and could not find. Hagerty began to look for rhythm in the Georgetown football team yesterday, as it counted its mistakes of the West Virginia game and set about the task of working up a lather over this Saturday's game against the West Virginia Wesleyan at Griffith Stadium.

Timing is what the Hilltoppers need most, Hagerty has decided. He believes that there is plenty of good material stored up in the squad, but to get it clicking in unison is a horse of a somewhat different hue.

West Virginia Wesleyan, which no longer boasts of players of the Gyp Battles sort, is nevertheless a good enough team this year, and the Hoyas are not excessively certain of winning.

Wesleyan Victor Over Duquesne.

Wesleyan beat Duquesne, which beat West Virginia (which beat Georgetown last Saturday). West Virginia, however, beat West Virginia Wesleyan, 14-0, but accounts of the game showed that the second touchdown came as the result of an intercepted pass and 97-yard run, after Wesleyan had brought the ball from midfield to the 3-yard line on line bucks.

Al Kelly, hard-running Georgetown back, will be in business again by Saturday, his injured ankle being well on the road to recovery.

Coach Hagerty was pleased with the work of Bradley and Shimmens Saturday and is counting upon them to supply much of the power in his power plays next Saturday.

WARWICKS IN FIELD.

Warwick Flashes are seeking games with basket ball teams in the 145-pound class. The Flashes have a gymnasium Friday night. Call Atlantic 2310 for games.

MERCURY QUINTET DRILLS.

All members of the Mercury unlimited basket ball team, Dick Keefer and Jakie Lewis included, are requested to report tonight at 8 o'clock at Eastern High School for practice.

Fear Growing In Camp of Colonials

Scout Walsh Advises of Masked Plays of W. and M. Team.

Doose Rejoins G. W. Line-up for Battle Friday Night.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

"THE Indians are coming!" used to be a cry that struck terror into the hearts of the Colonials. Subsequent years saw most of the Indians turn rasslers or bead sellers at the Alberquerque train junction, and the Colonials became vice presidents of the D. A. R.—

But at this late date the expected arrival of William and Mary's Indians, next Friday night, is causing a fear or so in the camp of George Washington University's Colonials.

Ranger Scout Len Walsh stopped his whittling at the G. W. gymnasium long enough yesterday to caution his palefaces that the Indians mean business this time and aren't selling beads. Scout Walsh was peering surreptitiously over a concrete stockade last Saturday when the Indians were mobbing poor V. M. I., 20-7.

Black Magic Worked By Indians.

Scout Walsh allowed as how yesterday that William and Mary warrunt an ordinary bunch of tomahawkers. Their method of scalping foes is not achieved by straight rushes at the line and an occasional forward pass or two. They resort to black magic and potions. In fact, said Walsh, there were potions of that game Saturday when William and Mary played about the most unprecedented style of football the grizzled coach ever laid eye upon.

Fake kicks, fake passes, fake lineups and everything except fake eyebrows have been used this year by the Williamsburg braves to win football games—and the somewhat astounding array of unorthodox plays has brought fruit. Among the scalps taken during the current open season are those of Navy, Washington and Lee, Roanoke, Randolph-Macon and Guilford. They have been repulsed by V. P. I. and the Army, no particular disgrace in this year of grace.

Scout Walsh Warns Colonials.

Scout Walsh assembled the embattled Colonials yesterday for a general warning, but mentioned in particular five Indians of note. They are Billy Shade, a little package of quarterbacking dynamite who nigs a mean zag down the resalvaged ball yards these days; Half Back Worrell, who ran a mere 102 yards for a touchdown this season; a couple of heavy-hipped linemen named Stewart and Quirk, and Capt. Halligan, an end, whom Maj. Sasse, overseer of Army football pronounced the greatest end Army has played against this year.

Gen. Brandywine Doose, who has been laid up in the Ticonderoga eye, ear, nose and throat clinic since the campaign against the Iowa Hawkeyes, appeared in the star-spangled Colonial uniform again yesterday.

Green Bay Packers Leaders on Defense

New York, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—The Green Bay Packers lead the National Football League on defense as well as in games won and lost. The unbeaten Packers have yielded only 1,063 yards in eight games.

Chicago's Bears have yielded the least number of points, 24. Stapleton continues to set the pace offensively with 1,626 yards gained. The New York Giants still head the list in forward passing, having completed 52 in 115 attempts.

Here are the statistics, with the teams listed in the order of league standing:

	Y.G.	O.Y.	F.P.	F.C.	Pts.	O.P.
Green Bay	1,567	1,063	83	22	103	26

FIELDS GETS EXTENSION.

Chicago, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Jackie Fields, world welterweight champion, today was notified that the time limit during which he must defend his title has been extended to December 28. Fields has been given three extensions since regaining the title from Lou Brouillard at the Chicago Stadium last January. An eye ailment has kept him out of action.

ESPINETTA, AT $37 TO $2, WINS FEATURE RACE AT PIMLICO

$219 Mutuel Is Paid in 3rd Race

Idle Stefan Beaten in Stretch Duel by a Head.

War Glory Loses by Nose in Feature; Dominus Third.

By WALTER HAIGHT
(Post Staff Correspondent).

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 7.—Espinetta has been gaining a lot of ground in back of good 2-year-olds and today that speed carried her to victory in the Paca—outstanding event on the card at this track. Espinetta comes by her mud-running ability through her papa, Espino, and needed it today. Only the time-worn phrase, sea of mud, comes close to defining the track conditions.

At that, it took a brilliant and well-timed exhibition of horse riding by Apprentice Todd to bring the filly home a nose in front of War Glory, which in turn had a seven-length advantage over Dominus.

The winner, the property of one L. Perry, supplied her backers with a $37 mutuel after making a brilliant run to the front following a slow beginning.

Rock Coventry Pays Fancy Figures.

The third race provided the day's major thrill when Rock Coventry, a son of Coventry and Little Daughter, came splashing through the mud to victory and paid a $219.90 mutuel, one of the healthiest in Maryland history. To top it off, Rock Coventry rewarded at $91.80 to place and $31.20 to show. The majority of the crowd was singing, "Say It Isn't So" as the mutuel men posted the telephone numbers.

The race looked like a romp for Idle Stefen going up the back stretch. This colt pulled away to a four-length lead, followed by Axentea. However, Snider made his move with Rock Coventry rounding the turn for the stretch and hooked up with Idle Stefen to take a head decision. Welcome Gift closed a big gap to take the show.

The winner had shown nothing to warn race players that an upset was in the air and only a few scattered screams were heard as the prices were posted. Rock Coventry closed at 80 to 1 on the approximate odds board.

Luckite Is Easy Winner Over Jumps.

Luckite, Mrs. T. J. Donohue's jumper, led the fiel that sought the Harford Steeplechase to the finish over a water-soaked course. Shylock came with a rush on the flat to beat out Sir Sweep for the place. The big disappointment was Silverskin, ridden by Pete Bostwick. The favorite was never dangerous, although horsemen believed he was sore. Luckite stayed behind the pace set by Degas for one swing of the course and then went to the front, jumping steadily, never to be headed.

Bokie B rose with the mud and scampered home in the second race at a $28.10 mutuel. Buck Hero, the favorite, was second in front of Lillybet. This trio fought for the race from the start, with Buck Hero taking the lead turning into the stretch after catching Bokie B, but the latter pulled away to a half length decision in the stretch drive. Lillybet faded and just held the show from Tinge.

Ladino, Alfred Robertson up, and Princess Camelia, with Buddy Hanford in the saddle, hooked up in a thrilling stretch duel in the fourth race and honors went to the first-named pair by a head. These horses fought it out from soon after the barrier rise. Up finished a steady third. Ladino was coupled with Wise Count as the Grogan-Parr entry and went to the post the favorite.

What a Field of Four Did.

Seldom has there been more to do before a race than in the sixth. With only a four-horse field, little post trouble was anticipated, but when the quartet approached the stall gates the action began. Reveille Boy wouldn't go near the gates. Pompeius went in and out and broke away from Hanford to start a dash for the clubhouse. Happy Gordon, on the lead pony, went after the flying pair and brought them back. A new wrestle started. This time it was Helianthus. This fellow tried to hurdle the tape and in doing so threw off Garner. The rider hung with his foot in the stirrup to be dragged several feet with his head in the mud. Garner finally dropped into the mud and Helianthus started to run his race without a rider. Starter Milton ordered the stall gate machine removed to make way for Helianthus when he came around. Gordon again made good. He met the horse as he was entering the stretch and grabbed him. Milton then sent an assistant starter for another jockey to replace Garner, but tht boy said he would ride despite an apparent leg injury. Garner finally remounted.

In the meantime, Pardee, the only other entry, had become peaceful and stood awaiting the break. Twitches were applied to Reveille Boy and Helianthus to no avail. Both were finally ordered outside the stalls and both spun like pinwheels with an assistant starter on their bridals. Milton finally caught them on as near the right turn as possible and let them go. The race resulted as expected by the majority. The favorite, Pompeius, galloped to the front and coasted to victory.

They were at the post 15 minutes. The mile-and-a-half test went to Wishing Star in a battle with Negopoli.

DEAR AL: PIMLICO RACE TRACK.

The Pimlico stewards announced yesterday that Jockey Hank Mills, the Nation's leading rider, has been suspended for the remainder of the meeting for "grabbing two riders" in the Pimlico Futurity of last Saturday. Just why Mills, who is under contract to the Wheatley Stable, grabbed riders is not clear. Notebook, his mount, never had a chance in the race. This is not the first time that Pimlico stewards have ruled down leading riders. It took Earle Sande six months to get reinstated after an alleged foul a few years ago. Mills' case has been referred to the Maryland Racing Commission. Coucci's friends got him out of a jam. Maybe Mills also has friends. In the meanwhile, Eddie Smith, who apparently hasn't any friends, is on the ground to stay. BILL.

FIRST RACE—RED RUN should handle this kind. Was over his head last out, but previous to that won easily at the Graw. The off track should not hurt. The Labrot entry of HAPPY ANNE and BALLY BAY for the place ahead of FAIR BILLY.

SECOND RACE—JUDGE JUDY ran a brilliant race at Laurel and should be right up there fighting for this purse. An across-the-board bet wouldn't hurt. BUSHRANGER and BAND WAGON for the rest.

THIRD RACE—BLACK PATRICIA will be at home in the going. So will several others. However, I am giving the mare a chance to bring me home a winner. COLOSSAL is always dangerous. PRIZE DAY, on New York form, seems the logical third.

FOURTH RACE—RUBIO is my long-shot plunge in this. Likes the course and may get in front and never be caught. DYAK is dangerous with soft footing. UP and PENNATE could do little yesterday.

FIFTH RACE—MAD FRUMP appears the class of this field, and I have to place this one ahead of my friend, CANRON. Both are at home in the going. SPRINGSTEEL'S last was a beaut and repeated here would bring a part of the purse.

SIXTH RACE—SUN VIR has been traveling at a fast clip since changing hands and appears the best. SYRIAC is a threat any time its owners say that word. WOODCRAFT for show.

SEVENTH RACE—CAMP PRINCE takes up weight in this, but his mud form is enough to offset that fact. It looks like PENCADER is the one to beat. ACTION sprinted yesterday. Was it with this in mind?

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LUCKITE, $9.50, $3.80, $2.90; SHYLOCK, $4.80, $3.70; SIR SWEEP, $3.30.

LUCKITE, well handled and racing in near pursuit of the leaders, assumed command at the tenth fence, was steadied to his fences thereafter and was never in serious danger. SHYLOCK, reserved for the first mile, made repeated runs in the stages and outstayed SIR SWEEP in a hard drive. SIR SWEEP moved up stoutly going to the twelfth jump, but weakened on the flat after the final fence. STEFAN, JR., was unable to enter contention at any stage. DEGAS went gamely for the first turn of the field. SILVERSKIN appeared sore and would not extend himself at any stage. FORBIS fell at the eighth fence.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Commonwealth. For 3-year-olds and upward, foaled in Maryland. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, easily. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOKIE B., $28.10, $11.00, $7.10; BUCK HERO, $4.70, $3.60; LILLYBET, $5.80.

BOKIE B. at home in the going and moving into a brief lead, shook off LILLYBET, responded to severe punishment after being momentarily overtaken, and outfinished BUCK HERO approaching the finish. BUCK HERO, a stout factor from the beginning, moved into a brief lead when nearing the final furlong pole, but tired in the final sixteenth mile. LILLYBET forced a steady early pace, but tired steadily after seven furlongs. TINGE, taken to the outside when reaching the back stretch, entered contention, but was kept on the inside in the stretch run. MERRY MACK and SINGLE A went evenly. GRAND ACRE was outrun.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Helpful. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start poor from gates. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 2:11. Off at 2:14½. Winner, P. A. Griffith's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROCK COVENTRY, $219.90, $91.80, $31.20; IDLE STEFAN, $5.20, $5.20; WELCOME GIFT, $3.20.

ROCK COVENTRY, forwardly placed, responded gamely when placed to punishment, withstood a strong drive willingly and outstayed IDLE STEFAN. Latter sprinted into an easy lead, saved ground and fought it out with good courage. WELCOME GIFT worked her way up while out in the middle of the track and finished stoutly. COLONIST, kept on the inside the entire trip, altered his pace while in contention. AXENTEA forced a good early pace and held on well. MARVAN, prominent early, weakened in the final drive. CHATTERPOL, away poorly, closed a big gap. VON SION was away very slowly with CHATTERPOL.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 2:45. Off at 2:50. Winner, R. Parr's ch. g. †E. C. Grogan—Ral Parr entry.
Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADINO (entry), $8.10, $2.80, $2.40; PRINCESS CAMELIA, $4.30, $3.20; UP, $3.30.

LADINO, partial to the footing and racing close to the pacemakers, came around ACTION when leaving the back stretch and, kept in the former footing during the stretch run, outlasted PRINCESS CAMELIA. Latter, a keen factor and saving ground all the way, came again during the final drive. UP, placed forwardly, made a determined effort midway of the stretch, but tired. In the late stages PROMETHEUS, outrun early, finished stoutly. ACTION had good early speed, fell back entering the home stretch, and was blocked during the final furlong while on the inside. CHU CHU had no mishaps. PENNATE lacked speed to reach contention.

FIFTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Paca. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 3:20. Off at 3:24. Winner, P. A. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ESPINETTA, $37.00, $11.90, $9.80; WAR GLORY, $8.80, $6.30; DOMINUS, $12.50.

ESPINETTA moved up on the inside when reaching the back stretch, reached the leaders gradually and outfinished on the inside of WAR GLORY during the stretch run, was up in the last strides. WAR GLORY circled his field to gain command when straightened into the home stretch and fought it out stubbornly. DOMINUS fell back when leaving the back stretch, came again and outfinished tiring horses. GARDEN MESSAGE, rushed to the leaders, faltered from his early efforts and weight. CAESAR'S GHOST was never a factor. ROYAL BLUNDER was outrun. WHITE LIES quit badly after six furlongs. POMPET pulled up lame.

SIXTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,000. The Ruxton Handicap. For all ages. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:54. Off at 4:00. Winner, C. H. Bostwick's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—POMPEIUS, $4.10, $2.60, out; PARDEE, $4.40, out; Reveille Boy, out.

POMPEIUS sprinted into an easy lead when suited by the footing and galloped along strongly without being pressed at any stage. PARDEE always in nearest pursuit, was no match for the winner. REVEILLE BOY, very fractious at the barrier, was placed on the outside. He was never a factor. HELIANTHUS lunged and unseated his rider before the start and ran off for seven furlongs. He was pulled up after six furlongs.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-half miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:40. Off at 4:42. Winner, B. B. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WISHING STAR, $12.60, $5.40, $3.90; NEGOPOLI, $3.30, $2.50; BATTERING RAM, $3.30.

WISHING STAR, going in smartly improved fashion, and handled in better style, raced reserved for the first mile, moved up strongly when ready and, wearing the others down rapidly, drew out into a long lead. NEGOPOLI, kept closer up than usual in the early stages, shook off BATTERING RAM, but had too much taken out of him and could not stay with the winner. BATTERING RAM, rated in front and saving much ground, held on courageously. WARD IN CHANCERY weakened approaching the finish. TOREALONG, allowed to drop far out of contention, finished resolutely along with LITTLE STOKES. The others had no excuses

GARIBALDI, HICKMAN BATTLE

Bout Likely to Steal Show Thursday at Auditorium.

ONE of the best of the out-and-out wrestlers—Gino Garibaldi—will meet one of the best of the collegiate recruits—Herman Hickman—Thursday night at the Washington Auditorium. The match has been listed as a subsidiary to the Ray Steele-George Vassell affair, but there is not much doubt that it is potentially the headliner.

Garibaldi has been wrestling since the shifts of fortune brought him up out of a coal miner's pit years ago, when wrestling was still in the ten-twent-thirt class. Hickman did not know the difference between an armhold and a bust in the nose a year ago, but he won a berth on the all-American football team as a tackle, and this, plus his 225 pounds of somewhat sturdy suet, paved the way for a quick build-up in the convenient game of rassling.

But Hefty Herman, for some unknown reason, has progressed in rassling. He no longer depends entirely on the flying tackle, but has gone into bigger and better things, like eye gouging and elbow jabbing.

Others on the bill Thursday night are Lou Plummer and Joe Cox, bound to be a rough match; Ernie Dusek and Abe Coleman and Pat McKay and George McLeod.

Baltimore Team Plays Maryland A. C. Here

Composed entirely of former Villanova and Loyola (Baltimore) football players, the Walbrook eleven will give the Maryland Athletic Club gridmen all the opposition they bargain for when the two clash Sunday at Seat Pleasant. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

"Lefty" Reitz, coach of the Villanova junior varsity, and assistant to Harry Stuhldreher at the Pennsylvania institution, acts in the same capacity for Walbrook, in addition to playing regularly in the back field. Reitz has drilled the team in the Notre Dame style of play, which it has used to good advantage. Walbrook has won three games and tied two this season.

Training School Plays Western High Today

National Training School, nemesis of all local high school teams, will be seeking its fourth victory over a District rival today when it clashes with Western's husky gridmen at 3:30 o'clock in the new Western Stadium.

Victories over Emerson, Central and Tech attest the strength of Ed Crandall's high-scoring machine. Four of the speediest ball toters in District grid circles hold forth in National's back field—Kiski, a lad who would fit in well with most college teams; Merryman, Paynter and, Signs are those responsible for the huge scores amassed by the team.

Western, however, will be no set-up. It has a couple of speed demons in its back field, Lynham and Corcorean, to match the efforts of the opposition. The Red line also may halt National's vaunted line-smashers.

Stocks Advance 2.1 Points As Shorts Run to Cover

Stronger Tone Also Attends as Turnover Mounts to 1,609,750 Shares.

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Maintaining the stronger tone apparent in the two final markets of last week, stocks made substantial gains in a larger turnover today.

Brokers attributed the buying, which made possible net gains of 1 to 4 points, largely to covering by shorts seeking to even their accounts. Sales amounted to 1,609,750 shares, the best turnover since October 14.

Strength in stocks was well distributed and well maintained from the opening. The so-called "wet" group again attained some prominence and there was a fair demand for rails. Nevertheless, steels, chemicals, coppers and utilities kept in the foreground. With wheat on the mend, issues of companies whose welfare is linked closely to farm prices forged ahead.

Case, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, U. S. Steel common and preferred, National Biscuit, Consolidated Gas, Woolworth, Loew's, American Can and a few others were gainers to the extent of 2 to 3 points net.

Union Pacific, benefitting by predictions of a regular dividend at Thursday's meeting, improved more than 4 at the best, easing slightly from its high. Owens Illinois Glass was up 3⅝ and U. S. Industrial Alcohol nearly 2.

Little trade news developed, but what did appear was mostly favorable. The publication, Steel, reported a further gain in production for that industry, adding that the current 21 per cent rate might be stepped up to 22 per cent later this week. The gain was due largley to greater activity in the Pittsburgh district, and to release of automobile orders to Youngstown and Cleveland Mills.

Some copper was sold abroad at a slight price advance, reflecting, it was said, a better demand in a market where offerings were scarce.

The usual conjecture as to what Thursday's U. S. Steel backlog will show finds various estimates of the probable change, although the consensus seems to be that the variation as of October 31 against September 30 will be small. If the figures show a gain in unfilled tonnage, it will be the third consecutive monthly increase.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Mon.	Sat.
Advances	419	942
Declines	63	84
Unchanged	93	86
Total issues traded	575	412

Stocks.

A stronger tone developed and stocks staged an average gain of 2.1 points. Wall street laid the advance to short covering. The sales turnover mounted to 1,609,750 shares, the largest since October 14. Strength in stocks was well distributed.

Bonds.

Speculative loans provided a rally that added four-tenths of a point to Saturday's quotations. Sales totaled only $7,786,000. Preparations for the election holiday were regarded as factors in the rise. Canadian governments and rails weakened. Domestic rails recorded gains.

Curb.

An energetic climb in early trading was reduced somewhat during the session. Sales increased to 200,000 shares. Utilities led in volume. Aluminum was a strong spot, closing at 54. Humble Oil gained 2 points. Short covering appeared to provide most of the demand.

Wheat.

Values skyrocketed on the improvement of securities and a better price outlook at Winnipeg. There were also brighter prospects for export demand. Wheat closed ¾ to 1⅛ up, followed by advances in other grains. December wheat sold at 44⅝ to 44¾ cents.

Cotton.

An early advance was lost, and the market closed 15 to 17 points down. December sold at 6.23. Southern selling and liquidating were blamed. Buying was principally on scale-down orders. Liverpool traded both ways; Europe and Japan bought.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—The stock exchange started the new account cheerfully. Good business in industrials, transatlantic issues, oils and gold mining shares improved prices. Gilt-edged securities were easy and Japanese bonds were firm. The market closed steady.

Paris—Substantial buying on the bourse started an upward movement in prices. Trading slowed down later on profit taking, but the advance was maintained. The closing was firm and active.

Berlin—Interpreting the election as having strengthened Von Papen's position, the boerse showed a friendly tendency throughout the session. Prices gained and the closing was strong.

CURB MARKET RISES REDUCED BY LOSSES

Trading Quickened, Sending Volume of Dealing to 200,000 Shares.

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—The curb market climbed rather energetically for a time today, in contrast to its recent performances, but it soon tired, and final prices were somewhat under the best.

Trading quickened considerably, nevertheless, the turnover of some 200,000 shares representing the largest day's business since October 14. Short covering appeared to provide much of the demand, and once it was satisfied, prices eased off.

Electric Bond & Share continued to trade in greatest volume, and was up 2½ points at the top, but it lost half its rise. American Gas & Electric pushed up 1½, then reacted to finish up only ⅝ net. Commonwealth Edison rose 3¾ in a small turnover. Edison Electric Illuminating made one of its rare appearances in this market, trading at 173½, off 6½.

Aluminum Co. was a strong spot in the industrials, mounting 4 points to close at 54. Among high-priced specialties, Great Atlantic & Pacific advanced 6, to 149. Pennroad was up a fraction in sympathy with firmness of oils on the big board. Oils were mixed. Humble rose 2 points in a small turnover, and Gulf closed ¾ of a point higher. Standard of Indiana, however, sagged ½. Newmont Mining, in sympathy with firmness of coppers on the big board, rose 2 points, but then lost nearly half its gain.

Favorable Trade Balance Advances to $33,578,305

(Associated Press.)

The United States in September had a favorable balance in foreign trade of $33,578,305, as compared with $9,843,806 in September last year.

The total value of exports last September, as announced yesterday by the Commerce Department, was $192,026,055, while imports were $98,447,750.

Cumulative figures for the nine-month period ended with September showed a favorable trade balance of $173,171,352, as compared with a favorable balance of $223,100,438 for the same period last year.

Exports for the nine months of 1932 totaled $1,188,920,041, while imports amounted to $1,015,748,699.

A year ago exports totaled $1,841,773,590, with imports $1,618,673,152.

The best customer in September was the United Kingdom, which purchased goods worth $25,728,103. Canada was second with $18,745,160, and Germany third with $15,790,884.

The United Kingdom was likewise the best customer over the nine-month period with total purchases of $209,163,824, followed by Canada with $189,110,091.

The chief source of imports during September was Canada, which sold merchandise to America valued at $12,507,799, followed by Japan, whose sales amounted to $12,135,255.

The same order was maintained in the nine-month cumulative figure which showed purchases from Canada of $136,303,751, and Japan, $99,451,872.

Almost half of United States exports during the nine-month period closed in September were absorbed by continental Europe, which bought goods worth $564,623,225. Europe was also the principal source of supply, selling America merchandise worth $287,812,256, followed closely, however, by Asia, which sold the United States $275,149,322 in merchandise during the nine months.

Textile exports from the United States in the nine-month period maintained about the same level as in 1931, but imports declined 40 per cent.

Total textile shipments in the January-September period were valued at $277,024,000, a gain of slightly more than 1 per cent over 1931. Textile imports in the nine-month period this year were valued at $181,728,000.

BOND PRICES RALLY UNDER HOLIDAY AIDS

Gain of Four-Tenths Is Laid to Speculation; Sales, $7,786,000.

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Semi-speculative bonds staged a fairly impressive rally today preparatory to the market observing tomorrow's national election holiday. Sales totaled only $7,786,000, par value, but the average for 60 corporate loans advanced four-tenths of a point.

Weakness of Canadian government and railway loans, which were off from 1 to around 4 points, followed renewed softness of the Dominion dollar, acted as a restraining influence.

Carrier gains of 1 to 2 or more points were recorded by some liens of Allegheny Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Erie Great Northern, International Great Northern, Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Pere Marquette, Southern and Wabash.

American Telephone issues were barely steady, while fractional losses were registered by loans of Brooklyn Union Gas, Detroit Edison, Duquesne Light, North American Edison, Philadelphia Electric, Postal Telegraph, Texas Corporation and several others. General Cables 5½s lost 3. Fisk Rubber 6s 4½, Goodyear 5s 1¼ and Keith Corporation 6s 2 points.

Canadian government 4s of 1960 were the heaviest traded of the foreign section, losing 2½ points. German government issues were steady, following the election yesterday, while German corporate bonds advanced. Other foreign obligations were irregular.

WHEAT VALUE GAINS ON WINNIPEG'S RISE

Market Closes 1⅛ Cents Up After 2¼ Advance as Exports Improve.

Chicago, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Sky-rocketing 2¼ cents a bushel in lively dealings today, wheat scored the third straight day of recovery from last week's record low prices.

Much of today's advance, which hoisted wheat here to 4 cents above the all-time low, was ascribed to strength shown by the New York stock market and to a sharp rise in wheat values at Winnipeg. A drawback, though, was that the Winnipeg bulge appeared to be due to breaks in Canadian exchange rates, reviving talk that Canada might go off the gold standard.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsettled at a reaction of about 1 cent from today's top, but 1 to 1⅜ above Saturday's finish; corn, ¾ to 1⅛ up; oats, ¼ to ½ advanced, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to 25 cents gain.

Export Price Outlook.

For the first time in weeks, export demand for wheat from North America showed signs of following an advance in prices. There were purchases of 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat today for shipment overseas, and notwithstanding that notice was taken from the United States, this country's visible supply showed 2,430,000 bushels decrease, the largest reduction in a long while. Giving further impetus to speculative buying here were crop damage reports from Cordoba Province, Argentina, together with Buenos Aires predictions of frost tonight.

Broadening of wheat demand was also influenced by announcement that October this season had been the driest October which Kansas had experienced in eleven years, the fourth consecutive month of excessive dearth of moisture. This emphasized reports of an unfavorable start for the new winter wheat crop in Kansas and elsewhere Southwest and West. Wintry weather in Canada and a big falling off in arrivals at Winnipeg, 596 cars received today against 2,147 a year ago, acted as an additional bullish factor, and so, too, did curtailment of wheat acreage estimates in Australia, as well as word that Germany's wheat crop would be 10,000,000 bushels under the latest official figures.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat market upturns. There was a good demand from New England both for corn and other feeds. Provisions reflected an unlooked for decrease of hog receipts.

EXPORT SHIFTS LAID TO CHEAP EXCHANGE

Britain's Hopes for Revival of Textile Trade Marked by Pound Drop.

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Cheap and cheaper foreign exchanges, in the opinion of some economic experts, are rapidly changing the export trade picture for both gold and non-gold standard nations.

British hopes for a revival of her textile business are coincident with a further drop in the pound sterling to below the $3.30 level and rumors that stabilization may be achieved at a lower rate.

At the same time the Japanese, who joined the English in booting the gold standard, have permitted the yen to slide to a historic low level of some 21 cents, and the cotton goods mills in Osaka and along the Yangste are beginning to show real signs of life as competition with British textiles boils.

Evidences of Depreciation.

Along with these currency depreciation evidences, the Australian pound and the Argentine peso slipped substantially while the Canadian dollar descended to somewhere under 90 cents. With these three countries the material results show in increased wheat exports to those countries that switch their orders to the cheapest markets.

The drastic leveling of exchanges is exemplified by the par rates of some of those currencies that have divorced gold. On a gold basis the British pound is valued at $4.86⅝, and the Australian money the same, the Japanese yen at 49.8 cents, the Argentine peso at 42.44 cents (now 25.80 cents) and the Canadian dollar at 100 cents.

The Russian rouble, although an outcast among other foreign exchange, has a nominal value of 51½ cents, but it is not negotiable outside the Soviet Republic. As all Bolshevik workers are paid in roubles (which they can't use except at Soviet State and cooperative stores to purchase limited amounts of products) the Russians have no way of figuring the cost of production and, consequently, they can undersell any other foreign currencies at a profit.

Lack of Production.

Only the lack of production, at the present time, is preventing them from figuring importantly in the present exporting race.

Just how far the drop of various foreign exchanges has affected commodity prices in the United States is a matter of argument. Grain dealers point out that the recent sagging of December wheat to the unheard-of price of 41⅞ cents a bushel was due principally to an almost complete lack of export demand.

With the sinking of American prices, Canada, her dollar down to about 90 cents, shipped more than 9,000,000 bushels of wheat abroad. The United States at the same time exported only a few thousand bushels to Greece.

At the beginning of this year twelve countries were off the gold standard and their currency depreciation was 21.2 per cent. These twelve countries, it is estimated by Moody's, held about 86 per cent of world trade. The percentage, it is said, may be considerably greater by the end of 1932.

Spinners Resume Work.

Manchester, England, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Work was resumed in the spinning section of the Lancashire cotton textile industry today after a week-long strike over a wage reduction agreement. Apparently 150,000 operatives were affected.

Exchange Seat Higher.

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Arrangements were made today for the sale of a New York Stock Exchange seat at $125,000, an increase of $5,000 over the previous sale.

COTTON PRICES CUT BY SOUTHERN SALES

December Closes at 6.23 as General Values Drop 15 to 17 Ponits.

New York, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—A slight opening advance was followed by declines in cotton today under Southern selling and liquidation which sent the price of December contracts off from 6.43 to 6.20 in the late trading.

That delivery closed at 6.23, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 15 to 17 points.

The opening was 2 to 3 points higher with a further demand from abroad and some based on reports of rain in the Central and Eastern belts. May sold up to 6.68 on the initial demand, but the buyers were soon supplied and the market turned easier under increased Southern selling.

Trade buying on scale-down orders and covering caused rallies of a few points during the middle of the day. The bulges however, met more general selling for Southern and commission house account and the lowest prices were reached in the late trading, when May sold at 6.46, with active months generally showing net losses of 18 to 20 points. Closing quotations were within 3 or 4 points of the lowest.

Liverpool was said to be trading both ways here early, while houses with continental and Japanese connections were credited with buying. Liverpool cables reported trade calling and Bombay buying in that market on the settlement of the Lancashire strike. Exports today, 35,094 bales, making 2,313,723 so far this season. Port receipts, 61,258. United States port stocks, 4,382,059.

STORES HERE LEAD FIFTH AREA TRADE

Richmond and Baltimore Are Next to Capital's Mark for Nine Months.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Washington department store retail trade again showed less loss than that of any other city in the Fifth Federal Reserve District, the monthly review of credit, business and agricultural conditions, compiled by Chairman and Federal Reserve Agent William W. Hoxton, of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Va., reveals.

September trade in local department stores was 9 per cent under that of the month in 1931. That of Richmond stores was 10.4 per cent under that of the month a year ago and that of Baltimore stores 11.5 per cent less. Trade of stores in other cities of the district showed a 15.6 per cent recession in the comparison, while that of the district as an entirety reflected a 10.8 per cent decline.

For the nine months of 1932, Washington department stores' retail trade is 15.3 per cent off from the corresponding period last year. That of Richmond's stores is 20.4 per cent below in the comparison and that of Baltimore's, 20.2 per cent off. Trade of similar stores in other cities of the district shows a loss of 25.1 per cent, and that of the whole district, one of 18.8 per cent.

Lukens Joins Firm.

Charles F. Lukens, jr., has become associated with the firm of Auchinclose, Parker & Redpath, 719 Fifteenth street northwest. Mr. Lukens is a native of Pennsylvania, having been educated in the public schools of that State. He attended Princeton University, graduating in the class of 1922.

Since 1929, Mr. Lukens has been engaged in the investment banking business and during most of this time has been manager of the Washington office of Halsey, Stuart & Co.

The association of Mr. Lukens with Auchinclose, Parker & Redpath marks a further enlargement of this banking house and adds to its facilities the services of one of the most competent and experienced men engaged in the investment banking business in Washington.

Wage Earners Benefit.

Wage earners in September received 4.5 per cent more money than in August, according to the Monthly Consumer Index compiled by Investors Syndicate. This gain in the national pay rolls was promptly reflected in 3 per cent gain in retail trade for the month. A year ago September pay roll totals and retail trade both dropped sharply below the levels of the preceding month.

This reversal of last year's trend brought September, 1932, wage totals to within 17.5 per cent of the same month last year, a substantial narrowing of the spread since August, which showed wage totals 38 per cent below August, 1931. A strong seasonal increase in public interest in securities was indicated by a 50 per cent gain over August in investment totals.

Home building increased at a more rapid rate in September, according to the Syndicate Index, showing a 10 per cent improvement over August, as compared with a 5 per cent gain registered by August residential construction over July figures. Automobile buying declined 11.2 per cent from August; this, however, was less than half the percentage of decline from August to September last year, according to Investors Syndicate tabulations.

PROVIDENCE REAL TEST FOR C. U.

Saturday Foe Is Far From "Breather" Anticipated.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S board of football strategy whipped out telescopes yesterday and enviaged rough sailing ahead of the Cardinal eleven. C. U.'s next opponent is Providence College. It seems that Providence's record this year belies the proposed part it was to play on the C. U. schedule. It has become an unwilling "breather."

Providence tied Rutgers, beat Vermont, 13 to 0; Boston U., 35 to 6, St. Lawrence, 14 to 0, and C. C. N. Y., 46 to 0. It lost to Holy Cross, 26 to 6. The thing that is worrying C. U. the most is that 46 to 0 win over C. C. N. Y. When C. U. played the same team, and won by the same score, more than half the City College regulars were not in uniform through a combination of circumstances ranging from injuries and ineligibility to Yom Kippur observance.

Providence gave C. U. more trouble last year than any team it met, with the exception of the game it lost to Boston College. The score of the C. U.-Providence game was 13 to 7, and Providence was headed for an almost certain touchdown in the last six minutes of the game when Johnny Oliver intercepted a pass near the C. U. goal line. The 1932 team has a better record than last year's.

Vinny Fraatz, dependable wing man, will be back in uniform for the Providence game, which will be played in Providence. Charley McVean, the other injured C. U. gridman, probably will not be in shape for the game, but will be back at his signal calling the following Friday night, when C. U. makes its bid for a mob of spectators by playing Duquesne in Griffith Stadium.

The team came out of the Wake Forest game in good shape. Coach Bergman was particularly pleased with the work of Eddie White, center.

Lou Little "Miracle Man" If Columbia Beats Brown

Former G. U. Coach Has Built Unbeaten, Untied Eleven From Practically Nothing in Way of First-Class Material.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—Mr. Lou Little, that thoroughly charming gentleman who occupies the chair of lion taming at Columbia University, has more than once been called a miracle man in the public prints.

We always have been a trifle suspicious of miracle men, but if the Columbia football team whips Brown on Saturday, then even the most skeptical of us will be forced to break down and confess Mr. Little's magical powers. For a victory over Brown, with only inept Syracuse then to play, would assure Columbia of a perfect season. And a clean slate for Columbia, its material being what it is, would be a miracle, nothing less.

Little Talent Available In Build-Up.

Granted the miracle will not be of the overnight variety, for Mr. Little has been building three years. But have you ever stopped to consider what he has been building with? No? Well, the answer is practically nothing.

When Little called his first practice three years ago, eight men answered. He will tell you he wished more than once that he had stayed at Georgetown. By beating around the bushes of the campus, he finally scared out enough men to make up a team. But even late that season the Columbia squad was so inadequate, that practice had to be postponed on those afternoons when the center had chemistry lab.

It was this year that saw Marty Brill, Little's assistant, give off his classic remark. Brill, one year out of Notre Dame, upon seeing the squad for the first time, turned to Little and said:

"Lou, what bunch is that? Your No. 1 backs?"

Brill all but resigned when informed that it was not only the Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 backs, but the guards, tackles, centers and ends as well.

We thought about Little today as we read where Maj. Sasse was being criticized for allowing Army to crush Harvard 46 to 0 Saturday. In 1930 Dartmouth scalped Columbia 52 to 0 and Colgate went the Indians two better by making it 54 to 0.

Expected Mountains to Fall On Team.

"In that Colgate game," Lou will tell you, "I expected any minute Andy Kerr would reach up and pull one of those mountains down on top of us."

But these two crushing defeats didn't break Little or his team. They came back to whip a highly rated Cornell team, 10 to 7, in one of the season's biggest upsets.

Last year Little's squad was more promising. He had all of 30 or 35 men, at least 18 of which could be left standing on the field by themselves without worrying about the wind blowing them down and breaking their necks. Before one important game Little was so pressed for substitutes that he told a reporter "If you see me wave at you during the game, it means to come down out of the press box—that I need you to go in at guard." Yet the 1931 team whipped Dartmouth, Virginia and Brown, tied Syracuse and lost only to Cornell.

At the start of this year Columbia's squad had reached impressive proportions. So impressive, in fact, that a prominent visiting Midwestern coach, upon looking at the first team, said: "How does Little do anything with such trash?"

Yet that trash, armed with the football and fight of Lou Little, has yet to be beaten or tied. Maybe Brown will turn the trick, but a lot of us will have to see it done.

Maryland Stars Play Here Sunday

Mohawks Plan Light Workouts This Week for Return Game.

Well satisfied with his team's work against the docile Brooklyn Bulldogs, Coach Artie Wondrack plans only light work this week in preparation for the second invasion of the Maryland All-Stars, who will furnish the opposition Sunday at Griffith Stadium.

The teams battled to a 7-7 tie in the first game. Dick Allen's 70-yard run-back of Buck Miller's punt, followed by Chessy Antos' line plunge, gave the Hawks their score. Ed Wellinger, Maryland end, snagged a pass off Eddie Dugan's arm to tally for the visitors. Aside from these instances, the teams fought on an even basis.

Fee Colliere's return to the Indians, together with Pepco Barry's presence in the back field, seemed to be just what the doctor ordered. Colliere had little chance to display his punting ability against the Bush Terminal lads, but his services will be very much in demand in the All-Star game if the first tilt can be taken as a criterion.

V. M. I. Grid Squad Absorbs Lengthy Drill

Lexington, Va., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—The flying squadron of V. M. I. with new spirit and undismayed by defeat went through a long signal drill today. Darkness had fallen and Billy Smith still was barking signals to the team. Charlies Straub was back in harness after a week's layoff.

Much work was put on pass receiving. Tomorrow the team will drill on running plays. It will scrimmage Wednesday and Thursday.

Charley O. Captures Feature at Latonia

Latonia, Ky., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—After several unsuccessful essays in stakes, R. M. Eastman's Charley O. dropped down a notch today to score a handy victory in the Scarlet Carnation Purse, an allowance affair for 2-year-olds at a mile and 70 yards. Second money went to the Coldsteam Stable's Pot au Brooms and Lon Jones & Sons' Fair Rochester was third.

Six accepted the issue, with Charley O., on the strength of a recent sparkling workout, a lukewarm favorite over Le Bus Brothers' Red Roamer. Charley O. was given a well-judged ride by Apprentice H. Bagur.

Charley O.'s triumph completed a double for Trainer J. T. Taylor, who had saddled Mrs. E. L. Swikard's Hamilton in the preceding race. The latter also was favorite, rewarding his backers but $4.16 for $2.

Return of Robison Is Cheering at V. P. I.

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Carl Robison, dynamic little full back of the Gobblers, ran in Tech's first back field today and will be ready to go when the Techmen play Virginia in the homecoming games here Saturday. The news was good news on the campus today.

X-ray examinations also showed that no bone fractures were sustained by Heinie Groth in the Alabama game. His leg is swollen from torn ligaments and the Tech coaches are confident that he will be ready in time to play against V. M. I. Thanksgiving Day.

Gene Hite, whose injury early in the game at 'Bama was such a blow to Tech hopes, was in uniform and may be ready also for the homecoming clash with the Cavaliers.

Players who took part in Tech's gallant stand at Alabama took things right today while nursing bruises and soreness from the terrific battle. Reserve players, however, were put through 30 minutes of scrimmage.

FIRPO STOPS REED IN PORTNER FEATURE

in a six-round scrap. The decision also was booed.

From Jacksonville came Harry Kersey, 140-pounder, who was beaten in five of the six rounds, with Vince Serio, clever Baltimore southpaw. Kersey was on the retreat most of the way, taking rights and lefts throughout until he began jabbing at close range in the final heat. He emulated Jimmy Reed in sitting on the ropes at the finish, awaiting the decision.

Carey Wright, local boy, 140 pounds, knocked down twice for counts in the second, won a technical knockout over Bobby Cherry, of Baltimore, in the fourth round of their preliminary go.

U. S. Jnnior Cue Title Tourney Next Month

The National Junior Pocket Billiard Championship Tournament will be held this year in New York City during the Christmas holidays, according to C. A. Storer, president of the National Billiard Association and director of its tournaments. Robert Moore, of Grand Rapids, Mich., the present titleholder, will defend his crown at that time.

Starting on November 14, qualifying junior pocket billiard tournaments will be held in several cities throughout the United States for boys between the ages of 12 to 15 years, inclusive, the winners of which will meet in Eastern, Central and Western sectional tournaments.

Chocolate to Battle La Barba on Dec. 16

New York, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—Kid Chocolate, the Cuban flash, will make his first defense of that portion of the world featherweight championship recognized by the State boxing commission, against Fidel La Barba, of Los Angeles, at Madison Square Garden, on December 16.

When the two step into the ring for their fifteen-rounder, it will be their third meeting. Chocolate defeated Fidel in the first shindig, but when they tangled the next time La Barba won.

Negotiations have been virtually completed for Primo Carnera, the ambling Italian Alp, to meet Jose Santa, of Portugal, in a "battle of giants," at the Garden on November 18.

Hitting the Headpin

A BRILLIANT array of duckpin stars will face the barrier in the second annual Dixie Sweepstakes, to be rolled Saturday, November 19. Outstanding in the list of entries is Earl McPhilomy, whose stirring comeback this season has the fans agog. Earl is carrying an average of 127 in the District League and a 125 average in the National Capital.

But there will be others who loom as formidable contenders in the richest stake of the year. Bill Arnold, national singles champ; Perce Wolfe, Reds Megaw, and Ollie Pacini are almost certain of being among the leaders.

In addition to these Howard Campbell, who is setting a merry pace in the National Capital, and Astor Clarke, a good money bowler, will be fighting for top prize.

Over from Baltimore will come Ray Barnes, Ray von Dreele, and George Lang, a trio that can play tunes on the bottles. Barnes was runner-up to Ollie Pacini in the event last season, finishing the 15-game grind only four pins behind the Italian ace. Pacini chalked up a score of 1,876.

Major honors in the King Pin Business Men's League were taken by the Frankies last night. The team rolled 1,749 and 590 to outdistance the other quintets. Louis Chiporous' 375 set and Johnny Poulos' 159 game won the individual laurels.

Internal revenue inscribed a pair of all-time records on the books in the Men's Federal League at Arcadia, rolling 650 for game and a brilliant 1,831 total for the string. Brown's 159 game and Campbell's 387 set took the individual prizes.

A single pin separated Petworth from a clean sweep victory over Occidental Hotel in their District League match at Petworth. Norman Baxter's 147 and 375 scores helped Petworth materially.

King Pin experienced little difficulty in taking all three from Baltimore & Ohio in the National Capital League at Lucky Strike. Louis Pantos bagged the lion's share of honors with scores of 144 and 367.

Helena Meyer's bowling featured the Department of Commerce Ladies loop activities at Lucky Strike. Miss Meyer rolled high game, 122, and high set, 328. Mines walked off with team honors by virtue of a 507 game and 1,471 total.

Heller Plaing tied M. Pirrone for the leadership of the Jewelers League by winning its three games last night. Duryea's 142 and Duhring's 358 were high. George D. Horning's team rolled 562 for high team game, and R. Harris pinned high set 1,571.

Dave Crockett's 148 and Pfeil's 390 topped the pinspilling in the Typothetae League at Lucky Strike. Big Print Shop cleaned up in the team division with its 878 and 1,720.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

FAMILIAR to millions are the symbols of the Democratic and Republican parties, and the tiger of Tammany Hall. All three of these were created by the same man, Thomas Nast, famous New York cartoonist.

The donkey was used by Nast first in 1868 to represent the "fine-ass" committee, and it became the Democratic party's symbol two years later. The elephant was used to represent the Republican party in 1874. He used the Tammany tiger during the famous Tweed scandals in New York City's municipal government.

What may have been a rival to the gasoline automobile, had the dogs been able and willing, was invented and patented in 1870 as the "dog-power vehicle." The machine, as illustrated, consisted of a treadmill arrangement as the locomotive power, in which a pair of dogs were to walk, forcing the wheel around.

It was primarily a front wheel drive, but the inventor pointed out in his application that the power wheel could just as well be behind the machine. The car was steered with the rear wheels, while the brake was applied to the front wheel. One of the little differences between the dog-power vehicle and the conventional gasoline driven car was that the brake lever was pushed forward to stop the machine, and pulled back to release the brakes.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS BENJAMIN STODDERT SCHOOL DEDICATION

Picture of First Secretary of Navy Is Presented by Mrs. S. Bockoven.

Another link in the rapidly growing public school system of the District was cemented last night when the new Benjamin Stoddert Elementary School, at Thirty-ninth and Calvert streets northwest, was dedicated in the presence of school officials and a large number of relatives and friends.

A picture of the first Secretary of the Navy, after whom the school is named, was presented by Mrs. S. Bockoven, representing the Parent-Teacher Association of the school. The picture was unveiled by Tommy and Arlene Bockoven, who were dressed in colonial costumes.

The portrait was accepted on behalf of the school by Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, of the Board of Education, who presided at the exercises.

Tribute Paid to Harris.

Delivering the principal address, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, paid a tribute to A. L. Harris, municipal architect, who designed the building. Dr. Ballou said that Dr. Harris, in his work for the public school system, has succeeded in combining attractive architecture with splendid interior facilities.

The superintendent pointed to the school as evidence that Washington has not suffered from curtailment of school funds to anywhere near the extent of many other cities. With 3,200 more children in Washington public schools at present than at the same time last year, construction work is going rapidly ahead to supply sufficient classroom space to avoid congestion, Dr. Ballou said.

History of Neighborhood.

John Clagett Proctor, historian of the District of Columbia Society, Sons of the American Revolution, told of the history of the neighborhood in which the new school is situated. Greetings were extended by Mrs. Bockoven and M. R. Walker, president of the Glover Park Citizens Association. Mr. Harris presented the keys of the building to Miss B. L. Fawcett, principal of the new school.

Piano selections were given by Miss Anne Sugar. The invocation and benediction were delivered by the Rev. Vernon N. Ridgely, pastor of Calvary M. E. Church.

Permit for Fourth Bus Terminal to Be Filed

Application for a permit to erect a fourth permanent bus terminal for certain lines operating through Washington will be filed soon with the Office of District Building Inspector Oehmann by Louis T. Rouleau, architect, 2009 R street northwest, it was learned yesterday.

The project is being launched by Capital Bus Terminal, Inc., and will be a one-story, brick-and-stone building, dimensions of which will be 22 by 102 feet. It will be located at 633 F street northwest.

Jurors Name Slayer Of Navy Yard Worker

A coroner's jury yesterday named Harrison M. Kaiser, of 1354 L street southeast, as the slayer of James F. Morgan, navy yard worker and official of the machinists' union, who was shot September 29 while leaving his home at 3629 Jocelyn street northwest.

Witnesses, who testified at the inquest, said that Mr. Morgan on his death bed named Kaiser as his assailant. Police have not been able to apprehend the slayer, who disappeared shortly after the shooting.

Receiver Is Sought For Apartment Unit

Foreclosure of $800,000 Trust on La Salle Asked in Court.

Seeking the appointment of a receiver and a judicial foreclosure of an $800,000 trust, 73 persons holding notes secured by the leasehold interest on the south half of the La Salle Apartments, 1028 Connecticut avenue northwest, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court because, they alleged, payments on interest and principal of their bonds are overdue, as well as municipal taxes.

The north half of the building is already in receivership. Those named as defendants are J. Newton Brewer, as trustee; Walter N. Tobriner, Harry A. Miller, Marry Wardman and Thomas P. Bones.

The property was leased to Wardman for 99 years, and a deed of trust, to secure 970 notes for $800,000, was recorded. The petitioners are the holders of these notes. The notes matured November 5. The court was told that the property is being operated by William L. Browning and Walter N. Tobriner.

13,000 Volts Hit Man, But He May Recover

Apparently struck on the head and knocked onto a high-voltage line by a pipe which he was bending, Frederick Nelly, 103 Rhode Island avenue northwest, yesterday was treated at Emergency Hospital for lacerations, burns and shock.

Although he is believed to have fallen against a line carrying 13,000 volts, it was reported at the hospital that he had a fair chance to recover. Nelly was employed by the Potomac Electric Power Co., and was working at the rear of 5927 Georgia avenue northwest.

Dr. Johnson to Conduct Retreat for Catholics

Dr. George Johnson, executive secretary of the department of education of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, will conduct the exercises at a retreat to be held November 18-20 at the Washington Retreat House on Harewood road for high school students of the archdiocese.

Dr. Johnson has just returned from Vienna, where he was one of the leaders in the establishment of an international organization to promote Catholic education.

SAFETY DRIVE SPURS CAPITAL INVENTORS

Detective Bureau Besieged by Originators of Many Burglar Alarms.

The Detective Bureau is being besieged by inventors who, reading about the police survey of safety devices in business houses, are using high pressure sales methods on Assistant Superintendent Frank S. W. Burke, in an effort to demonstrate new burglar proof devices.

Locks and signal arrangements that would nonplus the most persistant cracksman, according to their originators, are paraded before Inspector Burke, who recently organized a squad of 45 picked men to instruct store proprietors how to safeguard their establishment against thieves.

Explanations that the Police Department can not endorse any commercial products or advocate their use seems of little use in ridding the Detective Bureau of the horde of salesmen who have descended upon it. A number of them have asked for the addresses of the premises found faulty in safety devices, so that they can solicit their patronage.

The squads detailed to the survey found that 25 per cent of the establishments visited in the first week of their city-wide canvass were deficient in protective devices. Approval of the new measure which was instituted to prevent the increase of crime during this winter, has been received from a number of civic organizations and citizens throughout the city.

Building Foreman Held In Fatal Keg Accident

Lee Raymond Burch, a foreman for the company erecting the steel work of the new Department of Justice Building, Tenth street and Constitution avenue, was held to the grand jury yesterday in connection with the death of Louis Marlow, 45, who was fatally injured last Friday when struck by a keg of rivets.

It was reported that several kegs of the rivets, weighing 200 pounds each, and sitting on a timber on the third-story level of the building, were being moved when the keg fell, striking Marlow on the head. The placing of rivets and such materials on unguarded timbers is said to be in violation of the law.

Promotion From Ranks For Police Chiefs Urged

The selection of future superintendents of the Metropolitan Police by promotion from the ranks was advocated in a resolution adopted last night by the Kenilworth Citizens Association. In another resolution the association commended the District Commissioners for the manner in which the bonus marchers were handled last summer.

Two speakers from the Community Chest spoke briefly at the meeting, outlining the program of the Chest.

TRAFFIC TOLL

An order warning motorists against crossing a crosswalk when stopped for a signaling device at an intersection, was issued yesterday by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, who pointed out that the regulation is being violated either through lack of knowledge or through carelessness.

Policemen were instructed, however, that they should under no circumstances signal a motorist to back a vehicle so that it would be in the rear of the crosswalks, as an injury to pedestrians might result.

Up to date there have been 37 more deaths and 209 more injuries than during the corresponding period of 1931. The total number of accidents has decreased by 431. The figures are:

	1931.	1932.
Deaths	68	105
Injuries	3,063	3,272
Accidents	7,192	6,761

"Be Careful!"

Risk Firm Favored In Verdict on Libel

Two Suits for $500,000 Are Dismissed by Court Action.

Justice James M. Proctor in the District Supreme Court yesterday directed a verdict in favor of the New Jersey Fidelity & Plate Glass Insurance Co. in two suits that had been filed against the company for $500,000 each for alleged libel.

The suits were brought by G. G. Loehler and Paul F. Loehler on the basis of allegations made in a prior suit by the insurance company in which the Loehlers were named. Through Attorney Foster Wood, the company claimed that the allegations complained of were material in the suit and were therefore, under a ruling of the United States Supreme Court, privileged.

During the early stages of the trial Mr. Wood objected to the introduction of the alleged libelous statements on the ground that they were privileged, and Justice Proctor ruled with him. Shortly after that Justice Proctor directed a jury to return a verdict for the insurance company. Both the Loehlers asked for $500,000 damages. The allegations they complained of were contained in a suit filed in 1929, and their own libel suit was filed early in 1930.

Traffic Violator Fined $130 on Three Charges

Fines of $130 were levied against Robert E. Brooks, colored, 17 years old, in Police Court yesterday when he faced charges of driving on the wrong side of the street, dead tags and no permit.

After his arrest, police said, they discovered that the machine he was driving had been reported stolen earlier in the day by Bertha Williams, 1832 Fourth street northwest. On a joy riding charge, Brooks will be arraigned today.

SIEGAL'S CONVICTION IS UPHELD BY COURT

Lawyer's 18-Month Sentence on Charge of Bribery Is Confirmed.

The conviction of Abner Siegal, an attorney, on a charge of bribing an employe of the District Jail, was confirmed yesterday by the District Court of Appeals. Siegal was sentenced by Trial Justice James M. Proctor to eighteen months in jail following his conviction several months ago. He is still at liberty on bond.

Siegal, who was prosecuted by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, was charged with having given Harry S. Deane, in charge of a record office at the District Jail, $250 to place in the jail files a card showing that an Italian named Damiani, who was wanted for murder in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., was incarcerated here at the time of the slaying.

Deane got in touch with his superiors and apparently went through with the scheme to substitute the card. Siegal was arrested and while he was awaiting arraignment before United States Commissioner Turnage was indicted.

In affirming the conviction, Chief Justice George E. Martin, who wrote the opinion, said that the case of Albert Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, was one of the decisive points against one of the reasons Siegal gave for asking a reversal.

This was that Deane did not have official authority to do that which he allegedly had been bribed to do. Siegal contended, therefore, that he could not have bribed Deane to do something that Deane could not legally do. The same point was decided in Fall's appeal, the contention then being that the former Interior head could not legally do the things that he was allegedly paid a bribe to do.

46 Snakes Donated To Washington Zoo

Two Small Boas and Red Rattlesnake Are Rare Specimens Received.

There were 46 new tenants in the Reptile House at the Zoo last night—the gift of Bill's Snake Farm on the Frederick-Gettysburg road near Frederick, Md.

In the collection were some new specimens for the exhibit. One of the unique reptiles is a king snake, colored red, black and white. Other odd specimens were two small boas from California and a red rattlesnake from California.

The 46 snakes, capable of doing a lot of harm, if they should become free, were brought to the Capital in an automobile by the donors. Other types in the gift were: Florida diamond-backs, Texas diamond-backs, pigmy rattlers, and horned rattlers from Arizona.

Jury Acquits Man In Lead Pipe Attack

Suspect Is Exonerated in 1929 Assault on Taxi Driver.

William Smith, alias Pat, was acquitted yesterday by a Princes Georges County Circuit Court jury on charges of assault with intent to kill on a taxi driver in Mount Rainier in 1929. State's Attorney Alan Bowie asked the jury to bring in a not guilty verdict after the taxidriver had failed to identify Smith.

The charges grew out of the robbery of Harry Melton three years ago. Milton was struck over the head with a lead pipe, and was at death's door for several months. Later Smith was indicted and extradited before he could be brought to trial.

Another jury decided that Matthew Hopkins was not guilty of the larceny of Margaret Day's hope chest. Etrulia Weems pleaded guilty to possession of liquor and was fined $50.

U. S. Workers to Meet On Legislative Plans

The meeting of Local Union No. 105 of the National Federation of Federal Employes will be held tonight in the cabinet room of the Willard Hotel.

It is expected that the union will approve the legislative program of its national organization as prepared for presentation at the short session of Congress.

DISTRICT EMPLOYES WILL NOT BE FORCED TO DONATE TO CHEST

All Contributions Will Be Voluntary, Leaders Rule; Drive Plans Made.

The District Commissioners will not ask District employes to pledge one or more days' pay this year to the Community Chest, as they did last year, Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the board, announced yesterday after a conference had been called of all department heads for 3 o'clock this afternoon to discuss the campaign, which starts November 14.

All contributions will be purely voluntary this year, Dr. Reichelderfer said, and no duress will be exercised. Last year many employes were practically ordered by department heads to pledge three days' pay, while others were persuaded to contribute on the ground that otherwise District and Federal salaries would be reduced.

After Congress had reduced salaries many District employes expressed resentment over their pledges. District officials contended that they were sincere in their belief, however, that generous contributions to the Community Chest would forestall salary reductions.

Unit Plans Campaign.

Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, who is in charge of the campaign among District employes, and officials of the Community Chest, will be present at the conference today.

Activities of the group solicitation unit will tend to increase contributions to the Community Chest during the extensive campaign to be launched next Monday, it was predicted yesterday by Lloyd B. Wilson, unit chairman, at a meeting held in the Raleigh Hotel.

The session was attended by more than 500 keymen, division chiefs and chairmen. The entire campaign is in a better state of preparation than in any pevious year, Mr. Wilson pointed out. He paid tribute to Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith as originator of the "how-many-pennies-a-day" idea for solicitation.

Cites Threat of Deficit.

E. C. Graham, president of the Community Chest, pointed out that the Chest does not dispense charity, but merely raises money for the organizations that take care of all needs of every race and creed.

Declaring that the Chest already faces a deficit of $200,000, Mr. Graham indicated that this year's giving must reach the sacrificial stage if the Chest is to be a success.

Other speakers included W. W. Everett, S. Percy Thompson, William Montgomery, Ben T. Webster, John A. Hanna and George O. Vass. Instruction on methods of solicitation were given by Elwood Street, director of the Chest.

Resolutions pledging cooperation to the Chest were adopted yesterday by the Presbyterian and Methodist Ministers' Associations.

Swiss Visitor Praises Hospitals in America

"American hospitals would make any European feel envious," Dr. Egon von Kohler, of Switzerland, told a group of Washington medical men yesterday. Dr. Kohler has been studying the modern equipment of American hospitals.

He has been the guest of Dr. Thomas A. Poole at the Shoreham Hotel. Dr. Kohler is a neurologist and is the head of the well-known clinics, "Mon Repos" and "Beau Sejour," at Geneva.

Army-Navy Club Wins Eynon Bridge Trophy

The Army-Navy Club has been awarded the Eynon Trophy, given annually to the contract bridge champions of the District of Columbia.

In the play against the bridge experts of Washington and other cities in the second annual tournament of the Washington Bridge League at Wardman Park Hotel, the Army-Navy team, captained by Thomas Hamlin, won the team championship. Other members of the winning team were Maj. Muncaster, W. C. Coe and Maj. Gray.

Drive on All-Night Parking

Campaign Started by Dupont Circle Citizens After Garage Owners' Representative Warns of Tax Strike Unless City Ordinance Is Revised.

A campaign against all-night parking in Washington was instituted by the Dupont Circle Citizens Association at its initial meeting of the season yesterday afternoon at the Mayflower Hotel.

Frank E. Altemus, representing garage owners at the meeting, declared that a tax strike probably will result if the city ordinance permitting all-night parking is not revised, because garage men are required to pay high taxes on their property and are not given an opportunity to make a living.

Maj. Clayton E. Emig, chairman of a standing committee on traffic of the association, announced that transportation authorities are working in cooperation with the committee and that important progress is expected.

Col. E. G. Bliss told the association that in his opinion no progress would be made until the majority of citizens show they are in favor of a change in regulations. From all appearances, Col. Bliss said, most of the people in Washington are satisfied with all-night parking.

Demarest Lloyd, president of the association, said the fight will be taken to Congress if necessary. Other members of the association spoke in opposition to the parking situation.

H. S. Fitz, a member of the speakers' unit of the Community Chest, told the association that it is more important than ever before that the chest be generously supported this year.

U.S. WORKERS URGED TO JOIN LABOR MOVE

Shaw, Head of Federation, Speaks as Lodge Is Given Charter.

An association of Government employes that is not affiliated to the labor movement, is not a labor union and its members are not working shoulder to shoulder with the workers of the country, John Arthur Shaw, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, told members of the Library of Congress lodge at a meeting yesterday at the library.

David R. Glass, first vice president, presented the lodge with its charter. It was accepted by Mrs. Lilla A. Shepley, president of the lodge, which was one of the first organized following the chartering of the A. F. G. E. by the American Federation of Labor.

"If Government workers are to gain their objectives as wage earners, they can do so effectively only as part of the great American labor movement," declared Mr. Shaw. "To be organized and not have the backing of labor is, to my way of thinking, to run counter to the interests of workers generally. An association of Government employes not affiliated to the labor movement is not a labor union whose members are working shoulder to shoulder with the workers of the country."

Herman H. B. Meyer is first vice president; Miss Dena M. Kingsley, second vice president; Charles H. Hastings, third vice president; John J. de Porry, fourth vice president; Mrs. Dabney M. H. Cruikshank, secretary; John W. Cronin, treasurer, and Frank B. Hayes, sergeant at arms. Clarke J. McLane is chairman of the executive committee.

Man Rescued by Wife From Gas Asphyxiation

Clarence B. Buckley, 32, of 105 Sixth street southeast, was revived by the Fire Rescue Squad and removed to Casualty Hospital yesterday after he was overcome by gas at his home.

He was found unconscious in the kitchen by his wife, Irene, who discovered that jets on the gas stove were turned on, police said. Physicians described his condition as "not serious."

Alice Deal School Plan Enlargement Proposed

A resolution to be acted upon as soon as possible for increasing the high school plan capacity of the Alice Deal School, to be built at Albemarle and Thirty-ninth streets, with the object of relieving pressure on Western High, was adopted at a meeting of the Forest Hills Citizens Association in the Ben Murch School, Thirty-sixth and Ellicott streets, last night.

One of the features of the evening was a short talk on the progress of avaition and a series of accompanying motion pictures, presented by R. E. Harron.

CAMPAIGN TO OPEN ON SEWAGE SYSTEM

Izaak Walton League Will Begin Drive to Protect Potomac River.

Again characterizing the Potomac as an "open sewer" threatening the health of District residents, the Izaak Walton League of America yesterday announced the beginning of a campaign for the construction of a modern sewage disposal plant on the site already purchased for that purpose near Blue Plains.

The campaign will be inaugurated tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Department of Commerce auditorium, where motion pictures of the most modern of sewage disposal plants with especial emphasis on the crowded cities of Germany will be exhibited.

The showing will be made by Stanton L. Dorsey, sanitary engineer of the Veterans' Bureau, and will be sponsored by the league through its national vice president and president of its local chapter, Dr. M. D'Arcy Magee.

"Disgraceful Condition."

The urgent need for a modern sewage disposal plant for the District to preserve its public health is a matter of general knowledge, Dr. Magee stated, as disinterested physicians and chemists have repeatedly compared the bacteriological condition of the river and Rock Creek to that of an open sewer.

The league quoted an article from the current issue of Outdoor America, by S. B. Locke, national conservation director of the league, which stated:

"The Capitol City presents a disgraceful example of stream defilement. The historic Potomac, now an open sewer, threatens the health and well being of its residents and visitors; it is unfit for recreation uses; it is death to fish and waterfowl which formerly found haven there."

Exhaustive Study Made.

The report of the Public Health Service, which will be made to Congress in December, will reveal startling facts about the river's condition, a statement by the league predicted.

The report is that of the first exhaustive study of District health conditions made in 14 years. It was authorized by a joint resolution sponsored at the last Congress by Senator Swanson, of Virginia.

According to the league, the report of the health service will describe "an alarming condition of so high a bacteriological content in the waters of the Potomac and Rock Creek as to constitute a menace to the city's public health."

Burleith Meeting Is Postponed.

NEW TAXICAB STAND REGULATIONS TO BE ON VIEW TOMORROW

Utility Commission Survey Shows Police Often Broke Own Law.

The Public Utilities Commission has discovered that the Police Department for a number of years has violated its own regulations in the matter of locating hack stands and as a result new regulations setting forth the locations of new and old stands has been held up almost two months while painstaking measurements were made of each taxicab parking place.

The regulations will be made public tomorrow, however, after being approved by the traffic coordinating committee, James L. Martin, executive secretary, announced yesterday.

Many Stands Illegal.

Although 235 stands have been listed, the total number probably will be reduced to 195 before the order is issued. When the commission assumed jurisdiction of hack stands last summer under the license act, there were 210 stands throughout the city.

Oddly enough, what delayed the commission investigators was the discovery that most of the stands established by the Police Department were illegal in that they did not conform to the police regulations. Many of them were closer than 20 feet to an intersection, too near car stops or fire plugs or otherwise illegally placed. Moreover, many of them were vaguely identified or located and some were not even marked or in use.

Order Will Be Fought.

The order, which follows a public hearing held in September, also abolishes private stands for taxicabs adjacent to several of the larger downtown hotels.

Because of this provision the order doubtless will be contested, as both the District Commissioners and the commission have vainly attempted to break up the hotel-taxicab monopolies over a period of several years. A test case is even now in the courts.

Extra Taxicab Space Is Asked for Holidays

In an effort to stem the inevitable increase in cruising taxicabs during the coming Christmas rush season, the Public Utilities Commission yesterday received a request for several additional cab stands throughout the downtown section.

The request was made by the Taxicab Drivers Union, through its secretary, George E. Bowley. He pointed out that the normal flow of traffic will be greatly increased during the pre-Christmas shopping days, and if taxicabs are allowed to park on stands it will tend to relieve congestion.

Mr. Bowley urged that the additional stands be made available on December 1. He pointed out that they would be only temporary and could be abolished by midnight, December 24. The request called for space for 43 cabs.
